THE present edition of the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Books of Livy follows the very excellent text of Alschevski, founded, as it is, on a new and most carefully conducted recension of the manuscripts, especially of the well-known Codex Puteanus. From this text no departure has been made, except in the spelling of a few words, and in the substitution of es for is in those cases in which the termination of the accusative plural of words, whose genitive plural ends in ium, is found so written.

With respect to the explanatory notes appended to this volume, I have to acknowledge my great obligations to the Latin commentaries of Alschevski, Crevier, and Ruperti, and to the German Commentaries of Fabri and Weisenborn.

T. LIVI PATAVINI HISTORIARUM AB URBE CONDITA

LIBER XXI.

EPITOME.

[In Italiam] belli Punici secundi ortus narratur, et Hannibalis Pœnorum ducis contra fœdus per Iberum amnem transitus, a quo Saguntum, sociorum populi Romani civitas, obsessa octavo mense capta est. De quibus injuriis missi legati ad Carthaginienses, qui quererentur. Quum satisfacere nollent, bellum iis indictum est. Hannibal, superato Pyrenæo saltu, per Gallias, fuis Volscis, qui obsistere conati erant, ad Alpes venit; et laborioso per eas transitu (quum montanos quoque Gallos obvios aliquot præliis repulisset) descendit in Italiam, et ad Trinum amnem Romanos equestri prælio fudit: in quo vulneratum P. Cornelium Scipionem protexit filius, qui Africani postea nomen accepit. Iterumque exercitu Romano ad flumen Trebiam fuso, Hannibal Apenninum quoque, per magnam militum vexationem propter vim tempestatum, transiit. Cn. Cornelius Scipio in Hispania contra Pœnos prospere pugnavit, duce hostium Magone capto.

imperitatum victis esse. Fama est etiam, Hannibalem annorum ferme novem pueriliter blandientem patri Hamilcari, ut duceretur in Hispaniam, cum, perfecto Africo bello, exercitum eo trajecturus sacrificaret, altaribus admotum, tactis sacris jurejurando adactum, se, cum primum posset, hostem fore populo Romano. Angebant ingentis spiritus virum Sicilia Sardiniaque amissæ: nam et Siciliam nimis celeri desperatione rerum concessam, et Sardiniam inter motum Africae fraude Romanorum, stipendio etiam insuper imposito, interceptam.

II. His anxius curis ita se Africo bello, quod fuit sub recentem Romanam pacem, per quinque annos, ita deinde novem annis in Hispania augendo Punico imperio gessit, ut appareret majus eum quam quod gereret agitare in animo bellum et, si diutius vixisset, Hamilcare duce Pœnos arma Italiæ inlaturos fuisse, qui Hannibalis ductu intulerunt. Mors Hamilcaris peropportuna et pueritia Hannibalis distulerunt bellum. Medius Hasdrubal inter patrem ac filium octo ferme annos imperium obtinuit, flore ætatis, uti ferunt, primo Hamilcari conciliatus, gener inde ob aliam indolem, profecto animi, adscitus, et, quia gener erat, factionis Barcinæ opibus, quæ apud milites plebemque plus quam modicæ erant, haud sane voluntate principum in imperio positus. Is plura consilio quam vi gerens, hospitibus magis regulorum conciliandisque per amicitiam principum novis gentibus quam bello aut armis rem Carthaginiensem auxit. Ceteram nihilo ei pax tutior fuit: barbarus eum quidam palam ob iram interfecti ab eo domini obruncat, comprehensusque ab circumstantibus haud alio quam si evasisset vultu, tormentis quoque cum laceraretur, eo fuit habitu oris ut superante lætitia dolores ridentis etiam speciem præbuerit. Cum hoc Hasdrubale, quia miræ artis in sollicitandis gentibus imperioque suo jungendis fuerat, foedus renovaverat populus Romanus, ut finis utriusque imperii esset annis Hiberus, Saguntinisque mediis inter imperia duorum populorum libertas servaretur.

III. In Hasdrubalis locum haud dubia res fuit quin prærogativam militarem, qua extemplo juvenis Hannibal in prætorium delatus imperatorque ingenti omnium clamore atque adsensu appellatus erat, favor plebis sequeretur. Hunc vixdum puberem Hasdrubal litteris ad se accersierat; actaque res etiam in senatu fuerat, Barcinis nitentibus ut adsuaderet militiæ Hannibal atque in paternas succederet opes: Hanno, alterius factionis princeps, "et æquum postulare videtur" inquit "Hasdrubal, et ego tamen non censeo quod petit tribuendum." Cum admiratione tam anceps sententiæ in se omnes convertisset, "Florem ætatis" inquit "Hasdrubal, quem ipse patri Hannibalis fruendum

“præbuit, justo jure eum a filio repeti censet: nos tamen “minime decet juventutem nostram pro militari rudimento ad“suefacere libidini prætorum. An hoc timemus, ne Hamilcaris “filius nimis sero imperia inmodica et regni paterni speciem “videat et, cujus regis genero hereditarii sint relictii exercitus “nostri, ejus filio parum mature serviamus? Ego istum juve“nem domi tenendum, sub legibus, sub magistratibus docendum “vivere æquo jure cum ceteris censeo, ne quandoque parvus hic “ignis incendium ingens exsuscitet.”

IV. Pauci ac ferme optimus quisque Hannoni assentiebantur, sed, ut plerumque fit, major pars meliorem vicit. Missus Hannibal in Hispaniam primo statim adventu omnem exercitum in se convertit: Hamilcarem juvenem redditum sibi veteres milites credere; eundem vigorem in vultu vimque in oculis, habitum oris lineamenta que intueri: dein brevi effectit ut pater in se minimum momentum ad favorem conciliandum esset. Nunquam ingenium idem ad res diversissimas, parendum atque imperandum, habilis fuit: itaque haud facile discerneres, utrum imperatori an exercitui carior esset: neque Hasdrubal alium quemquam præficere malle ubi quid fortiter ac strenue agendum esset, neque milites alio duce plus confidere aut audere. Plurimum audaciæ ad pericula capessenda, plurimum consilii inter ipsa pericula erat. Nullo labore aut corpus fatigare aut animus vinci poterat: caloris ac frigoris patientia par: cibi potionisque desiderio naturali non voluntate modus finitus. Vigiliarum somnique ne die nec nocte discriminata tempora: id quod gerendis rebus superesset, quieti datum: ea neque molli strato neque silentio accersita: multi sæpe militari sagulo opertum, humi jacentem inter custodias stationesque militum conspexerunt. Vestitus nihil inter æquales excellens: arma atque equi conspiciebantur. Equitum peditumque idem longe primus erat: princeps in prælium ibat, ultimus conserto prælio excedebat. Has tantas viri virtutes ingentia vitia æquabant, inhumana crudelitas, perfidia plus quam Punica, nihil veri, nihil sancti, nullus deum metus, nullum jusjurandum, nulla religio. Cum hac indole virtutum atque vitiorum triennio sub Hasdrubale imperatore meruit, nulla re, quæ agenda videndaque magno futuro duci esset, prætermissa.

V. Ceterum ex quo die dux est declaratus, velut Italia ei provincia decreta bellumque Romanum mandatum esset, nihil prolatandum ratus, ne se quoque, ut patrem Hamilcarem, deinde Hasdrubalem, cunctantem casus aliquis opprimeret, Saguntinis inferre bellum statuit. Quibus oppugnandis quia haud dubie Romana arma movebantur, in Olcadum prius fines—ultra Hi-

berum ea gens in parte magis quam in ditione Carthaginiensium erat—induxit exercitum, ut non petisse Saguntinos sed rerum serie, finitimis domitis gentibus, jungendoque, tractus ad id bellum videri posset. Cartalam urbem opulentam, caput gentis ejus, expugnat diripitque, quo metu percussæ minores civitates stipendio imposito imperium acceperunt: victor exercitus opulentusque præda Carthaginem novam in hiberna est deductus. Ibi large partiendo prædam, stipendioque præterito cum fide exsolvendo, cunctis civium sociorumque animis in se firmatis, vere primo in Vaccæos promotum bellum. Hermandica et Arbocala eorum urbes vi captæ. Arbocala et virtute et multitudine oppidanorum diu defensa. Ab Hermandica profugi exulibus Olcadum, priore æstate domitæ gentis, cum se junxissent, concitant Carpetanos, adortique Hannibalem regressum ex Vaccæis, haud procul Tago flumine agmen grave præda turbavere. Hannibal prælio abstinuit, castrisque super ripam positis, cum prima quies silentiumque ab hostibus fuit, amnem vado trajecit, valloque ita producto ut locum ad transgrediendum hostes haberent, invadere eos transeuntes statuit. Equitibus præcepit ut, cum ingressos aquam viderent, adorirentur peditum agmen: in ripa elephantos, quadraginta autem erant, disponit. Carpetanorum cum adpeditibus Olcadum Vaccæorumque centum millia fuisse, invicta acies, si æquo dimicaretur campo. Itaque et in ænio feroces et multitudine freti et, quod metu cessisse credebant hostem, id morari victoriam rati quod interesset amnis, clamore sublato passim sine ullius imperio qua cuique proximum est in amnem ruunt. Et ex parte altera ripæ vis ingens equitum in flumen inmissa, medioque alveo haudquaquam pari certamine concursum, quippe ubi pedes instabilis ac vix vado fidens vel ab inermi equite, equo temere acto, perverti posset, eques corpore armisque liber, equo vel per medios gurgites stabili, comminus eminensque rem gereret. Pars magna flumine assumpta; quidam verticoso amni delati in hostes ab elephantis obtriti sunt: postremi, quibus regressus in suam ripam tutior fuit, ex varia trepidatione cum in unum colligerentur, priusquam tanto pavore reciperent animos, Hannibal agmine quadrato amnem ingressus fugam ex ripa fecit, vastatisque agris, intra paucos dies Carpetanos quoque in deditionem accepit. Et jam omnia trans Hiberum præter Saguntinos Carthaginiensium erant?

VI. Cum Saguntinis bellum nondum erat, ceterum jam belli causa certamina cum finitimis serebantur, maxime Turdetanis. Quibus cum adesset idem qui litis erat sator, nec certamen juris sed vim quæri appareret, legati a Saguntinis Romam missi auxilium ad bellum jam haud dubie imminens orantes. Consules tunc Romæ erant P. Cornelius Scipio et Ti. Sempronius Longus: qui cum legatis in senatum introductis de re publica retulissent, placuissetque mitti legatos in Hispaniam ad res sociorum inspicandas, quibus si videretur digna causa, et Hannibali denuntiarent ut ab Saguntinis, sociis populi Romani, abstineret, et Carthaginem in Africam trajicerent ac sociorum populi Romani querimonias deferrent, hac legatione decreta necdum missa, omnium spe celerius Saguntum oppugnari adlatum est. Tunc relata de integro res ad senatum, et alii provincias consulibus Hispaniam atque Africam decerentes terra marique rem gerendam censebant, alii totum in Hispaniam Hannibalemque intenderant bellum: erant qui non temere movendam rem tantam expectandosque ex Hispania legatos censerent. Hæc sententia, quæ tutissima videbatur, vicit: legatique eo maturius missi P. Valerius Flaccus et Q. Bæbius Tamphilus Saguntum ad Hannibalem atque inde Carthaginem, si non absisteretur bello, ad ducem ipsum in pœnam fœderis rupti deposcendum.

VII. Dum ea Romani parant consultantque, jam Saguntum summa vi oppugnabatur. Civitas ea longe opulentissima ultra Hiberum fuit, sita passus mille ferme a mari. Orindi a Zacyntho insula dicuntur, mixtique etiam ab Ardea Rutulorum quidam generis: ceterum in tantis brevi creverant opes seu maritimis seu terrestribus fructibus, seu multitudinis incremento seu disciplinæ sanctitate, qua fidem socialem usque ad perficiendam suam coluerunt. Hannibal infesto exercitu ingressus fines pervastatis passim agris urbem tripartito adgreditur. Angulus muri erat in planiorem patentioreque, quam cetera circa, vallem vergens: adversus eum vineas agere instituit, per quas aries mœnibus admoveri posset. Sed ut locus procul muro satis æquus agendis vineis fuit, ita haudquaquam prospere, postquam ad effectum operis ventum est, cœptis succedebat: et turris ingens iminebat, et murus, ut in suspecto loco, supra ceteræ modum altitudinis emunitus erat, et juvenus delecta, ubi plurimum periculi ac timoris ostendebatur, ibi vi majore obsistebant. Ac primo missilibus submovere hostem nec quicquam satis tutum munientibus pati, deinde jam non pro mœnibus modo atque turri tela micare, sed ad erumpendum etiam in stationes operaque hostium animus erat, quibus tumultuariis certaminibus haud ferme plures Saguntini cædebant quam Pœni. Ut vero Hannibal ipse, dum murum incautius subit, adversum femur tragula graviter ictus cecidit, tanta circa fuga ac trepidatio fuit, ut non multum abesset, quin opera ac vineæ desererentur.

VIII. Obsidio deinde per paucos dies magis quam oppugnatio fuit, dum vulnus ducis curaretur. Per quod tempus ut quies certaminum erat, ita ab apparatu operum ac munitionum nihil cessatum. Itaque acrius de integro coortum est bellum, pluribusque partibus, vix accipientibus quibusdam opera locis, vineæ cœptæ agi, admoverique aries. Abundabat multitudine hominum Pœnus; ad centum quinquaginta millia habuisse in armis satis creditur: oppidani ad omnia tuenda atque obeunda multifariam distineri cœpti sunt. Non sufficebant: itaque jam feriebantur arietibus muri quassatæque multæ partes erant. Una continentibus ruinis nudaverat urbem: tres deinceps turrēs quantumque inter eas muri erat cum fragore ingenti prociderunt. Captum oppidum ea ruina crediderant Pœni, qua, velut si pariter utrosque murus texisset, ita utrinque in pugnam procursum est. Nihil tumultuariæ pugnæ simile erat, quales in oppugnationibus urbium per occasionei partis alterius conciri solent, sed justæ acies, velut patenti campo, inter ruinas muri tectaque urbis modico distantia intervallo constiterant. Hinc spes, hinc desperatio animos irritat, Pœno cepisse jam se urbem, si paulum admitatur, credente, Saguntinis pro nudata mœnibus patria corpore opponentibus, nec ullo pedem referente, ne in relictum a se locum hostem inmitteret. Itaque quo acrius et confertim magis utrinque pugnabatur, eo plures vulnerabantur, nullo inter arma corporaque vano intercidente telo. Phalarica erat Saguntinis missile telum, hastili abiegno, et cetero tereti præterquam ad extremum, unde ferrum extabat: id, sicut in pilo, quadratum stuppa circumligabant, linebantque pice: ferrum autem tres longum habebat pedes, ut cum armis transfigere corpus posset. Sed id maxime, etiam si hæsisset in scuto nec penetrasset in corpus, pavorem faciebat, quod, cum medium accensum mitteretur, conceptumque ipso motu multo majorem ignem ferret, arma omitti cogebat nudumque militem ad insequentes ictus præbebat.

IX. Cum diu anceps fuisset certamen et Saguntinis, quia præter spem resisterent, crevissent animi, Pœnus, quia non vicisset, pro victo esset, clamorem repente oppidani tollunt hostemque in ruinas muri expellunt, inde impeditum trepidantemque exturbant, postremo fusum fugatumque in castra redigunt. Interim ab Roma legatos venisse nuntiatum est: quibus obviam ad mare missi ab Hannibale qui dicerent, nec tuto eos adituros inter tot tam effrenatarum gentium arma, nec Hannibali in tanto discrimine rerum operæ esse legationes audire. Apparebat non admissos protinus Carthaginem ituros. Litteras igitur nuntiosque ad principes factionis Barcinæ præmittit, ut præpararent suorum animos, ne quid pars altera gratificari pro Romanis posset.

X. Itaque præterquam quod admissi auditique sunt, ea quoque vana atque irrita legatio fuit. Hanno unus adversus senatum causam fœderis magno silentio propter auctoritatem suam non cum adsensu audientium egit, per deos fœderum arbitros ac testes senatum obtestans, "Ne Romanum cum Saguntino suscitarent bellum. Monuisse, prædixisse se, ne Hamilcaris progeniem ad exercitum mitterent: non manes, non stirpem ejus conquiescere viri, nec umquam, donec sanguinis nominis-que Barcini quisquam supersit, quietura Romana fœdera:" "Juvenem flagrantem cupidine regni viamque unam ad id cernentem, si ex bellis bella secundo succinctus armis legionibusque vivat, velut materiam igni præbentes, ad exercitus misistis. Aluistis ergo hoc incendium, quo nunc ardetis. Saguntum vestri circumsedent exercitus, unde arcentur fœdere: mox Carthaginem circumsedebunt Romanæ legiones ducibus iisdem diis, per quos priore bello rupta fœdera sunt ultî. Utrum hostem an vos an fortunam utriusque populi ignoratis? Legatos ab sociis et pro sociis venientes bonus imperator vester in castra non admisit, jus gentium sustulit: hi tamen, unde ne hostium quidem legati arcentur, pulsî ad vos venerunt: res ex fœdere repetuntur: publica fraus absit, auctorem culpæ et reum criminis deposeunt. Quo lenius agunt, segnius incipiunt, eo, cum cœperint, vereor ne per-severantius sæviant. Egates insulas Erycemque ante oculos proponite, quæ terra marique per quattuor et viginti annos passi sitis. Nec puer hic dux erat sed pater ipse Hamilcar, Mars alter, ut isti volunt. Sed Tarento, id est Italia, non abstinueramus ex fœdere, sicut nunc Sagunti non abstinemus. Vicerunt ergo dii hominesque, et id de quo verbis ambigebatur, uter populus fœdus rupisset, eventus belli velut æquus iudex, unde jus stabat, ei victoriam dedit. Carthagini nunc Hannibal vineas turresque admovet, Carthaginis mœnia quatit ariete: Sagunti ruinæ, falsus utinam vates sim, nostris capitibus incident, susceptumque cum Saguntinis bellum habendum cum Romanis est. Dedemus ergo Hannibalem? dicet aliquis. Scio meam levem esse in eo auctoritatem propter paternas inimicitias: sed et Hamilcarem eo perisse lætatus sum, quod, si ille viveret, bellum jam haberemus cum Romanis, et hunc juvenem tanquam furiam facemque hujus belli odi ac detestor: nec dedendum solum ad piaculum ruptis fœderis sed, si nemo deposcit, devchendum in ultimas maris terrarumque oras, ablegandum eo, unde nec ad nos nomen famaue ejus accedere, neque ille sollicitare quietæ civitatis statum possit. Ego ita censeo, legatos extemplo Romam mittendos qui senatui satis-

“faciant, alios, qui Hannibali nuntient ut exercitum ab Sagunto “abducat, ipsumque Hannibalem ex fœdere Romanis dedant :
“tertiam legationem ad res Saguntinis reddendas decerno.”

XI. Cum Hanno perorasset, nemini omnium certare oratione cum eo necesse fuit, adeo prope omnis senatus Hannibalis erat, infestiusque locutum arguebant Hannonem quam Flacum Valerium legatum Romanum. Responsum inde legatis Romanis est, “bellum ortum ab Saguntinis non ab Hannibale esse : populum “Romanum injuste facere, si Saguntinos vetustissimæ Cartha“giniensium societati præponat.” Dum Romani tempus terunt legationibus mittendis, Hannibal, quia fessum militem præliis operibusque habebat, paucorum his dierum quietem dedit, stationibus ad custodiam vinearum aliorumque operum dispositis.
Interim animos eorum nunc ira in hostes stimulando nunc spe præmiorum accendit : ut vero pro contione prædam captæ urbis edixit militum fore, adeo accensi omnes sunt ut, si extemplo signum datum esset, nulla vi resisti videretur posse. Saguntini ut a præliis quietem habuerant, nec lacessentes nec lacessiti per aliquot dies, ita non nocte non die umquam cessaverant ab opere, ut novum murum ab ea parte, qua patefactum oppidum ruinis erat, reficerent. Inde oppugnatio eos aliquanto atrocior quam ante adorta est ; nec, qua primum aut potissimum parte ferrent opem, cum omnia variis clamoribus streperent, satis scire poterant. Ipse Hannibal, qua turris mobilis, omnia munimenta urbis superans altitudine, agebatur, hortator aderat. Quæ cum admota, catapultis ballistisque per omnia tabulata dispositis, muros defensoribus nudasset, tum Hannibal occasionem ratus, quingentos ferme Afros cum dolabris ad subruendum ab imo murum mittit. Nec erat difficile opus, quod cæmenta non calce durata erant sed interlita luto structuræ antiquæ genere. Itaque latius quam qua cæderetur ruebat, perque patientia ruinis agmina armatorum in urbem vadebant. Locum quoque editum capiunt, conlatisque eo catapultis ballistisque, ut castellum in ipsa urbe velut arcem imminuentem haberent, muro circumdant. Et Saguntini murum interiorem ab nondum capta parte urbis ducunt. Utrunque summa vi et muniunt et pugnant : sed interiora tuendo minorem indies urbem Saguntini faciunt.
Simul crescit inopia omnium longa obsidione, et minuitur expectatio externæ opis, cum tam procul Romani, unica spes, circa omnia hostium essent. Paulisper tamen adfectos animos recreavit repentina profectio Hannibalis in Oretanos Carpetanosque, qui duo populi, delectus acerbitate consternati, retentis conquisitoribus, metum defectionis cum præbuissent, oppressi celeritate Hannibalis omiserunt mota arma.

XII. Nec Sagunti oppugnatio segnior erat, Maharbale, Himilconis filio—eum præfecerat Hannibal—ita in pigre rem agente ut duces abesse nec cives nec hostes sentirent. Is et prælia aliquot secunda fecit et tribus arietibus aliquantum muri discussit, strataque omnia recentibus ruinis advenienti Hannibali ostendit. Itaque ad ipsam arcem extemplo ductus exercitus, atroxque prælium cum multorum utrimque cæde initum, et pars arcis capta est. Tentata deinde per duos est exigua pacis spes, Alconem Saguntinum et Alorcum Hispanum. Alco, insciis Saguntinis, precibus aliquid moturum ratus, cum ad Hannibalem noctu transisset, postquam nihil lacrimæ movebant, conditionesque tristes, ut ab irato victore, ferebantur, transfuga ex oratore factus apud hostem mansit, moriturum adfirmans qui sub conditionibus iis de pace ageret. Postulabatur autem, redderent res Turdetanis, traditoque omni auro atque argento, egressi urbem cum singulis vestimentis ibi habitarent ubi Pœnus jussisset. Has pacis leges abnuente Alcone accepturos Saguntinos, Alorcus, vinci animos ubi alia vincantur adfirmans, se pacis ejus interpretem fore pollicetur. Erat autem tum miles Hannibalis, ceterum publice Saguntinis amicus atque hospes. Tradito palam telo custodibus hostium, transgressus munimenta ad prætorem Saguntinum, et ipse ita jubebat, est deductus. Quo cum extemplo concursus omnis generis hominum esset factus, submota cetera multitudine, senatus Alorco datus est, cujus talis oratio fuit:

XIII. "Si civis vester Alco, sicut ad pacem petendam ad Hannibalem venit, ita pacis conditiones ab Hannibale ad vos rettulisset, supervacaneum hoc mihi fuisset iter, quo nec orator Hannibalis nec transfuga ad vos venissem. Cum ille aut vestra aut sua culpa manserit apud hostem, sua, si metum simulavit, vestra, si periculum est apud vos vera referentibus, ego, ne ignoraretis esse aliquas et salutis et pacis vobis conditiones, pro vetusto hospitio, quod mihi vobiscum est, ad vos veni. Vestra autem causa me, nec ullius alterius, loqui quæ loquor apud vos, vel ea fides sit, quod neque dum vestris viribus restitistis, neque dum auxilia ab Romanis sperastis, pacis unquam apud vos mentionem feci. Postquam nec ab Romanis vobis ulla est spes nec vestra vos jam aut arma aut monia satis defendunt, pacem adfero ad vos magis necessariam quam æquam: cujus ita aliqua spes est, si eam, quem ad modum ut victor fert Hannibal, sic vos ut victi audiat, si non id quod amittitur, in damno, cum omnia victoris sint, sed quidquid relinquitur pro munere habituri estis: urbem vobis, quam ex magna parte dirutam, captam fere totam habet, adimit; agros relinquit, locum adsignaturus in quo novum oppidum “ædificetis : aurum et argentum omne, publicum privatumque, “ad se jubet deferri : corpora vestra, conjugum ac liberorum, “vestrorum servat inviolata, si inermes cum binis vestimentis “velitis ab Sagunto exire. Hæc victor hostis imperat ; hæc, “quamquam sunt gravia atque acerba, fortuna vestra vobis “suadet. Equidem haud despero, cum omnium potestas ei “facta sit, aliquid ex his rebus remissurum : sed vel hæc “patienda censeo potius quam trucidari corpora vestra, rapi “trahique ante ora vestra conjuges ac liberos belli jure “sinatis.”

XIV. Ad hæc audienda cum, circumfusa paulatim multitudo, permixtum senatui esset populi concilium, repente primores, secessione facta, priusquam responsum daretur, argentum aurumque omne ex publico privatoque in forum conlatum in ignem ad id raptim factum conicientes eodem plerique semet ipsi præcipitaverunt. Cum ex eo pavor ac trepidatio totam urbem pervasisset, alius insuper tumultus ex arce auditur : turris diu quassata prociderat, perque ruinam ejus cohors Pœnorum impetu facto cum signum imperatori dedisset nudatam stationibus custodisque solitis hostium esse urbem, non cunctandum in tali occasione ratus Hannibal totis viribus adgressus urbem momento cepit, signo dato ut omnes puberes interficerentur. Quod imperium crudele ceterum prope necessarium cognitum ipso eventu est : cui enim parci potuit ex his, qui aut inclusi cum conjugibus ac liberis domos super se ipsos concremaverunt, aut armati nullum ante finem pugnae quam morientes fecerunt ?

XV. Captum oppidum est cum ingenti præda. Quamquam pleraque ab dominis de industria corrupta erant, et in cædibus vix ullum discrimen ætatis ira fecerat, et captivi militum præda fuerant, tamen et ex pretio rerum venditarum aliquantum pecuniæ redactum esse constat, et multam pretiosam supellectilem vestemque missam Carthaginem. Octavo mense, quam ceptum oppugnari, captum Saguntum quidam scripsere : inde Carthaginem novam in hibernâ Hannibalem concessisse, quinto deinde mense, quam ab Carthagine profectus sit, in Italiam pervenisse. Quæ si ita sunt, fieri non potuit ut P. Cornelius, Ti. Sempronius consules fuerint, ad quos et principio oppugnationis legati Saguntini missi sint et qui in suo magistratu cum Hannibale, alter ad Ticinum amnem, ambo aliquanto post ad Trebiam pugnaverint. Aut omnia breviora aliquanto fuere, aut Saguntum principio anni, quo P. Cornelius, Ti. Sempronius consules fuerunt, non ceptum oppugnari est, sed captum. Nam excessisse pugna ad Trebiam in annum Cn. Servili et C. Flamini non potest, quia C. Flaminius Arimini consulatum iniit, creatus a Ti. Sempronio consule, qui post pugnam ad Trebiam ad creandos consules Roman cum venisset, comitiis perfectis ad exercitum in hiberna rediit.

XVI. Sub idem fere tempus et legati, qui redierant ab Carthagine, Romam rettulerunt omnia hostilia esse, et Saguntii excidium nuntiatum est, tantusque simul mæror patres misericordiaeque sociorum peremptorum indigne, et pudor non latius auxilii et ira in Carthaginenses metusque de summa rerum cepit, velut si jam ad portas hostis esset, ut tot uno tempore motibus animi turbati trepidarent magis quam consulerent. Nam neque hostem acriorem bellicosioresque secum congressum, nec rem Romanam tam desidem umquam fuisse atque inbellem. Sardos Corsosque et Histros atque Illyrios lacessisse magis quam exercuisse Romana arma, et cum Gallis tumultuatum verius quam belligeratum: Pœnum, hostem veteranum, trium et viginti annorum militia durissima inter Hispanas gentes semper victorem, duci acerrimo adsuetum, recentem ab excidio opulentissimæ urbis, Hiberum transire, trahere secum tot excitos Hispanorum populos, concitum avidas semper armorum Gallicas gentes: cum orbe terrarum bellum gerendum in Italia ac pro mœnibus Romanis esse.

XVII. Nominatæ jam antea consulibus provinciæ erant; tum sortiri jussi: Cornelio Hispania, Sempronio Africa cum Sicilia evenit. Sex in eum antum decretae legiones, et socium quantum ipsis videretur, et classis quanta parari posset. Quattuor et viginti peditum Romanorum millia sunt scripta et mille octingenti equites, sociorum quadraginta millia peditum, quatuor millia et quadringenti equites: naves ducentæ viginti quinqueremes, celoces viginti deducti. Latum inde ad populum, vellent, juberent, populo Carthaginensi bellum indicere: ejusque belli causa supplicatio per urbem habita atque adorati dii, ut bene ac feliciter eveniret quod bellum populus Romanus jussisset. Inter consules ita copiae divisæ: Sempronio datæ legiones duæ, ea quaterna millia erant peditum et trecenti equites, et sociorum sedecim millia peditum, equites mille octingenti, naves longæ centum sexaginta, celoces duodecim: cum his terrestribus maritimisque copiis Ti. Sempronius missus in Siciliam, ita in Africam transmissurus, si ad arcendum Italia Pœnum consul alter satis esset: Cornelio minus copiarum datum, quia L. Manlius prætor et ipse cum haud invalido præsidio in Galliam mittebatur: navium maxime Cornelio numerus deminutus: sexaginta quinqueremes datæ, neque enim mari venturum aut ea parte belli dimicaturum hostem credebant, et duæ Romanæ legiones cum suo justo equitatu et quattuordecim millibus socio-rum peditum, equitibus mille sexcentis. Duas legiones Romanas et decem millia sociorum peditum, mille equites socios, sexcentos Romanos Gallia provincia eodem versa in Punicum bellum habuit.

XVIII. His ita comparatis, ut omnia justa ante bellum fierent, legatos maiores natu Q. Fabium, M. Livium, L. Æmilium, C. Licinium, Q. Bæbium in Africam mittunt ad percunctandos Carthaginienses, publice consilio Hannibal Saguntum oppugnasset, et, si, id quod facturi videbantur, faterentur ac defenderent publico consilio factum, ut indicerent populo Carthaginiensi bellum. Romani postquam Carthaginem venerunt, cum senatus datus esset, et Q. Fabius nihil ultra quam unum, quod mandatum erat, percunctatus esset, tum ex Carthaginiensibus unus: "Præceps vestra, Romani, et prior legatio fuit, cum Hannibalem tamquam suo consilio Saguntum oppugnantem deposcebatis: ceterum hæc legatio verbis adhuc lenior est, re asperior: tunc enim Hannibal et insimulabatur et deposcebatur, nunc ab nobis et confessio culpæ exprimitur et, ut a confessis, res extemplo repetuntur. Ego autem non, privato publice consilio Saguntum oppugnatum sit, querendum censeam, sed utrum jure an injuria. Nostra enim hæc quæstio atque animadversio in civem nostrum est, quid nostro aut suo fecerit arbitrio: vobiscum una disceptatio est, licueritne per fœdus fieri. Itaque quoniam discerni placet, quid publico consilio, quid sua sponte imperatores faciant, nobis vobiscum fœdus est a C. Lutatio consule ictum, in quo cum caveretur utrumque sociis, nihil de Saguntinis, necdum enim erant socii vestri, cautum est. At enim eo fœdere, quod cum Hasdrubale ictum est, Saguntini excipiuntur. Adversus quod ego nihil dicturus sum nisi quod a vobis didici: vos enim, quod C. Lutatius consul primo nobiscum fœdus fecit, quia neque auctoritate patrum nec populi jussu ictum erat, negastis vos eo teneri: itaque aliud de integro fœdus publico consilio ictum est. Si vos non tenent fœdera vestra nisi ex auctoritate aut jussu vestro icta, ne nos quidem Hasdrubalis fœdus, quod nobis insciis fecit, obligare potuit. Proinde omittite Sagunti atque Hiberi mentionem facere et, quod diu parturit animus vester, aliquando pariat." Tum Romanus, sinu ex toga facto, "hic" inquit "vobis bellum et pacem portamus: utrum placet, sumite." Sub hanc vocem haud minus ferociter, "daret utrum vellet," subclamatum est. Et cum is iterum sinu effuso "bellum dare" dixisset, "accipere se" omnes responderunt "et, quibus acciperent animis, iisdem se gesturos."

XIX. Hæc directa percunctatio ac denuntiatio belli magis ex

dignitate populi Romani visa est quam de fœderum jure verbis disceptare, cum ante, tum maxime Sagunto excisa. Nam si verborum disceptationis res esset, quid fœdus Hasdrubalis cum Lutatii priore fœdere, quod mutatum est, comparandum erat, cum in Lutatii fœdere diserte additum esset, ita id ratum fore si populus censuisset: in Hasdrubalis fœdere nec exceptum tale quicquam fuerit, et tot annorum silentio ita vivo eo comprobatum sit fœdus, ut ne mortuo quidem auctore quicquam mutaretur. Quamquam, et si priore fœdere staretur, satis cautum erat Saguntinis, sociis utrorumque exceptis. Nam neque additum erat "iis qui tunc essent," nec "re qui postea adsumerentur." Et cum adsumere novos liceret socios, quis æquum censeret aut ob nulla quemquam merita in amicitiam recipi, aut receptos in fidem non defendi? tantum ne Carthaginensium socii aut sollicitarentur ad defectionem aut sua sponte desciscentes reciperentur. — Legati Romani ab Carthagine, sicuti iis Romæ imperatum erat, in Hispaniam, ut adirent civitates, ut in societatem perlicerent aut averterent a Pœnis, trajecerunt. Ad Bargusios primum venerunt, a quibus benigne excepti, quia tædebat imperii Punici, multos trans Hiberum pupulos ad cupidinem novæ fortunæ erexerunt. Inde est ventum ad Volcianos, quorum celebre per Hispaniam responsum ceteros populos ab societate Romana avertit. Ita enim maximus natu ex iis in concilio respondit: "Quæ verecundia est, Romani, postulare vos uti vestram Carthaginensium amicitiam præponamus, cum, qui id fecerunt, Saguntinos crudelius, quam Pœnus hostis prodidit, vos socii prodideritis? Ibi quærat socios censeo, ubi Saguntina clades ignota est: Hispanis populis sic ut lugubre, ita insigne documentum Sagunti ruinæ erunt, ne quis fidei Romanæ aut societati confidat." Inde extemplo abire finibus Volcianorum jussi ab nullo deinde concilio Hispaniæ benigniora verba tulere. Ita nequiquam peragrata Hispania in Galliam transeunt.

XX. In iis nova terribilisque species visa est, quod armati—ita mos gentis erat—in concilium venerunt. Cum verbis extolles gloriam virtutemque populi Romani ac magnitudinem imperii petissent, ne Pœno bellum Italiæ inferenti per agros urbesque suas transitum darent, tantus cum fremitu risus dicitur ortus, ut vix a magistratibus majoribusque natu juvenum sedaretur: adeo stolidi impudensque postulatio visa est, censere, ne in Italiam transmittant Galli bellum, ipsos id advertere in se, agrosque suos pro alienis populandos objicere. Sedato tandem fremitu responsum legatis est, "neque Romanorum in se meritam esse neque Carthaginensium injuriam, ob quæ aut pro

"Romanis aut adversus Pœnos sumant arma: contra ea audire sese, gentis suæ homines agro finibusque Italiæ pelli a populo Romano stipendiumque pendere et cetera indigna pati." Eadem ferme in ceteris Galliæ conciliis dicta auditaque, nec hospitale quicquam pacatumve satis prius auditum quam Massiliam venere. Ibi omnia, ab sociis inquisita cum cura ac fide, cognita, "præoccupatos jam ante ab Hannibale Gallorum animos esse: sed ne illi quidem ipsi satis mitem gentem fore—adeo ferocia atque indomita ingenia esse—ni subinde auro, cujus avidissima gens est, principum animi conciliuntur." Ita peragratis Hispaniæ et Galliæ populis, legati Romam redeunt haud ita multo postquam consules in provincias profecti erant. Civitatem omnem in expectatione belli erectam invenerunt, satis constante fama jam Hiberum Pœnos tramisisse.

XXI. Hannibal Sagunto capto Carthaginem novam in hiberna concesserat, ibique auditis, quæ Romæ, quæque Carthagine acta decretaque forent, seque non ducem solum sed etiam causam esse belli, partitis divenditisque reliquis prædæ, nihil ultra differendum ratus, Hispani generis milites convocat: "Credo ego vos," inquit, "socii, et ipsos cernere, pacatis omnibus Hispaniæ populis, aut finientiam nobis militiam exercitusque dimittendos esse aut in alias terras transferendum bellum? ita enim hæc gentes non pacis solum sed etiam victoriæ bonis floreant, si ex aliis gentibus prædam et gloriam quæremus. Itaque cum longinqua a domo instet militia, incertumque sit, quando domos vestras et quæ cuique ibi cara sunt visuri sitis, si quis vestrum suos invisere vult, commeatum do. Primo vere edicto adsitis, ut, diis bene juvantibus, bellum ingentis gloriæ prædæque futurum incipiamus." Omnibus fere visendi domos oblata ultro potestas grata erat et jam desiderantibus suos, et longius in futurum providentibus desiderium: per totum tempus hiemis quies inter labores aut jam exhaustos aut mox exhaustiendos renovavit corpora animosque ad omnia de integro patienda: vere primo ad edictum convenere. Hannibal, cum recensuisset omnium gentium auxilia, Gades profectus Herculi vota exsolvit, novisque se obligat votis si cetera prospera evenissent. Inde partiens curas simul in inferendum atque arcendum bellum, ne, dum ipse terrestri per Hispaniam Galliasque itinere Italiam peteret, nuda aperta que Romanis Africa ab Sicilia esset, valido præsidio firmare eam statuit. Pro eo supplementum ipse ex Africa, maxime jaculatorum, levium armis, petiit, ut Afri in Hispania, in Africa Hispani—melior procul ab domo futurus uterque miles—velut mutuis pigneribus obligatis stipendia facerent. Tredecim millia octingentos quinquaginta pedites cætratos misit in Africam, et funditores Baliares octingentos septuaginta, equites mixtos ex multis gentibus mille ducentos. Has copias partim Carthagini præsidio esse, partim distribui per Africam jubet. Simul conquisitoribus in civitates missis, quattuor millia conscripta delectæ juventutis, præsidium eosdem et obsides, duci Carthaginem jubet.

XXII. Neque Hispaniam negligendam ratus—atque id eo haud minus, quod haud ignarus erat circumitam ab Romanis eam legatis ad sollicitandos principum animos—Hasdrubali fratri, viro impigro, eam provinciam destinat, firmatque eum Africis maxime præsidiis, peditum Afrorum undecim millibus octingentis quinquaginta, Liguribus trecentis, Baliaribus quingentis. Ad hæc peditum auxilia additi equites Libyphœniceæ — mixtum Punicum Afris genus—quadringenti quinquaginta, et Numidæ Maurique accolæ Oceani ad mille octingenti, et parva Ilergetum manus ex Hispania, ducenti equites, et ne quid terrestris deesset auxilii genus, elephantum viginti unus. Classis præterea data ad tuendam maritimam oram, quia, qua parte belli vicerant, ea tum quoque rem gesturos Romanos credi poterat, quinquaginta quinqueremes, quadriremes duæ, triremes quinque: sed aptæ instructæque remigio triginta et duæ quinqueremes erant et triremes quinque. Ab Gallibus Carthaginem ad hiberna exercitus redit, atque inde profectus præter Elovissam urbem ad Hiberum maritimam oram ducit. Ibi fama est in quiete visum ab eo juvenem divina specie, qui “se ab Jove” diceret “ducem in Italiam” Hannibali missum: proinde sequeretur neque usquam a se “deflecteret oculos.” Pavidum primo, nusquam circumspicientem aut respicientem, secutum, deinde cura ingenii humani, cum, quidnam id esset quod respicere vetitus esset, agigaret animo, temperare oculis nequivisse eum: vidisse post sese serpentem mira magnitudine cum ingenti arborum ac virgultorum strage ferri ac post insequi cum fragore cæli nimbum. Tum, “quæ moles” ea quidve prodigii esset,” quærentem audisse “vastitatem Italiæ” esse: pergeret porro ire nec ultra inquireret sineretque fata in “occulto esse.”

XXIII. Hoc visu lætus tripertito Hiberum copias trajecit, præmissis qui Gallorum animos, qua traducendus exercitus erat, donis conciliarent, Alpiumque transitus specularentur. Nonaginta millia peditum, duodecim millia equitum Hiberum traduxit. Ilergetes inde Bargusiosque et Ausetanos et Lacetaniam, quæ subjecta Pyrenæis montibus est, subegit, oræque huic omni præfecit Hannonem, ut fauces quæ Hispanias Galliis jungunt in potestate essent. Decem millia peditum Hannoni ad præsidium retinendæ regionis data et mille equites. Postquam per Pyrenæum saltum traduci exercitus est cœptus, rumorque per barbaros manavit certior de bello Romano, tria millia inde Carpetanorum peditum iter averterunt. Constabat non tam bello motos quam longinquitate viæ insuperabilique Alpium transitu. Hannibal, quia revocare aut vi retinere eos anceps erat, ne ceterorum etiam feroces animi iritarentur, supra septem millia hominum domos remisit, quos et ipse gravari militia senserat, Carpetanos quoque ab se dimissos simulans.

XXIV. Inde, ne mora atque otium animos sollicitaret, cum reliquis copiis Pyrenæum transgreditur et ad oppidum Iliberri castra locat. Galli quanquam Italiæ bellum inferri audiebant, tamen, quia vi subactos trans Pyrenæum Hispanos fama erat præsidiaque valida inposita, metu servitutis ad arma consternati, Ruscinonem aliquot populi conveniunt. Quod ubi Hannibali nuntiatum est, moram magis quam bellum metuens oratores ad regulos eorum misit, "conloqui semet ipsum cum iis velle, et vel illi "propius Iliberrim accederent, vel se Ruscinonem processurum, "ut ex propinquo congressus facilius esset : nam et accepturum "eos in castra sua se lætum, nec cunctanter se ipsum ad eos venturum : hospitem enim se Galliæ non hostem advenisse, nec "stricturum ante gladium, si per Gallos liceat, quam in Italiam "venisset." Et per nuntios quidem hæc. Ut vero reguli Gallorum, castris ad Iliberrim extemplo motis, haud gravanter ad Pœnum venerunt, capti donis cum bona pace exercitum per fines suos præter Ruscinonem oppidum transmiserunt.

XXV. In Italiam interim nihil ultra quam Hiberum transisse Hannibalem a Massiliensium legatis Romam perlatum erat, cum, perinde ac si Alpes jam transisset, Boii, sollicitatis Insubribus, defecerunt, nec tam ob veteres in populum Romanum iras quam quod nuper circa Padum, Placentiam Cremonamque colonias in agrum Gallicum deductas ægre patiebantur. Itaque, armis repente arreptis, in eum ipsum agrum impetu facto, tantum terroris ac tumultus fecerunt, ut non agrestis modo multitudo sed ipsi triumviri Romani, qui ad agrum venerant adsignandum, diffisi Placentiæ mœnibus Mutinam confugerint, C. Lutatius, C. Servilius, M. Annius. Lutati nomen haud dubium est : pro C. Servilio et M. Annio Q. Acilium et C. Herennium habent quidam annales, alii P. Cornelium Asinam et C. Papirium MASONEM. Id quoque dubium est, legati ad expostulandum missi ad Boios violati sint, an in triumviros agrum metantes impetus sit factus. Mutinæ cum obsiderentur, et gens ad oppugnandarum urbium artes rudis, pigerrima eadem ad militaria opera, segnis intactis adsideret muris, simulari cœptum de pace agi, evocatique ab Gallorum principibus legati ad conloquium non contra jus modò gentium sed violata etiam, quæ data in id tempus erat, fide, comprehenduntur, negantibus Gallis, nisi obsides sibi redderentur, eos dimissuros. Cum hæc de legatis nuntiata essent, et Mutina præsidiumque in periculo esset, L. Manlius prætor, ira accensus, effusum agmen ad Mutinam ducit. Silvæ tunc circumiam erant, plerisque incultis: ibi inexplorato profectus, in insidias præcipitatus; multaque cum cæde suorum ægre in apertos campos emersit. Ibi castra communita, et, quia Gallis ad tentanda ea defuit spes, refectioni sunt militum animi, quamquam ad quingentos cecidisse satis constabat. Iter deinde de integro cœptum, nec, dum per patentia loca ducebatur agmen, comparuit hostis: ubi rursus silvæ intratæ, tum postremos adorti, cum magna trepidatione ac pavore omnium septingentos milites occiderunt, sex signa ademere. Finis et Gallis territandi, et pavendi fuit Romanis, ut e saltu invio atque inpedito evasere: inde apertis locis facile tutantes agmen Romani Tannetum, vicum propinquum Pado, contendere: ibi se munimento ad tempus commeatibusque fluminis et Brixianorum etiam Gallorum auxilio adversus crescentem in dies multitudinem hostium tutabantur.

XXVI. Qui tumultus repens postquam est Romam perlatus, et Punicum insuper Gallico bellum auctum patres acceperunt, C. Atilium prætorem cum una legione Romana et quinque millibus sociorum delectu novo a consule conscriptis auxilium ferre Manlio jubent, qui sine ullo certamine—abscesserant enim metu hostes—Tannetum pervenit. Et P. Cornelius in locum ejus, quæ missa cum prætore erat, transcripta legione nova, profectus ab urbe sexaginta longis navibus præter oram Etruriæ Ligurumque et inde Saluvium montes, pervenit Massiliam et ad proximum ostium Rhodani—pluribus enim divisus amnis in mare decurrit—castra locat, vixdum satis credens Hannibalem superasse Pyrenæos montes. Quem ut de Rhodani quoque transitu agitare animadvertit, incertus quonam ei loco occurreret, necdum satis refectionis ab jactatione maritima militibus, trecentos interim delectos equites, ducibus Massiliensibus et auxiliariis Gallis, ad exploranda omnia visendosque ex tuto hostes præmittit. Hannibal, ceteris metu aut pretio pacatis, jam in Volcarum pervenerat agrum gentis validæ: colunt autem circa utramque ripam Rhodani, sed diffusi citiore agro arceri Pœnum posse, ut flumen pro munimento haberent, omnibus ferme suis trans Rhodanum trajectis, ulteriorem ripam amnis armis obtinebant. Ceteros accolæ fluminis Hannibal, et eorum ipsorum quos sedes suæ tenuerant, simul perlicit donis ad naves undique contrahendas fabricandasque, simul et ipsi trajici exercitum leviusque quam primum regionem suam tanta hominum urgente turba cupiebant. Itaque ingens coacta vis navium est lintriumque temere ad vicinalem usum paratarum: novasque alias primum Galli inchoantes cavabant ex singulis arboribus, deinde et ipsi milites simul copia materiæ, simul facilitate operis inducti, alveos informes, nihil, dum modo innare aquæ et capere onera possent, curantes, raptim, quibus se suaque transveherent, faciebant.

XXVII. Jamque omnibus satis comparatis ad trajiciendum, terrebant ex adverso hostes, omnem ripam equites virique obtinentes: quos ut averteret, Hannonem Bomilcaris filium vigilia prima noctis cum parte copiarum, maxime Hispanis, adverso flumine ire iter unius diei jubet et, ubi primum possit, quam occultissime trajecto amni circumducere agmen, ut, cum opus facto sit, adoriatur ab tergo hostem. Ad id dati duces Galli edocent, inde millia quinque et viginti ferme supra, parvæ insulæ circumfusum amnem latiore, ubi dividebatur, eoque minus alto alveo transitum ostendere. Ibi raptim cæsa materia ratesque fabricatæ, in quibus equi virique et alia onera trajicerentur. Hispani sine ulla mole, in utres vestimentis coniectis, ipsi cætris superpositis incubantes flumen transverere: et alius exercitus, ratibus junctis trajectus, castris prope flumen positus, nocturno itinere, atque operis labore fessus, quiete unius diei reficitur, intento duce ad consilium opportune exsequendum. Postero die profecti ex loco prodito fumo significant transisse et haud procul abesse. Quod ubi accepit Hannibal, ne tempori deesset, dat signum ad trajiciendum. Jam paratas aptatasque habebat pedes lintres: eques fere propter equos nantes navium agmen ad excipiendum adversi impetum fluminis parte superiore transmittens, tranquillitatem infra trajicientibus lintribus præbebat: equorum pars magna nantes loris a puppibus trahebantur præter eos, quos instratos frenatosque, ut exemplo egresso in ripam equiti usui essent, inposuerant in naves.

XXVIII. Galli occursant in ripam cum variis ululatibus cantuque moris sui quatientes scuta super capita vibrantesque dexteris tela, quamquam ex adverso terrebant tanta vis navium cum ingenti sono fluminis et clamore vario nautarum, militum, et qui nitebantur perrumpere impetum fluminis et qui ex altera ripa trajicientes suos hortabantur. Jam satis paventes adverso tumultu terribilior ab tergo adortus clamor, castris ab Hannone captis: mox et ipse aderat, ancepsque terror circumstabat, et e navibus tanta vi armatorum in terram evadente, et ab tergo improvisa premente acie. Galli postquam ultroque vim facere conati pellebantur, qua patere visum maxime iter, perrumpunt trepidique in vicos passim suos diffugiunt. Hannibal, ceteris copiis per otium trajectis, spernens jam Gallicos tumultus castra locat. Elephantorum trajiciendorum varia consilia fuisse credo, certe variata memoria actæ rei. Quidam, congregatis ad ripam elephantis, tradunt ferocissimum ex iis irritatum ab rectore suo, cum refugientem in aquam nantem sequeretur, traxisse gregem, ut quemque timentem altitudinem destitueret vadum, impetu ipso fluminis in alteram ripam rapiente. Ceterum magis constat ratibus trajectos, id ut tutius consilium ante rem foret, ita acta re ad fidem pronius est: ratem unam ducentos longam pedes, quinquaginta latam, a terra in amnem porrexerunt, quam, ne secunda aqua deferretur, pluribus validis retinaculis parte superiore ripæ religatam, pontis in modum humo injecta constraverunt, ut beluæ audacter velut per solum ingrederentur: altera ratis æque lata, longa pedes centum, ad trajiciendam flumen apta, huic copulata est, et, cum elephanti per stabilem ratem tamquam viam, prægredientibus feminis, acti, ubi in minorem adplicatam transgressi sunt, extemplo resolutis, quibus leviter adnexa erat, vinculis, ab actuariis aliquot navibus ad alteram ripam pertrahitur: ita primis expositis, alii deinde repetiti ac trajecti sunt. Nihil sane trepidabant, donec continenti velut ponte agerentur: primus erat pavor, cum soluta ab ceteris rate in altum raperentur: ibi urgentes inter se, cedentibus extremis ab aqua, trepidationis aliquantum edebant, donec quietem ipse timor circumspectantibus aquam fecisset. Excidere etiam sævientes quidam in flumen, sed pondere ipso stabiles, dejectis rectoribus, quærendis pedetentim vadis in terram evasere.

XXIX. Dum elephanti trajiciuntur, interim Hannibal Numidas equites quingentos ad castra Romana miserat speculatum, ubi, et quantæ copiæ essent et quid pararent. Huic alæ equitum missi, ut ante dictum est, ab ostio Rhodani trecenti Romanorum equites occurrunt: proelium atrocius quam pro numero pugnantium editur: nam præter multa vulnera cædes etiam prope par utrimque fuit, fugaque et pavor. Numidarum Romanis jam admodum fessis victoriam dedit. Victores ad centum sexaginta, nec omnes Romani, sed pars Gallorum, victi amplius ducenti ceciderunt. Hoc principium simul omenque belli, ut summæ rerum prosperum eventum, ita haud sane incruentam ancipitisque certaminis victoriam Romanis portendit. Ut re ita gesta ad utrumque ducem sui redierunt, nec Scipioni stare sententia poterat nisi ut ex consiliis coeptisque hostis et ipse conatus caperet: et Hannibalem incertum, utrum coeptum in Italiam intenderet iter an cum eo, qui primus se obtulisset Romanus exercitus, manus consereret, avertit a præsentī certamine Boiorum legatorum regulique Magali adventus, qui se duces itinerum, socios periculi fore affirmantes, integro bello, nusquam ante libatis viribus, Italiam adgrediendam censent. Multitudo timebat quidem hostem, nondum obliterata memoria superioris belli, sed magis iter immensum Alpesque—rem fama utique inexpertis horrendam—metuebat.

XXX. Itaque Hannibal, postquam ipsi sententia stetit pergere ire atque Italiam petere, advocata contione, varie militum versat animos castigando adhortandoque: “mirari se, quinam pectora “semper inpavida repens terror invaserit: per tot annos vincentes “eos stipendia facere, neque ante Hispania excessisse quam omnes “gentesque et terræ, quas duo diversa maria amplectantur, Car- “thaginiensium essent: indignatos deinde quod, quicumque “Saguntum obsedissent, velut ob noxam sibi dedit postulare “populus Romanus, Hiberum trajecisse ad delendum nomen “Romanorum liberandumque orbem terrarum. Tum nemini visum “id longum, cum ab occasu solis ad exortus intenderent iter: “nunc, postquam multo majorem partem itineris emensam cernant, “Pyrenæum saltum inter ferocissimas gentes superatum, Rhodanum, tantum amnem, tot millibus Gallorum prohibentibus, “domita etiam ipsius fluminis vi, trajectum, in conspectu Alpes “habere, quarum alterum latus Italiæ sit, in ipsis portis hostium “fatigatos subsistere, quid Alpes aliud esse credentes quam “montium altitudines? Fingerent altiores Pyrenæi jugis:— “nullas profecto terras cælum contingere nec inexcuperabiles “humano generi esse: Alpes quidem habitari, coli, gignere atque “alere animantes: pervias paucis esse: et exercitibus? Hos “ipsos, quos cernant, legatos non pinnis sublime elatos Alpes “transgressos: ne majores quidem eorum indigenas, sed advenas “Italiæ cultores, has ipsas Alpes ingentibus sæpe agminibus cum “liberis ac conjugibus migrantium modo tuto transmisisse. “Militi quidem armato nihil secum præter instrumenta belli “portanti quid invium aut inexcuperabile esse? Saguntum ut “caperetur, quid per octo menses periculi, quid laboris exhaustum esse? Romam, caput orbis terrarum, petentibus “quicquam adeo asperum atque arduum videri, quod inceptum “moretur? Cepisse quondam Gallos ea, quæ adiri posse Pœnus “desperet? Proinde aut cederent animo atque virtute genti “per eos dies totiens ab se victæ, aut itineris finem sperent “campum interjacentem Tiberi ac mœnibus Romanis.”

XXXI. His adhortationibus incitatos corpora curare atque ad iter se parare jubet. Postero die profectus adversa ripa Rhodani mediterranea Galliæ petit, non quia rector ad Alpes via esset, sed quantum a mari recessisset, minus obvium fore Romanum credens, cum quo, prius quam in Italiam ventum foret, non erat in animo manus conserere. Quartis castris ad Insulam pervenit. Ibi Isara Rhodanusque amnis diversis ex Alpibus decurrentes, agri aliquantum amplexi, confluent in unum: mediis campis Insulae nomen inditum: incolunt prope Allobroges, gens jam inde nulla Gallica gente opibus aut fama inferior. Tum discors erat: regni certamine ambigebant fratres: major et qui prius imperitarat, Brancus nomine, minore ab fratre et coetu juniorum, qui jure minus, vi plus poterat, pellebatur. Hujus seditionis peropportuna disceptatio cum ad Hannibalem delata esset, arbiter regni factus, quod ea senatus principumque sententia fuerat, imperium majori restituit. Ob id, meritum commeatu copiaeque rerum omnium, maxime vestis, est adjutus, quod infames frigoribus Alpes praeparari cogebant. Sedatis Hannibal ceteraminibus Allobrogum, cum jam Alpes peteret, non recta regione iter instituit sed ad laevam in Tricastinos flexit, inde per extremam oram Vocontiorum agri tendit in Tricorios haud usquam impedita via, priusquam ad Druentiam flumen pervenit. Is et ipse Alpinus amnis longe omnium Galliae fluminum difficillimus transitu est: nam, cum aquae vim vehat ingentem, non tamen navium patiens est, quia nullis coercitus ripis, pluribus simul, neque iisdem alveis fluens, nova semper vada novosque gurgites — et ob eadem pediti quoque incerta via est — ad hoc saxa, glareosa volvens, nihil stabile nec tutum ingredienti praebet. Et tum forte imbribus auctus ingentem transgredientibus tumultum fecit, cum super cetera trepidatione ipsi sua atque ineertis clamoribus turbarentur.

XXXII. P. Cornelius consul, triduo fere post, quam Hannibal a ripa Rhodani movit, quadrato agmine ad castra hostium venerat, nullam dimicandi moram factururus. Ceterum ubi deserta munita, nec facile se tantum progressos adsecuturum videt, ad mare ac naves rediit, tutius faciliusque ita descendentem ab Alpibus Hannibali occursurus. Ne tamen nuda auxiliis Romanis Hispania esset, quam provinciam sortitus erat, Cn. Scipionem fratrem cum maxima parte copiarum adversus Hasdrubalem misit, non ad tuendos tantummodo veteres socios conciliandosque novos sed etiam ad pellendum Hispania Hasdrubalem: ipse cum admodum exiguis copiis Genuam repetit, eo, qui circa Padum erat, exercitu Italiam defensurus. — Hannibal ab Druentia campestri maxime itinere ad Alpes cum bona pace incolentium ea loca Gallorum pervenit. Tum, quamquam fama prius, qua incerta in majus vero ferri solent, praecpta res erat, tamen ex propinquo visa montium altitudo nivesque caelo prope inmixtae, tecta informia inposita rupibus, pecora jumentaue torrida frigore, homines intonsi et inculti, animalia inanimaliaque omnia rigentis gelu, cetera visu quam dictu fœdiora, terrorem renovarunt. Erigentibus in primos agmen clivos apparuerunt imminentes tumulos insidentes montani, qui, si valles occultiores insedissent, coorti ad pugnam repente ingentem fugam stragemque dedissent. Hannibal consistere signa jussit, Gallisque ad visenda loca præmissis postquam comperit transitum ea non esse, castra inter confragosa omnia præruptaque quam extentissima potest valle locat. Tum per eosdem Gallos haud sane multum lingua moribusque abhorrentes, cum se inmiscuissent conloquiis montanorum, edoctus, interdiu tantum obsideri saltum, nocte in sua quemque dilabi tecta, luce prima subiit tumulos ut ex aperto atque interdiu vim per angustias facturus. Die deinde simulando aliud quam quod parabatur consumpto, cum eodem quo constiterant loco castra communissent, ubi primum digressos tumulis montanos laxatasque sensit custodias, pluribus ignibus quam pro numero manentium in speciem factis, impedimentisque cum equite relictis et maxima parte peditum, ipse cum expeditis—acerrimo quoque viro—raptim angustias evadit, iisque ipsis tumulis, quos hostes tenuerant, consedit.

XXXIII. Prima deinde luce castra mota, et agmen reliquum incedere cepit. Jam montani signo dato ex castellis ad stationem solitam conveniebant, cum repente conspiciunt alios, arce occupata sua, super caput imminentes, alios via transire hostes. Utraque simul objecta res oculis animisque immobiles parumper eos defixit: deinde, ut trepidationem in angustiis suoque ipsum tumultu misceri agmen videre, equis maxime consternatis, quidquid adjecissent ipsi terroris satis ad perniciem fore rati, perversis rupibus juxta invia ac devia adsueta decurrunt. Tum vero simul ab hostibus, simul ab iniquitate locorum Pœni oppugnabantur; plusque inter ipsos, sibi quoque tendenti ut periculo prius evaderet, quam cum hostibus, certaminis erat. Et equi maxime infestum agmen faciebant, qui et clamoribus dissonis, quos nemora etiam percussæque valles augebant, territi trepidabant, et icti forte aut vulnerati adeo consternabantur ut stragem ingentem simul hominum ac sarcinarum omnis generis facerent. Multosque turba, cum præcípites diruptæque utrimque angustiae essent, in immensum altitudinis dejecit, quosdam et armatos: sed ruinæ maxime modo jumenta cum oneribus devolvebantur. Quæ quamquam fœda visu erant, stetit parumper tamen Hannibal ac suos continuit, ne tumultum ac trepidationem augeret: deinde, postquam interrumpi agmen vidit periculumque esse ne exutum impedimentis exercitum nequiquam incolumem traduxisset, decurrit ex superiore loco et, cum impetu ipso fudisset hostem, suis quoque tumultum auxit. Sed is tumultus momento temporis, postquam liberata itinera fuga montanorum erant, sedatur, nec per otium modo sed prope silentio mox omnes traducti. Castellum inde, quod caput ejus regionis erat, viculosque circumjectos capit, et captivo ac pecoribus per triduum exercitum aluit, et quia nec montanis primo percussis nec loco magno opere inpediebantur, aliquantum eo triduo viæ confecit.

XXXIV. Perventum inde ad frequentem cultoribus alium—ut inter montanos—populum. Ibi non bello aperto sed suis artibus—fraude et insidiis—est prope circumventus. Magno natu principes castellorum oratores ad Pœnum veniunt, “alienis malis—utili exemplo—doctos,” memorantes, “amicitiam malle quam vim experiri Pœnorum: itaque obedientes imperata facturos, “commeatum itinerisque duces et, ad fidem promissorum, obsides “acciperet.” Hannibal nec temere credendum nec aspernandum ratus, ne repudiati aperte hostes fierent, benigne cum respondisset, obsidibus, quos dabant, acceptis, et commeatu, quem in viam ipsi detulerant, usus, nequaquam ut inter pacatos, composito agmine duces eorum sequitur: primum agmen elephantum et equites erant, ipse post cum robore peditum circumspectans sollicitusque omnia incedebat. Ubi in augustiorem viam et parte altera subjectam jugo insuper imminenti ventum est, undique ex insidiis barbari a fronte, ab tergo coorti comminus eminens petunt, saxa ingentia in agmen devolvunt. Maxima ab tergo vis hominum urgebat: in eos versa peditum acies haud dubium fecit quin, nisi firmata extrema agminis fuissent, ingens in eo saltu accipienda clades fuerit. Tunc quoque ad extremum periculi ac prope perniciem ventum est: nam dum cunctatur Hannibal dimittere agmen in angustias, quia non, ut ipse equitibus præsidio erat, ita peditibus quicquam ab tergo auxilii reliquerat, occurrentes per obliqua montani, interrupto medio agmine, viam insedere; noxque una Hannibali sine equitibus atque inpedimentis acta est.

XXXV. Postero die, jam segnius intercurrentibus barbaris, junctæ copię, saltusque haud sine clade, majore tamen jumentorum quam hominum pernicië, superatus. Inde montani pauciores jam et latrocinii magis quam belli more concursabant modo in primum, modo in novissimum agmen, utcumque aut locus opportunitatem daret, aut progressi morative aliquam occasionem fecissent. Elephantum, sicut per artas, præcipientes vias magna mora agebantur, ita tutum ab hostibus, quacumque incederent, quia insuetis adeundi propius metus erat, agmen præcedebant. Nono die in jugum Alpium perventum est per invia pleraque et errores, quos aut ducentium fraus aut, ubi fides, iis non esset, temere iunctæ valles a conjectantibus iter faciebant.

Biduum in iugo stativa habita; fessisque labore ac pugnando quies data militibus: jumenta quoque aliquot, quæ prolapsa in rupibus erant, sequendo vestigia agminis in castra pervenere. Fessis tædio tot malorum nivis etiam casus, occidente jam sidere Vergiliarum, ingentem terrorem adjecit. Per omnia nive oppleta cum, signis prima luce motis, segniter agmen incederet, pigris et desperatio in omnium vultu emerit, prægressus signa Hannibal in promontorio quodam, unde longe ac late prospectus erat, consistere jussis militibus Italiam ostentat, subjectosque Alpibus montibus Circumpadanos campos, "mœniaque eos tum transcendere non Italiæ mædo, sed etiam urbis Romanæ; cetera planæ, "proclivia fore, uno aut summo altero proelio arcem et caput "Italiæ in manu ac potestate habituros." Procedere inde agmen coepit, jam nihil ne hostibus quidem præter parva furta per occasionem tentantibus. Ceterum iter multo quam in ascensu fuerat, ut pleraque Alpium ab Italia, sicut breviora, ita arrectiora sunt, difficilior fuit. Omnis enim ferme via præceps, angusta, lubrica erat, ut neque sustinere se ab lapsu possent nec, qui paulum titubassent, hæerere adfecti vestigio suo, alique super alios et jumenta et homines occiderent.

XXXVI. Ventum deinde ad multo angustiore rupem atque ita rectis saxis, ut ægre expeditus miles tentabundus, manibusque retinens virgulta ac stirpes circa eminentes, demittere sese posset. Natura locus jam ante præceps, recenti lapsu terræ in pedum mille admodum altitudinem abruptus erat. Ibi cum velut ad finem viæ equites constitissent, miranti Hannibali, quæ res moraretur agmen, nuntiatur rupem inviam esse. Digressus deinde ipse ad locum visendum: haud dubia res visa, quin per inviam circa nec trita antea, quamvis longo ambitu, circumduceret agmen. Ea vero via insuperabilis fuit: nam cum super veterem nivem intactam nova modicæ altitudinis esset, molli nec peraltæ facile pedes ingredientium insistebant: ut vero tot hominum jumentorumque incessu dilapsa est, per nudam infra glaciem fluentemque tabem liquescentis nivis ingrediebantur. Tætra ibi luctatio erat, ut a lubrica glacie non recipiente vestigium, et in prono citius pede se fallente, ut, seu manibus in adsurgendo seu genu se adjuvissent, ipsis adminiculis prolapsis, iterum corruerent: nec stirpes circa radicesve, ad quas pede aut manu quisquam eniti posset, erant: ita in levi tantum glacie tabidaque nive volutabantur. Jumenta secabant interdum etiam tamen infimam ingredientia nivem, et prolapsa, jactandis gravius in connitendo ungulis, penitus perfringebant, ut pleraque, velut pedica capta, hæerent in dura et alta concreta glacie.

XXXVII. Tandem nequiquam jumentis atque hominibus

fatigatis, castra in jugo posita, ægerrime ad id ipsum loco purgato; tantum nivis fodiendum atque egerendum fuit. Inde ad rupem muniendam, per quam unam via esse poterat, milites ducti, cum cædendum esset saxum, arboribus circa inmanibus dejectis detruncatisque, struem ingentem lignorum faciunt, eamque, cum et vis venti apta faciendo igni coorta esset, succendunt, ardentiaque saxa infuso aceto putrefaciunt. Ita torridam incendio rupem ferro pandunt, molliuntque anfractibus modicis clivos, ut non jumenta solum, sed elephanti etiam deduci possent. quadriduum circa rupem consumptum, jumentis prope fame absumentis: nuda enim fere cacumina sunt et, si quid est pabuli, obruunt nives: inferiora valles, apricos quosdam colles habent, rivosque prope silvas et jam humano cultu digniora loca: ibi jumenta in pabulum missa, et quies muniendo fessis hominibus data triduo. Inde ad planum descensum, et jam locis mollioribus et accolarum ingenis.

XXXVIII. Hoc maxime modo in Italiam perventum est quinto mense a Carthagine nova, ut quidam auctores sunt, quinto decimo die Alpibus superatis. Quantæ copiæ transgresso in Italiam Hannibali fuerint, nequaquam inter auctores constat. Qui plurimum, centum millia peditum, viginti equitum fuisse scribunt: qui minimum, viginti millia peditum, sex equitum. L. Cincius Alimenus, qui captum se ab Hannibale scribit, maxime auctor moveret, nisi confunderet numerum, Gallis Liguriisque additis: cum his octoginta millia peditum, decem equitum adducta: in Italia magis adfluxisse verissimum est, et ita quidam auctores sunt: ex ipso autem audisse Hannibale, postquam Rhodanum transierit, triginta sex millia hominum, ingentemque numerum equorum et aliorum jumentorum amisisse e Taurinis, quæ Galliæ proxima gens erat, in Italiam digressum. Id cum inter omnes constet, eo magis miror ambigi, quam Alpes transierit, et vulgo credere Pœnino—atque inde nomen ei jugo Alpium inditum—transgressum, Coelium per Cremonis jugum dicere transisse: qui ambo saltus eum non in Taurinos sed per Salassos montanos ad Libuos Gallos deduxerint: nec verisimile est ea tum ad Galliam patuisse itinera; utique quæ ad Pœninum ferunt obsepta gentibus semigermanis fuissent: neque, hercule, nomen montibus his, si quem forte id movet, ab transitu Pœnorum ullo Seduni, Veragri, incolæ jugi ejus, norint inditum, sed ab eo quem in summo sacratum vertice Pœninum montani appellant.

XXXIX. Peropportune ad principia rerum Taurinis, proximæ genti, adverses Insubres motum bellum erat. Sed armare exercitum Hannibal, ut parti alteri auxilio esset, in reficiendo maxime sentientem contracta ante mala, non poterat: otium enim ex labore, copia ex inopia, cultus ex illuvie tabeque, squalida et prope efferata corpora varie movebat. Ea P. Cornelio consuli causa fuit, cum Pisas navibus venisset, exercitu a Manlio Atilioque accepto tirone, et in novis ignominiiis trepido, ad Padum festinandi, ut cum hoste nondum refeito manus consereret. Sed cum Placentiam consul venit, jam e stativis moverat Hannibal, Taurinorumque unam urbem, caput gentis ejus, quia volentis in amicitiam non veniebat, vi expugnarat; et junxisset sibi non metu solum sed etiam voluntate Gallos accolae Padi, ni eos circumspectantes defectionis tempus subito adventu consuli oppressisset. Et Hannibal movit ex Taurinis, incertos, quæ pars sequenda esset, Gallos præsentem secuturos esse ratus. Jam prope in conspectu erant exercitus, convenerantque duces sicuti inter se nondum satis noti, ita jam imbutus uterque quadam admiratione alterius. Nam Hannibalis et apud Romanos jam ante Sagunti excidium celeberrimum nomen erat, et Scipionem Hannibal eo ipso, quod adversus se dux potissimum lectus esset, præstantem virum credebat. Et auxerant inter se opinionem, Scipio, quod, relictus in Gallia, obvius fuerat in Italian transgresso Hannibali, Hannibal et conatu tam audaci trajiciendarum Alpium, et effectum. Occupavit tamen Scipio Padum trajicere, et ad Ticinum amnem motis castris, priusquam educeret in aciem, adhortandorum militum causa, talem orationem est exorsus.

XL. " Si eum exercitum, milites, educerem in aciem, quem in
 " Gallia mecum habui, supersedissem loqui apud vos. Quid enim
 " adhortari referret aut eos equites, qui equitatum hostium ad Rhodanum flumen egregie vicissent, aut eas legiones, cum quibus
 " fugientem hunc ipsum hostem secutus, confessionem cedentis ac
 " detractantis certamen pro victoria habui? nunc, quia ille exercitus, Hispaniæ provinciæ scriptus, ibi cum fratre Cn. Scipione
 " meis auspiciis rem gerit, ubi eum gerere senatus populusque
 " Romanus voluit, ego, ut consilem ducem adversus Hannibalem
 " ac Pœnos haberetis, ipse me huic voluntario certamini obtuli,
 " novo imperatori apud novos milites pauca facienda sunt.
 " Nec genus belli neve hostem ignoretis, cum his est vobis,
 " milites, pugnandum, quos terra marique priore bello vicistis,
 " a quibus stipendium per viginti annos exegistis, a quibus capta
 " belli præmia, Siciliam ac Sardiniam, habetis. Erit igitur in hoc
 " certamine is vobis illisque animus, qui victoribus et victis esse
 " solet. Nec nunc illi, quia audent, sed quia necesse est, pugnaturi sunt, nisi creditis, qui exercitu incolumi pugnam detracta-
 " vere, eos duabus partibus peditum equitumque in transitu

“Alpium amissis, quia plures pæne perierint quam supersint, plus spei nactus esse. At enim pauci quidem sunt sed vigentes animis corporibusque, quorum robora ac vires vix sustinere vis ulla possit: effigies, immo umbrae hominum, fame, frigore, inluvie, squalore enecti, contusi, ac debilitati inter saxa rupesque: ad hoc præusti artus, nive rigentes nervi, membra torrida gelu, quassata fractaque arma, claudi ac debiles equi: cum hoc equite, cum hoc peditum pugnaturi estis; reliquias extremas hostium, non hostem habebitis. Ac nihil magis vereor, ne cui umquam, vos cum pugnaveritis, Alpes viciisse Hannibalem videantur: sed ita forsitan decuit, cum fœderum ruptore duce ac populo deos ipsos sine ulla humana ope committere ac profligare bellum, nos, qui secundum deos violati sumus, commissum ac profligatum conficere.”

XLI. “Non vereor ne quis me hæc vestri adhortandi causa magnifice loqui existimet, ipsum aliter animo adfectum esse: licuit in Hispaniam provinciam meam, quo jam profectus eram, cum exercitu ire meo, ubi et fratrem consilii participem ac periculi socium haberem, et Hasdrubalem potius quam Hannibalem hostem, et minorem haud dubie molem belli: tamen, cum præterveherer navibus Galliae oram, ad famam hujus hostis in terram egressus, præmisso equitatu, ad Rhodanum movi castra. Equestri prælio, qua parte copiarum consensendi manum fortuna data est, hostem fudi: peditum agmen, quod in modum fugientium raptim agebatur, quia adsequi terra non poteram, neque regressus ad naves erat, quanta maxime potui celeritate, tanto maris terrarumque circuitu, in radicibus prope Alpium huic timendo hosti obviui. Utrum, cum declinare certamen, improvisis incidisse videor an occurrere in vestigiis ejus, lacessere ac trahere ad decernendum? Experiri juvat, utrum alios repente Carthaginienses per viginti annos terra ediderit, an iidem sint qui ad Ægates pugnaverint insulas, et quos ab Eryce duodevicens denariis æstimatos emisistis: et utrum Hannibal hic sit æmulus itinerum Herculis, ut ipse fert, an vectigalis stipendiariusque et servus populi Romani a patre relictus: quem nisi Saguntinum scelus agitare, respiceret profecto, si non patriam victam, domum certe patremque, et fœdera Hamilcaris scripta manu, qui, jussus ab consule nostro, præsidium deduxit ab Eryce, qui graves inpositas victis Carthaginensibus leges fremens mœrensque acceperat, qui decedens Sicilia stipendium populo Romano dare pactus est. Itaque vos ego, milites, non eo solum animo quo adversus alios hostes soletis pugnare velim, sed cum indignatione quadam atque ira, velut si servos videatis vestros arma repente contra vos

XLII. Hæc apud Romanos consul. Hannibal rebus prius quam verbis adhortandos milites ratus, circumdato ad spectaculum exercitu, captivos montanos vinctos in medio statuit, armisque Gallicis ante pedes eorum projectis, interrogare interpretem jussit, æquis, si vinculis levaretur, armaque et equum victor acciperet, decertare ferro vellet. Cum ad unum omnes ferrum pugnæque poscerent, et dejecta in id sors esset, se quisque eum optabat quem fortuna in id certamen legeret, et, cujusque sors exciderat, alacer, inter gratulantes gaudio exultans, cum sui moris tripudiis arma raptim capiebat. Ubi vero dimicaret, is habitus animorum non inter ejusdem modo conditionis homines erat sed etiam inter spectantes vulgo, ut non vincentium magis quam bene morientium fortuna laudaretur.

XLIII. Dum sic, aliquot spectatis paribus, adfectos dimisisset, contione inde advocata ita apud eos locutus fertur. “Si, quem animum in alienæ sortis exemplo paulo ante habuistis, eundem mox in æstimanda fortuna vestra habueritis, vicimus, milites. Neque enim spectaculum modo illud, sed quædam veluti imago vestræ conditionis erat. Ac nescio an majora vincula majoresque necessitates vobis quam captivis vestris fortuna circumdederit: dextra lævaque duo maria claudunt, nullam ne ad effugium quidem navem habentibus; circa Padus amnis, major Padus ac violentior Rhodano; ab tergo Alpes urgent vix integris vobis ac vigentibus transitæ: hic vincendum aut moriendum, milites, est, ubi primum hosti occurristis.

"Et eadem fortuna, quæ necessitatem pugnandi inposuit,
 "præmia vobis ea victoribus proponit, quibus ampliora homines
 "ne ab diis quidem immortalibus optare solent. Si Siciliam
 "tantum ac Sardiniam, parentibus nostris ereptas, nostra virtute
 "recuperaturi essemus, satis tamen ampla pretia essent: quid-
 "quid Romani tot triumphis partum congestumque possident, id
 "omne vestrum cum ipsis dominis futurum est. In hanc tam
 "opimam mercedem agite, cum diis bene iuvantibus arma
 "capite. Satis adhuc in vastis Lusitaniæ Celtiberiæque monti-
 "bus, pecora consecrando, nullum emolumentum tot laborum
 "periculorumque vestrorum vidistis: tempus est jam opulenta
 "vos ac ditia stipendia facere, et magna operæ pretia mereri,
 "tantum itineris per tot montes fluminaque et tot armatas
 "gentes emensos. Hic vobis terminum laborum fortuna dedit;
 "hic dignam mercedem emeritis stipendiis dabit. Nec, quam
 "magni nominis bellum est, tam difficilem existimaritis victori-
 "fore: sæpe et contemptus hostis cruentum certamen edidit, et
 "inlyti populi regesque perlevi momento victi sunt: nam
 "dempto hoc uno fulgore nominis Romani, quid est cur illi
 "vobis conparandi sint? ut viginti annorum militiam vestram
 "cum illa virtute, cum illa fortuna taceam, ab Herculis columnis,
 "ab Oceano terminisque ultimis terrarum, per tot ferocissimos
 "Hispaniæ et Galliæ populos vincentes huc pervenistis: pug-"nabitis cum exercitu tirone, hac ipsa æstate cæso, victo,
 "circumsesso a Gallis, ignoto adhuc duci suo ignorantique
 "ducem. An me in prætorio patris, clarissimi imperatoris, prope
 "natum, certe eductum, domitorem Hispaniæ Galliæque, vic-
 "torem eundem non Alpinarum modo gentium sed ipsarum,
 "quod multo majus est, Alpium, cum semenstri hoc conferam
 "duce, desertore exercitus sui? cui si quis, demptis signis, Pœnos
 "Romanosque hodie ostendat, ignoraturum certum habeo, utrius
 "exercitus sit consul. Non ego illud parvi aestimo, milites,
 "quod nemo est vestrum, cujus non ante oculos ipse sæpe
 "militare aliquod ediderim facinus, cui non idem ego, virtutis
 "spectator, ac testis, notata temporibus locisque referre sua
 "possim decora: cum laudatis a me millies donatisque alumnus
 "prius omnium vestrum, quam imperator, procedam in aciem
 "adversus ignotos inter se ignorantesque.

XLIV. "Quocumque circumtuli oculos, plena omnia video
 "animorum ac roboris, veteranum peditem, generosissimarum
 "gentium equites frenatos infrenatosque, vos socios fidelissimos
 "fortissimosque, vos Carthaginienses cum ob patriam, tum ob
 "iram justissimam pugnatu-ros. Inferimus bellum, infestisque
 "signis descendimus in Italiam, tanto audacius fortiusque pug-

“natura quam hostis, quanto major spes, major est animus “inferentis vim quam arcantis. Accendit præterea et stimulat “animos dolor, injuria, indignitas: ad supplicium depoposcerunt “me ducem primum, deinde vos omnes qui Saguntum oppug-“nassetis; deditos ultimis cruciatibus adfecturi fuerunt. Crude-“lissima ac superbissima gens sua omnia suique arbitrii facit:
 “cum quibus bellum, cum quibus pacem habeamus, se modum “inponere æquum censet: circumscribit ineluditque nos terminis “montium, fluminumque quos non excedamus, neque eos quos “statuit terminos observat. ‘Ne transieris Hiberum: ne quid “rei tibi sit cum Saguntinis!’ ‘Ad Hiberum est Saguntum.’
 “‘Nusquam te vestigio moveris!’ ‘Parum est quod veterimas “provincias meas, Siciliam ac Sardiniam, adimis? Etiam His“panias? Et inde cessero, in Africam transcendes.’ Transcendes “autem dico? Duos, consules hujus anni, unum in Africam, “alterum in Hispaniam miserunt. Nihil umquam nobis relictum “est nisi quod armis vindicaremus. Illis timidis et ignavis esse “licet, qui respectum habent, quod sua terra, suus ager per tuta “ac pacata itinera fugientes accipiant: vobis necesse est fortibus “viris esse et, omnibus inter victoriam mortemve certa despe“ratione abruptis, aut vincere aut, si fortuna dubitabit, in “prædio potius quam in fuga mortem oppetere. Si hoc bene “fixum omnibus, destinatum in animo est, iterum dicam, vicistis:
 “nullum enim telum ad vincendum homini ab diis immortalibus “acrius datum est.”

XLV. Iis adhortationibus cum utrimque ad certamen accensi militum animi essent, Romani ponte Ticinum jungunt, tutandique pontis causa castellum insuper inponunt; Pœnus, hostibus opere occupatis, Maharbalem cum ala Numidarum, equitibus quingentis, ad depopulandos sociorum populi Romani agros mittit, Gallis parci quam maxime jubet, principumque animos ad defectionem sollicitari. Ponte perfecto traductus Romanus exercitus in agrum Insubrium, quinque millia passuum a Vico Tumulis consedit. Ibi Hannibal castra habebat, revocatoque propere Maharbali atque equitibus, cum instare certamen cerneret, nihil umquam satis dictum præmonitumque ad cohortandos milites ratus, vocatis ad contionem certa præmia pronuntiat, in quorum spem pugnarent:
 “Agrum sese daturum esse in Italia, Africa, Hispania, ubi quisque “velit, immunem ipsi qui accepisset liberisque: qui pecuniam “quamagrum maluisset, ei se argento satisfacturum: qui sociorum “cives Carthaginienses fieri vellent, potestatem facturum: qui do-“mos redire mallent, daturum se operam ne ejus suorum popu“larium mutata secum fortunam esse vellent:” servis quoque dominos prosecutis libertatem proponit, binaque pro his mancipia

dominis se redditurum. Eaque ut rata scirent fore, agnum læva manu, dextera silicem retinens, si falleret, Jovem ceterosque precatus deos, ita se mactarent quem ad modum ipse agnum mactasset, et secundum precationem caput pecudis saxo elisit. Tum vero omnes, velut diis auctoribus in spem suam quisque acceptis, id moræ, quod nondum pugnarent, ad potienda sperata rati, prælium uno animo et voce una poscunt.

XLVI. Apud Romanos haudquaquam tanta alacritas erat, super cetera recentibus etiam territis prodigiis: nam et lupo intraverat castra, laniatisque obviis, ipse intactus evaserat, et examen apum in arbore prætorio imminente consederat. Quibus procuratis, Scipio cum equitatu jaculatoribusque expeditis profectus, ad castra hostium ex propinquo, copiasque, quantas et cujus generis essent, specularandas, obvius fit Hannibali et ipsi cum equitibus ad exploranda circa loca progresso. Neutri alteros primo cernebant; densior deinde incessu tot hominum equorumque oriens pulvis signum propinquantium hostium fuit. Consistit utrumque agmen et ad prælium sese expediebant: Scipio jaculatores et Gallos equites in fronte locat, Romanos, sociorumque quod roboris fuit, in subsidiis: Hannibal frenatos equites in medium accipit, cornua Numidis firmat. Vixdum clamore sublato, jaculatores fugerunt inter subsidia ad secundam aciem: inde equitum certamen erat aliquamdiu anceps: dein, quia turbabant equos pedites intermixti, multis labentibus ex equis aut desilientibus, ubi suos premi circumventos vidissent, jam magna ex parte ad pedes pugna iverat, donec Numidæ, qui in cornibus erant, circumvecti paulum ab tergo se ostenderunt. Is pavor perculit Romanos; auxitque pavorem consulis vulnus, periculumque intercurso tum primum pubescentis filii propulsatum. Hic erat juvenis penes quem perfecti hujusce belli laus est, Africanus ob egregiam victoriam de Hannibale Pœnisque appellatus. Fuga tamen effusa jaculatorum maxime fuit, quos primos Numidæ invaserunt: alius confertus equitatus consulem in medium acceptum, non armis modo, sed etiam corporibus suis protegens, in castra nusquam trepide neque effuse cedendo reduxit. Servati consulis decus Cœlius ad servum natione Ligurum delegat: malim equidem de filio verum esse, quod et plures tradidere auctores, et fama obtinuit.

XLVII. Hoc primum cum Hannibale prælium fuit, quo facile apparuit et equitatu meliorem Pœnum esse, et ob id campos patentes, quales sunt inter Padum Alpesque, bello gerendo Romanis aptos non esse. Itaque proxima nocte, jussis militibus vasa silentio colligere, castra ab Ticino mota, festinatumque ad Padum est, ut ratibus, quibus junxerat flumen, nondum resolutis, sine tumultu atque insectatione hostis copias trajiceret. Prius Placentiam pervenere, quam satis sciret Hannibal ab Ticino profectos: tamen ad sexcentos moratorum in citiore ripa Padi æquiter ratem solventes cepit. Transire pontem non potuit, ut extrema resoluta erant, tota rate in secundam aquam labente. Cœlius auctor est Magonem cum equitatu et Hispanis peditibus flumen extemplo transnasse, ipsum Hannibalem per superiora Padi vada exercitum traduxisse, elephantis in ordinem ad sustinendum impetum fluminis oppositis. Ea peritis annis ejus vix fidem fecerunt; nam neque equites, armis equisque salvis, tantam vim fluminis superasse verisimile est, ut jam Hispanos omnes inflati travexerint utres; et multorum dierum circuitu Padi vada petenda fuerint, qua exercitus gravis impedimentis traduci posset: potiores apud me auctores sunt, qui biduo vix locum rate jungendo flumini inventum tradunt; ea cum Magone equites Hispanorum expeditos præmissos. Dum Hannibal, circa flumen legationibus Gallorum audiendis moratus, trajecit gravius peditum agmen, interim Mago equitesque ab transitu fluminis die unius itinere Placentiam ad hostes contendunt. Hannibal paucis post diebus sex millia a Placentia castra communivit, et postero die, id conspectu hostium acie directa, potestatem pugnae fecit.

XLVIII. Insequenti nocte cædes in castris Romanis, tumultu tamen quam re major, ab auxiliariis Gallis facta est. Ad duo millia peditum et ducenti equites vigilibus ad portas trucidatis, ad Hannibalem transfugiunt, quos Pœnus benigne adlocutus, et spe ingentium donorum accensos in civitates quemque suas ad sollicitandos popularium animos dimisit. Scipio cædem eam signum defectionis omnium Gallorum esse ratus, contactosque eo scelere, velut injecta rabie, ad arma ituros, quamquam gravis adhuc vulnere erat, tamen quarta vigilia noctis insequentis tacito agmine profectus ad Trebiam fluvium, jam in loca altiora collesque impeditiores equiti castra movet. Minus quam ad Ticinum fessilit; missisque Hannibal primum Numidis, deinde omni equitatu, turbasset utique novissimum agmen, ni aviditate prædæ in vacua Romana castra Numidæ devertissent. Ibi dum perscrutantes loca omnia castrorum nullo satis digno moræ pretio tempus terunt, emissus hostis est de manibus, et cum jam transgressos Trebiam Romanos, metantesque castra conspexissent, paucos moratorum occiderunt citra flumen interceptos. Scipio nec vexationem vulneris in via jactanti ultra patiens, et conlegam, jam enim et revocatum ex Sicilia audierat, ratus expectandum, locum, qui prope flumen tutissimus stativis est visus, delectum communiit. Nec procul inde Hannibal cum consedisset, quantum victoria equestri elatus, tantum anxius inopia, quæ per hostium agros euntem, nusquam præparatis commeatibus, major in dies excipiebat, ad Clastidium vicum, quo magnum frumenti numerum congesserant Romani, mittit. Ibi cum vim pararent, spes facta proditiōis; nec sane magno pretio, nummis aureis quadringentis, Dasiro Brundisino præfecto præsidi corrupto, traditur Hannibali Clastidium. Id horreum fuit Pœnis sedentibus ad Trebiam. In captivos ex tradito præsidio, ut fama clementiæ in principio rerum colligeretur, nihil sævum est.

XLIX. Cum ad Trebiam terrestre constitisset bellum, interim circa Siciliam insulas Italiæ imminentes et a Sempronio consule et ante adventum ejus, terra marique res gestæ. Viginti quinqueremes cum mille armatis ad depopulandam oram Italiæ a Carthaginiensibus missæ: novem Liparas, octo ad insulam Vulcani tenuerunt, tres in fretum avertit æstus. Ad eas conspectas a Messana duodecim naves ab Hierfone rege Syracusanorum missæ, qui tum forte Messanæ erat, consulem Romanum opperiens, nullo repugnante captas naves Messanam in portum deduxerunt. Cognitum ex captivis, præter viginti naves, cujus ipsi classis essent, in Italiam missas, quinque et triginta alias quinqueremes Siciliam petere ad sollicitandos veteres socios: Lilybæi occupandi præcipuam curam esse: credere eadem tempestate, qua ipsi disjecti forent, eam quoque classem ad Ægates insulas dejectam. Hæc sicut audita erant, rex M. Æmilio prætori, cujus Sicilia provincia erat, perscribit, monetque ut Lilybæum firmo teneret præsidio. Extemplo et circa a prætore ad civitates missi legati tribunique: "suos ad curam custodiæ intenderent; ante omnia Lilybæum teneri; ad paratum belli edicto proposito, ut socii navales decem dierum cocta cibaria ad naves deferrent, et, ubi signum datum esset, ne quis moram conscendendi faceret, perque omnem oram qui ex speculis prospicerent adventantem hostium classem." Simul itaque, quamquam de industria morati cursum navium, erant Carthaginienses, ut ante lucem accederent Lilybæum, præsensum tamen est, quia et luna pernox erat, et sublatis armamentis veniebant; extemplo signum datum e speculis, et in oppido ad arma conclamatum est, et in naves conscensum. Pars militum in muris portarumque in stationibus, pars in navibus erant. Et Carthaginienses, quia rem fore haud cum inparatis cernebant, usque ad lucem portu se abstinuerunt, demendis armamentis eo tempore aptandaque ad pugnam classe absumpto. Ubi inluxit, recipere classem in altum, ut spatium pugnae esset, exitumque liberum e portu naves hostium haberent. Nec Romani detrectare pugnam, et memoria circa ea ipsa loca gestarum rerum freti, et militum multitudine ac virtute.

L. Ubi in altum evecti sunt, Romanos conserere pugnam, et ex propinquo vires conferre velle: contra eludere Pænus, et arte non vi rem gerere, naviumque quam virorum aut armorum malle certamen facere. Nam ut sociis navalibus adfatim instructam classem, ita inopem milite habebant, et, sicubi conserta navis esset, haudquaquam par numerus armatorum ex ea pugnabat. Quod ubi animadversum est, et Romanis multitudo sua auxit animum et paucitas illis minuit: extemplo septem naves Punicæ circumventæ; fugam ceteræ ceperunt. Mille et septingenti fuere in navibus captis milites nautæque; in his tres nobiles Carthaginensium. Classis Romana incolumis, una tantum perforata navi, sed ea quoque ipsa reduce, in portum rediit. Secundum hanc pugnam, nondum gnaris ejus qui Messanai erant, Ti. Sempronius consul Messanam venit. Ei fretum intranti rex Hiero classem armatam ornatamque obviam duxit, transgressusque ex regia in prætoriam navem, gratulatus sospitem cum exercitu et navibus advenisse, precatusque prosperum ac felicem in Siciliam transitum, statum deinde insulæ et Carthaginensium conata exposuit, pollicitusque est, "ut quo animo priore bello populum Romanum juvenis adjuvisset, eo senem adiuturum, frumentum vestimenta que sese legionibus consulis sociisque navalibus gratis præbiturum: grande periculum Lilybæo maritimisque civitatibus esse, et quibusdam volentibus novas res fore." Ob hæc consuli nihil cunctandum visum, quin Lilybæum classe peteret: et rex regiaeque classis una profecti. Navigantes inde, pugnatum ad Lilybæum, fusasque et captas hostium naves accipere.

LI. A Lilybæo consul, Hierone cum classe regia dimisso, relictoque prætore ad tuendam Siciliæ oram, ipse in insulam Melitam, quæ a Carthaginensibus tenebatur, trajecit: advenienti Hamilcar Gisgonis filius prefectus præsidii cum paulo minus duobus millibus militum, oppidumque cum insula traditur. Inde post paucos dies reditum Lilybæum, captivique et a consule et a prætore, præter insignes nobilitate viros, sub corona venierunt. Postquam ab ea parte satis tutam Siciliam censebat consul, ad insulas Vulcani, quia fama erat stare ibi Punicam classem, trajecit, nec quisquam hostium circa eas insulas inventus: jam forte transmiserant ad vastandam Italiæ oram, depopulatoque Viboniensi agro, urbem etiam terrebant. Repetenti Siciliam consuli escensio hostium in agrum Viboniensem facta nuntiatur, litteræque ab senatu de transitu in Italiam Hannibalis, et ut primo quoque tempore conlegæ ferret auxilium, missæ traduntur. Multis simul anxias curis exercitum extemplo in naves inpositum Ariminum mari supero misit, Sexto Pomponio legato cum viginti quinque longis navibus Viboniensem agrum maritimamque oram Italiæ tuendam adtribuit, M. Æmilio prætori quinquaginta navium classem explevit. Ipse compositis Siciliæ rebus, decem navibus oram Italiæ legens, Ariminum pervenit : inde cum exercitu suo profectus ad Trebiam flumen conlegæ conjungitur.

LII. Jam ambo consules, et quidquid Romanarum virum erat Hannibali oppositum, aut illis copiis defendi posse Romanum imperium, aut spem nullam aliam esse satis declarabat. Tamen consul alter, equestri prælio uno et vulnere suo deminutus, trahi rem malebat : recentis animi alter eoque ferocior nullam dilationem patiebatur. Quod inter Trebiam Padumque agri est, Galli tum incolebant, in duorum præpotentium populorum certamine per ambiguum favorem haud dubie gratiam victoris spectantes. Id Romani, modo ne quid moverint, æquo satis, Pœnus periniquo animo ferebat, ab Gallis accitum se venisse ad liberandos eos dictitans. Ob eam iram, simul ut præda militem aleret, duo millia peditum et mille equites, Numidas plerosque, mixtos quosdam et Gallos, populari omnem deinceps agrum usque ad Padi ripas jussit. Egentes ope Galli, cum ad id dubios servassent animos, coacti ab auctoribus injuriæ ad vindices futuros declinant, legatisque ad consulem missis auxilium Romanorum terræ, ob nimiam cultorum fidem in Romanos laboranti, orant. Cornelio nec causa nec tempus agendæ rei placebat, suspectaque ei gens erat cum omnibus infida multa facinora, tum, ut alia vetustate abolevissent, ob recentem Boiorum perfidiam : Sempronius contra continendis in fide sociis maximum vinculum esse primos quosque, qui eguissent ope, defensos censebat. Tum conlega cunctante equitatum suum, mille peditum jaculatoribus ferme admixtis, ad defendendum Gallicum agrum trans Trebiam mittit. Sparsos et incompósitos, ad hoc graves præda plerosque, cum inopinatos invasissent, ingentem terrorem, cædemque ac fugam usque ad castra stationesque hostium fecere, unde multitudine effusa pulsī, rursus subsidio suorum prælium restituere : varia inde pugna sequentes cedentesque cum ad extremum æquassent certamen, major tamen, quam hostium, Romanorum fama victoriæ fuit.

LIII. Ceterum nemini omnium major justiorque quam ipsi consuli videri : gaudio efferri, "qua parte copiarum alter consul victus foret, ea se vicisse : restitutos ac refectos militibus animos, "nec quemquam esse præter conlegam, qui dilatam dimicationem vellet : eum, animo magis quam corpore, ægrum memoria vulneris "aciem ac tela horrere : sed non esse cum ægro senescendum : "quid enim ultra differri aut teri tempus? quem tertium consulem, "quem alium exercitum expectari? castra Carthaginiensium in "Italia, ac prope in conspectu urbis esse : non Siciliam ac Sardi-

"niam victis ademptas, nec cis Hiberum Hispaniam peti, sed solo patrio terraque, in qua geniti forent, pelli Romanos. Quantum ingemiscant," inquit, "patres nostri circa mœnia Carthaginis bellare soliti, si videant nos, progeniem suam, duos consules consularesque exercitus, in media Italia paventes intra castra, Pœnum, quod inter Alpes Apenninumque agri sit, suæ ditionis fecisse!" hæc adsidens ægro conlegæ, hæc in prætorio prope contionabundus agere. Stimulabat et tempus propinquum comitiorum, ne in novos consules bellum differretur, et occasio in se unum vertendæ gloriæ, dum æger conlega erat: itaque, nequiquam dissentientē Corneliō, parari ad propinquum certamen milites jubet. Hannibal cum, quid optimum foret hosti, cerneret, vix ullam spem habebat temere atque improvide quicquam consules acturos: cum alterius ingenium, fama prius, deinde re cognitum, percitum ac ferox sciret esse, ferociusque factum prospero cum prædatoribus suis certamine crederet, adesse gerendæ rei fortunam haud diffidebat. Cujus ne quod prætermitteret tempus, sollicitus intentusque erat, dum tiro hostium miles esset, dum meliorem ex ducibus inutilem vulnus faceret, dum Gallorum animi vigerent, quorum ingentem multitudinem sciebat segnius secuturam, quanto longius ab domo traherentur. Cum ob hæc taliaque speraret propinquum certamen, et facere, si cessaretur, cuperet, speculatoresque Galli—ad ea exploranda, quæ vellent, tutiores, quia in utriusque castris militabant—paratos pugnæ esse Romanos rettulissent, locum insidiis circumspectare Pœnus cœpit.

LIV. Erat in medio rivus peraltis utrimque clausus ripis, et circa obsitus palustribus herbis et, quibus inculta ferme vestiuntur, virgultis repribusque. Quem ubi equites quoque tegendo satis latebrosus locum circumvectus ipse oculis perlustravit, "Hic erit locus," Magoni fratri ait, "quem teneas: delige centenos viros ex omni pedite atque equire, cum quibus ad me vigilia prima venias: nunc corpora curare tempus est." Ita prætorium missum. Mox cum delectis Mago aderat. "Robora virorum cerno," inquit Hannibal: "sed uti numero etiam, non animis modo valeatis, singulis vobis novenos ex turmis manipulisque vestri similes eligite: Mago locum monstrabit quem insideatis: hostem cæcum ad has belli artes habetis." Ita mille equitibus Magoni, mille peditibus dimissis, Hannibal prima luce Numidas equites, transgressos Trebiam flumen, obequitare jubet hostium portis, jaculandoque in stationes elicere ad pugnam hostem, injecto deinde certamine, cedendo sensim citra flumen pertrahere. Hæc mandata Numidis: ceteris ducibus peditum equitumque præceptum ut prandere omnes juberent, armatos deinde instratisque equis signum expectare. Sempronius ad tumultum Numidarum primum omnem equitatum, ferox ea parte virium, deinde sex millia peditum, postremo omnes copias ad destinatum jam ante consilio avidus certaminis eduxit. ~~Ergo~~ forte brumæ tempus et nivalis dies in locis Alpibus Apenninoque interjectis, propinquitatem etiam fluminum ac paludum prægelidis. Ad hoc raptim eductis hominibus atque equis, non capto ante cibo, non ope ulla ad arcendum frigus adhibita, nihil caloris inerat; et quidquid auræ fluminis adpropinquabant, adflabat acrior frigoris vis: ut vero refugientes Numidas insequentes aquam ingressi sunt—et erat pectoribus tenuis aucta nocturno imbri—tum utique egressis rigere omnibus corpora, ut vix armorum tenendorum potentia esset, et simul lassitudine et, procedente jam die, fame etiam deficere.

LV. Hannibalis interim miles, ignibus ante tentoria factis, oleoque per manipulos, ut mollirent artus, misso, et cibo per otium capto, ubi transgressos flumen hostes nuntiatum est, alacer animis corporibusque arma capit, atque in aciem procedit. Baliares locat ante signa, levem armaturam, octo ferme millia hominum, dein graviorem armis peditem, quod virium, quod roboris erat. In cornibus circumfudit decem millia equitum, et ab cornibus in utramque partem divisos elephantos statuit. Consul effuse sequentes equites, cum ab resistentibus subito Numidis incauti exciperentur, signo receptui dato, revocatos circumdedit peditibus: duodeviginti millia Romani erant, socium nominis Latini viginti, auxilia præterea Cenomanorum: ea sola in fide manserat Gallica gens. Iis copiis concursus est. Prælium a Baliaribus ortum est: quibus cum majore robore legiones obsisterent, deductæ propere in cornua leves armaturæ sunt; quæ res efficit ut equitatus Romanus extemplo urgeretur: nam cum vix jam per se resisterent decem millibus equitum quattuor millia, et fessi integris plerisque, obruti sunt insuper velut nube jaculorum a Baliaribus coniecta: ad hoc elephanti eminentes ab extremis cornibus, equis maxime non visu modo, sed odore insolito territis, fugam late faciebant. Pedestris pugna par animis magis quam viribus erat, quas recentes Pœnus, paulo ante curatis corporibus, in prælium attulerat: contra jejuna fessaque corpora Romanis et rigentia gelu torpebant. Restitissent tamen animis, si cum peditibus solum foret pugnatum: sed et Baliares, pulso equite, jaculabantur in latera, et elephanti jam in mediam peditum aciem sese tulerant, et Mago Numidæque, simul latebras eorum improvida præterlata acies est, exorti ab tergo ingentem tumultum ac terrorem fecere. Tamen in tot circumstantibus malis mansit aliquamdiu inmota acies, maxime præter spem omnium adversus elephantos: eos velites ad id ipsum locati verrutis conjectis et avertere, et insecuti aversos sub caudis, qua maxime molli cute vulnera accipiunt, fodiebant.

LVI. Trepidantesque et prope jam in suos consternatos media acie in extremam, ad sinistrum cornum, adversus Gallos auxiliares agi jussit Hannibal: ii extemplo haud dubiam fecere fugam; quoque novus terror additus Romanis, ut fusa auxilia sua viderunt. Itaque cum jam in orbem pugnarent, decem millia ferme hominum, cum alia evadere nequissent, media Afrorum acie, quæ Gallicis auxiliis firmata erat, cum ingenti cæde hostium perrupere: et cum neque in castra reditus esset flumine interclusis, neque præ imbri satis decernere possent qua suis opem ferrent, Placentiam recto itinere perrexere. Plures deinde in omnes partes eruptiones factæ; et, qui flumen petiere, aut gurgitibus absumpti sunt, aut inter cunctationem ingrediendi ab hostibus oppressi; qui passim per agros fuga sparsi erant, vestigia cedentis sequentes agminis, Placentiam contendere: aliis timor hostium audaciam ingrediendi flumen fecit, transgressique in castra pervenerunt. Imber nive mixtus, et intoleranda vis frigoris, et homines multos et jumenta et elephantos prope omnes absumpsit. Finis insequendi hostes Pœnis flumen Trebia fuit; et ita torpentes gelu in castra rediere, ut vix lætitiâ victoriæ sentirent: itaque nocte insequenti, cum præsidium castrorum et quod reliquum ex magna parte militum erat, ratibus Trebiam trajicerent, aut nihil sentire, obstrepente pluvia, aut, quia jam moveri nequibant præ lassitudine ac vulneribus, sentire sese dissimularunt, quietisque Pœnis, tacito agmine ab Scipione consule exercitus Placentiam est perductus, inde Pado trajectus Cremonam, ne duorum exercituum hibernis una colonia premeretur.

LVII. Romam tantus terror ex hac clade perlatus est, ut jam ad urbem Romanam crederent infestis signis hostem venturum, nec quicquam spei aut auxilii esse, qui a portis mœnibusque vim arcerent: "uno consule ad Ticinum victo, altero ex Sicilia revocato, duobus consulibus, duobus consularibus exercitibus victis, quos alios duces, quas alias, legiones esse, quæ arcesantur?" Ita territis Sempronius consul advenit, ingenti periculo per effusos passim ad prædandum hostium equites, audacia magis quam consilio, aut spe fallendi resistendive, si non falleret, transgressus. Id quod unum maxime in præsentia desiderabatur, comitiis consularibus habitis, in hiberna rediit: creati consules Cn. Servilius et C. Flaminius. Ceterum ne hiberna quidem Romanis quieta erant, vagantibus passim Numidis equitibus et, quæque iis impeditiora erant, Celtiberis Lusitanisque: omnes igitur undique clausi commeatus erant, nisi quos Pado naves subveherent. Enaporium prope Placentiam fuit, et opere magno munitum, et valido firmatum præsidio: ejus castelli expugnandi spe cum equitibus ac levi armatura profectus Hannibal, cum plurimum in celando incepto ad effectum spei habuisset, nocte adortus non fefellit vigiles. Tantus repente clamor est sublatus, ut Placentiæ quoque audiretur: itaque sub lucem cum equitatu consul aderat, jussis quadrato agmine legionibus sequi. Equestre interim prælium commissum, in quo quia saucius Hannibal pugna excessit, pavore hostibus injecto, defensum egregie præsidium est. Paucorum inde dierum quiete sumpta, et vixdum satis percurato vulnere, ad Victumvias oppugnandas ire pergit. Id emporium Romanis Gallico bello fuerat munitum; inde locum frequentaverant adcolæ mixti undique ex finitimis populis, et tum terror populationum eo plerosque ex agris compulerat. Hujus generis multitudo, fama inpigre defensi ad Placentiam præsidii accensa, armis arreptis, obviam Hannibali procedit. Magis agmina quam acies in via concurrerunt; et, cum ex altera parte nihil præter inconditam turbam esset, in altera et dux militi et duci miles fidens, ad triginta quinque millia hominum a paucis fusa. Postero die, deditione facta, præsidium intra mœnia accepere, jussique arma tradere cum dicto paruissent, signum repente victoribus datur, ut tamquam vi captam urbem diriperent: neque ulla, quæ in tali re memorabilis scribentibus videri solet, prætermissa clades est; adeo omnis libidinis crudelitatisque et inhumanæ superbiæ editum in miseros exemplum est. Hæ fuere hibernæ expeditiones Hannibalis.

LVIII. Haud longi inde temporis, dum intolerabilia frigora erant, quies militi data est; et ad prima ac dubia signa veris profectus ex hibernis in Etruriam ducit, eam quoque gentem, sicut Gallos Liguresque, aut vi aut voluntate adjuncturus. Transeuntem Apenninum adeo atrox adorta tempestas est, ut Alpium prope sceditatem superaverit. Vento mixtus imber cum ferretur in ipsa ora, primo, quia aut arma omittenda erant, aut contra enitentes vertice intorti adfligebantur, constitere; dein, cum jam spiritum includeret, nec reciprocare animam sineret, aversi a vento parumper consedere. Tum vero ingenti sonu cœlum strepere, et inter horrendos fragores micare ignes: captis auribus et oculis, metu omnes torpere: tandem effuso imbre, cum eo magis accensa vis venti esset, ipso illo, quo deprenti erant, loco castra ponere necessarium visum est. Id vero laboris velut de integro initium fuit: nam nec explicare quicquam, nec statuere poterant, nec quod statutum esset manebat, omnia perscindentem vento et rapiente. Et mox aqua levata vento, cum super gelida montium juga concreta esset, tantum nivosa grandinis dejecit, ut, omnibus omissis, procumberent homines, tegminibus suis magis obruti quam tecti: tantaque vis frigoris insecuta est, ut ex illa miserabili hominum jumentorumque strage cum se quisque extollere ac levare vellet, diu nequiret, quia torrentibus rigore nervis, vix flectere artus poterant: deinde, ut tandem agitando sese movere ac recipere animos, et raris locis ignis fieri est coeptus, ad alienam opem quisque inops tendere. Biduum eo loco velut obsessi mansere: multi homines, multa jumenta, elephantique quoque ex iis, qui praelio ad Trebiam facto superfueraut, septem absumpti.

LIX. Digressus Apeunino retro ad Placentiam castra movit, et ad decem millia progressus consedit: postero die duodecim millia peditum, quinque equitum adversus hostem ducit. Nec Sempronius consul, jam enim redierat ab Roma, detrectavit certamen: atque eo die tria millia passum inter bina castra fuere. Postero die ingentibus animis, vario eventu pugnatum est. Primo concursu adeo res Romana superior fuit, ut non acie vincerent solum, sed pulsos hostes in castra persequerentur, mox castra quoque oppugnarent. Hannibal, paucis propugnatoribus in vallo portisque positus, ceteros confertos in media castra recepit, intentosque signum ad erumpendum spectare jubet. Jam nona ferme diei hora erat, cum Romanus, nequiquam fatigato milite, postquam nulla spes erat potiundi castris, signum receptui dedit. Quod ubi Hannibal accepit, laxatamque pugnam et recessum a castris vidit, ex templo equitibus dextra laevaue emissis in hostem, ipse cum peditum robore mediis castris erupit. Pugna raro magis ulla ea et utriusque partis pernicie clarior fuisset, si extendi eam dies in longum spatium sivillet: nox accensum ingentibus animis praelium diremit. Itaque acrior concursus fuit quam caedes, et sicut æquata ferme pugna erat, ita clade pari discessum est. Ab neutra parte sexcentis plus peditibus, et dimidium ejus equitum cecidit: sed major Romanis quam pro numero jactura fuit, quia equestris ordinis aliquot, et tribuni militum quinque, et præfecti sociorum tres sunt interfecti. Secundum eam pugnam Hannibal in Ligures, Sempronius Lucam concessit. Venienti in Ligures Hannibali per insidias intercepti duo quæstores Romani, C. Fulvius et L. Lucretius, cum duobus tribunis militum, et quinque equestris ordinis senatorum ferme liberis, quo magis ratam fore cum iis pacem societatemque crederet, traduntur.

LX. Dum hæc in Italia geruntur, Cn. Cornelius Scipio in Hispaniam cum classe et exercitu missus, cum, ab ostio Rhodani profectus, Pyrenæosque montes circumvectus, Emporis adpulisset classem, exposito ibi exercitu, orsus a Lacetanis omnem oram usque ad Hiberum flumen, partim renovandis societatibus, partim novis instituendis, Romanæ ditionis fecit. Inde conciliata lenitatis clementiæque fama, non ad maritimos modo populos, sed in mediterraneis quoque ac montanis, ad ferociores jam gentes valuit; nec pax modo apud eos, sed societas etiam armorum parata est, validæque aliquot auxiliorum cohortes ex iis conscriptæ sunt. Hannonis cis Hiberum provincia erat: eum reliquerat Hannibal ad regionis ejus præsidium: itaque, priusquam alienarentur omnia, obviam eundum ratus, castris in conspectu hostium positis, in aciem eduxit. Nec Romano differendum certamen visum, quippe qui sciret cum Hannone et Hasdrubale sibi dimicandum esse, malletque adversus singulos separatim, quam adversus duos simul rem gerere. Nec magni certaminis ea dimicatio fuit: sex millia hostium cæsa, duo capta cum præsidio castrorum: nam et castra expugnata sunt, atque ipse dux cum aliquot principibus capiuntur, et Cissis, propinquum castris oppidum, expugnatur. Ceterum præda oppidi parvi preti rerum fuit, supellex barbarica ac vilium mancipiorum: castra militem ditavere, non ejus modo exercitus qui victus erat, sed et ejus qui cum Hannibale in Italia militabat, omnibus fere caris rebus, ne gravia impedimenta fereantibus essent, citra Pyrenæum relictis.

LXI. Priusquam certa hujus cladis fama accideret, transgressus Hiberum Hasdrubal cum octo millibus peditum, mille equitum, tanquam ad primum adventum Romanorum occursum, postquam perditas res ad Cissim amissaque castra accepit, iter ad mare convertit. Haud procul Tarracone classicos milites navalesque socios vagos palantesque per agros, quod ferme fit, ut secundæ res negligentiam creent, equite passim dimisso, cum magna cæde, majore fuga ad naves compellit. Nec diutius circa ea loca morari ausus, ne ab Scipione opprimeretur, trans Hiberum sese recepit. Et Scipio, raptim ad famam novorum hostium agmine acto, cum in paucos præfectos navium animadvertisset, præsidio Tarracone modico relicto, Emporias cum classe rediit. Vixdum digresso eo, Hasdrubal aderat, et Ilergetum populo, qui obsides Scipioni dederat, ad defectionem impulso, cum eorum ipsorum juventute agros fidelium Romanis sociorum vastat excito, deinde Scipione hibernis, hostico cis Hiberum rursus cedit agro. Scipio relictam ab auctore defectionis Ilergetum gentem cum infesto exercitu invasisset, compulsis omnibus Atanagrum urbem, quæ caput ejus populi erat, circumscedit, intraque dies paucos, pluribus quam ante obsidibus imperatis, Ilergetes pecunia etiam multatos in jus ditionemque recepit. Inde in Ausetanos prope Hiberum, socios et ipsos Pœnorum, procedit, atque urbe eorum obsessa, Lacetanos auxilium finitimis ferentes nocte, haud procul jam urbem cum intrare vellent, excepit insidiis: caesa ad duodecim millia; exuti prope omnes armis domos passim palantes per agros diffugere. Nec obsessos alia ulla res quam iniqua oppugnantibus hiems tutabatur. Triginta dies obsidio fuit; per quos raro umquam nix minus quattuor pedes alta jacuit: adeoque pluteos ac vineas Romanorum operuerat, ut ea sola, ignibus aliquotiens coniectis ab hoste, etiam tutamentum fuerit. Postremo, cum Amusicus princeps eorum ad Hasdrubalem profugisset, viginti argenti talentis pacti deduntur. Tarraconem in hiberna reditum est.

LXII. Romæ ac circa urbem multa ea hieme prodigia facta, aut, quod evenire solet, motis semel in religionem animis, multa nuntiata et temere credita sunt: in quis ingenuum infantem semenstrem in foro olitorio triumphum clamasse, et foro bovario bovem in tertiam contignationem sua sponte escendisse, atque inde tumultu habitatorum territum sese dejecisse, et navium speciem de cælo adfuisse, et ædem Spei, quæ est in foro olitorio, fulmine ictam, et Lanuvi hastam se commovisse, et corvum in ædem Junonis devolasse atque in ipso pulvinario consedissee, et in agro Amiternino multis locis hominum specie procul candida veste visos, nec cum ullo congressos, et in Piceno lapidibus pluvisse, et Cære sortes extenuatas, et in Gallia lupum vigili gladium ex vagina raptum abstulisse. Ob cetera prodigia libros adire decemviri jussi: quod autem lapidibus pluvisset in Piceno, novemdiale sacrum edictum, et subinde aliis procurandis prope tota civitas operata fuit. Jam primum omnium urbs lustrata est, hostiæque majores quibus editum est diis cæsæ, et donum ex auri pondo quadraginta Lanuvium et Junoni portatum est, et signum æneum matronæ Junoni in Aventino dedicaverunt, et lectisternium Cære, ubi sortes adtenuatæ erant, imperatum, et supplicatio Fortunæ in Algido: Romæ quoque et lectisternium Juventati, et supplicatio ad ædem Herculis nominatim, deinde universo populo circa omnia pulvinaria indicta, et Genio majores hostiæ cæsæ quinque, et C. Atilius Serranus prætor vota suscipere jussus, si in decem annos respublica eodem stetisset statu. Hæc procurata vota que ex libris Sibyllinis magna ex parte leverant religione animos.

LXIII. Consulum designatorum alter Flaminius, cui hæ legiones quæ Placentiæ hibernabant sorte evenerant, edictum, et litteras ad consulem misit, ut is exercitus idibus Martis Arimini adesset in castris. Hic in provincia consulatum inire consilium erat, memori veterum certaminum cum patribus, quæ tribunus plebis, et quæ postea consul, prius de consulatu qui abrogabatur.

dein de triumpho habuerat: invisus etiam patribus ob novam legem, quam Q. Claudius tribunus plebis adversus senatum, atque uno patrum adjuvante C. Flaminio, tulerat, ne quis senator, cuive senator pater fuisset, maritimam navem, quæ plus quam trecentarum amphorarum esset, haberet. Id satis habitum ad fructus ex agris vectandos: quæstus omnis patribus indecorus visus. Res per summam contentionem acta invidiam apud nobilitatem suasori legis Flaminio, favorem apud plebem alterumque inde consulatum peperit. Ob hæc ratus auspiciis ementiendis Latinarumque feriarum mora, et consularibus aliis inpedimentis retenturos se in urbe, simulato itinere privatus clam in provinciam abiit. Ea res ubi palam facta est, novam insuper iram, infestis jam ante patribus, movit: "non cum senatu modo, sed jam cum diis immortalibus C. Flaminium bellum gerere: consulem ante inauspicato factum revocantibus ex ipsa acie diis atque hominibus non paruisse; nunc conscientia spretorum, et Capitolium et sollemnem votorum nuncupationem fugisse, ne die initi magistratus Jovis optimi maximi templum adiret, ne senatum invisus ipse et sibi uni invisum videret consuleretque, ne Latinas indiceret, Jovique Latiari sollemne sacrum in monte faceret, ne auspicato profectus in Capitolium ad vota nuncupanda, paludatis inde cum lictoribus in provinciam iret. lixæ modo sine insignibus, sine lictoribus profectum clam, furtim, haud aliter quam si exilii causa solum vertisset: magis pro majestate videlicet imperii Arimini quam Romæ magistratum initurum, et in diversorio hospitali quam apud penates suos prætextam sumpturum." Revocandum universi retrahendumque censuerunt, et cogendum omnibus prius præsentem in deos hominesque fungi officiis quam ad exercitum et in provinciam iret. In eam legationem, legatos enim mitti placuit, Q. Terentius et M. Antistius profecti nihilo magis eum moverunt quam priore consulatu litteræ moverant ab senatu missæ: paucos post dies magistratum iniit, inmolantique ei vitulus jam ictus e manibus sacrificantium sese cum proripisset, multos circumstantes cruore respersit: fuga procul etiam major apud ignaros, quid trepidaretur, et concursatio fuit: id a plerisque in omen magni terroris acceptum. Legionibus inde duabus a Sempronio, prioris anni consule, duabus a C. Atilio prætore acceptis, in Etruriam per Apenninæ tramites exercitus duci est cœptus.

LIBER XXII.

EPITOME.

HANNIBAL, per continuas vigilias in paludibus oculo amisso, venit in Etruriam : per quas paludes quatrIduo et tribus noctibus sine ulla requie iter fecit. C. Flaminius consul, homo temerarius, contra auspicia profectus, signis militaribus effossis, quæ tolli non poterant, et ab equo, quem conscenderat, per caput devolutus, insidiis ab Hannibale circumventus, ad Trasumennum lacum cum exercitu cæsus est. Sex millia, quæ eruperant, fide ab Maharbale data, perfidia Hannibalis victa sunt. Quum ad nuntium cladis Romæ luctus esset, duæ matres, ex insperato receptis filiis, gaudio mortuæ sunt. Ob hanc cladem ex Sibyllinis libris ver sacrum votum. Quum deinde Q. Fabius Maximus dictator, adversus Hannibalem missus, nollet acie cum eo configere, ne, contra ferocem tot victoriis hostem, territum adversis præliis militem pugnæ committeret, et opponendo se tantummodo, conatus Hannibalis impediret, M. Minucius magister equitum, ferox et temerarius, criminando dictatorem tamquam segnem et timidum, effecit, ut populi jussu æquaretur ei cum dictatore imperium ; divisoque exercitu, quum in iniquo loco conflisset, et in maximo discrimine legiones ejus essent, superveniente cum exercitu Fabio Maximo discrimine liberatus est. Quo beneficio victus castra cum eo junxit, et patrem eum salutavit ; idemque facere milites jussit. Hannibal vastata Campania, inter Casilinum oppidum et Calliculam montem a Fabio clausus, sarmentis ad cornua bœum adligatis et incensis, præsidium Romanorum, quod Calliculam insidebat, fugavit : et sic transgressus est saltum. Idemque Q. Fabii Maximi dictatoris, quum circumposita ureret, agro pepercit, ut illum tamquam proditorem suspectum faceret. Emilio deinde Paulo et Terentio Varrone consulibus et ducibus, cum maxima clade adversus Hannibalem ad Cannas pugnatum est : cæsaque eo prælio Romanorum quadraginta quinque millia, cum Paulo consule et senatoribus octoginta, consularibus atque prætoris aut ædiliis triginta. Post quam cladem quum a nobilibus adolescentibus propter desperationem consilium de relinquenda Italia iniretur, P. Cornelius Scipio tribunus militum, qui postea Africanus nun-cupatus est, stricto super capita deliberantium ferro; juravit, se pro hoste habiturum eum, qui in verba sua non jurasset; effecitque, ut omnes minime relictum iri a se Italiam iurejurando adstringerentur. Præterea trepidationem urbis et luctum, et res in Hispania meliore eventu gestas continet. Opimia et Flronia, Vestales virgines, incesti damnatæ sunt. Propter paucitatem vero militum servorum octo millia armata sunt. Captivi, quum potestas esset redimendi, redempti non sunt. Varroni obviam itum est, et gratiæ actæ, quod de republica non desperasset.

I. JAM ver adpetebat, cum Hannibal ex hibernis movit, et nequiquam ante conatus transcendere Apenninum intolerandis frigoribus, et cum ingenti periculo moratus ac metu. Gallis, quos prædæ populationumque conciverat spes, postquam pro eo, ut ipsi ex alieno agro raperent agerentque, suas terras sedem belli esse, premique utriusque partis exercituum hibernis viderent, verterunt retro in Hannibalem ab Romanis odia: petitusque sæpe principium insidiis, ipsorum inter se fraude, eadem levitate qua consenserant, consensum indicantium, servatus erat, et mutando nunc vestem, nunc tegumenta capitis, errore etiam sese ab insidiis munierat. Ceterum hic quoque ei timor causa fuit maturius movendi ex hibernis. Per idem tempus Cn. Servilius consul Romæ idibus Martis magistratum iniit. Ibi cum de republica rettulisset, redintegrata in C. Flaminium invidia est: "duos se consules creasse, unum habere: quod enim illi justum imperium, quod auspiciū esse? magistratus id a domo, publicis privatisque penatibus, Latinis feriis actis, sacrificio in monte perfecto, votis rite in Capitolio nuncupatis, secum ferre: nec privatum auspiciū sequi, nec sine auspiciis profectum in externo ea solo nova atque integra concipere posse." Augebant metum prodigia ex pluribus singulis locis nuntiata: in Sicilia militibus aliquot spicula, in Sardinia autem in muro circumeunti vigilas equiti scipionem, quem manu tenuerat, arsisse, et litora crebris ignibus fulsisse, et scuta duo sanguine sudasse, et milites quosdam ictos fulminibus, et solis orbem minui visum: et Præneste ardentes lapides cælo cecidisse, et Arpis parmas in cælo visas pugnantemque cum luna solem, et Capenæ duas interdiu lunas ortas, et aquas Cærètes sanguine mixtas fluxisse, fontemque ipsum Herculis cruentis manasse respersum maculis, et Antii metentibus cruentas in corbem spicas cecidisse, et Faleriis cælum findi velut magno hiātu visum, quaque patuerit, ingens lumen effulsisse, sortes sua sponte adtenuatas, unamque excidisse ita scriptam, "Mavors telum suum concutit:" et per idem tempus Romæ signum Martis Appia via ac simulacra luporum sudasse, et Capuæ speciem cœli ardentis fuisse lunæque inter imbrem cadentis. Inde minoribus etiam dictu prodigiis fides habita: capras lanatas quibusdam factas, et gallinam in marem, gallum in feminam sese vertisse. Iis sicut erant nunciata expositis, auctoribusque in curiam introductis, consul de religione patres consuluit: decretum ut ea prodigia partim majoribus hostiis, partim lactentibus procurarentur, et ut supplicatio per triduum ad omnia pulvinaria haberetur: cetera, cum decemviri libros inspexissent, ut ita ferent, quemadmodum cordi esse dii divinis carminibus præfarentur. Decemvirorum monitu decretum est, Jovi primum donum fulmen aureum pondo quinquaginta fieret, Junoni Minervæque ex argento dona darentur, et Junoni reginæ in Aventino, Junonique Sospitæ Lanuvii majoribus hostiis sacrificaretur, matronæque, pecunia collata, quantum conferre cuique commodum esset, donum Junoni reginæ in Aventinum ferrent, lectisterniumque fieret, quin et ut libertinæ et ipsæ—inde Feroniæ donum daretur—pecuniam pro facultatibus suis conferrent: hæc ubi facta, decemviri Ardeæ in foro majoribus hostiis sacrificarunt: postremo Decembri jam mense ad ædem Saturni Romæ inmolatum est, lectisterniumque imperatum, et eum lectum senatores straverunt, et convivium publicum, ac per urbem Saturnalia diem ac noctem clamata, populusque eum diem festum habere ac servare in perpetuum jussus.

II. Dum consul placandis Romæ diis habendoque delectu dat operam, Hannibal profectus ex hibernis, quia jam Flaminium consulem Arretium prævenisse fama erat, cum aliud longius, ceterum commodius, ostenderetur iter, propiorem viam per paludem petit, qua fluvius Arnus per eos dies solito magis inundaverat. Hispanos et Afros et omne veterani robur exercitus, admixtis ipsorum impedimentis, necubi consistere coactis necessaria ad usus deessent, primos ire jussit, sequi Gallos, ut id agminis medium esset, novissimos ire equites, Magonem inde cum expeditis Numidis cogere agmen, maxime Gallos, si tædio laboris longæque viæ, ut est mollis ad talia gens, dilaberentur aut subsisterent, cohibentem. Primi, qua modo præirent duces, per præaltas fluvii ac profundas voragines, hausti pæne limo immergentesque se, tamen signa sequebantur: Galli neque sustinere se prolapsi, neque adurgere ex voraginibus poterant, aut corpora animis, aut animos spe sustinebant, alii fessa ægre trahentes membra, alii, ubi semel victis tædio animis procubissent, inter jumenta, et ipsa jacentia passim, morientes. Maximeque omnium vigiliæ conficiebant per quadriduum jam et tres noctes toleratæ. Cum, omnia obtinentibus aquis, nihil, ubi in sicco fessa sternerent corpora, inveniri posset, cumulatim in aquas sarcinis insuper incumbabant: jumentorum itinere toto prostratorum passim acervi tantum, quod extaret aqua, quærentibus ad quietem parvi temporis necessarium cubili dabant. Ipse Hannibal, æger oculis ex verna primum intemperie variante calores frigoraque, elephanto, qui unus superfuerat, quo altius ab aqua extaret, vectus, vigiliis tamen et nocturno humore palustrique cœlo gravante caput, et quia medendi nec locus nec tempus erat, altero oculo capitur.

III. Multis hominibus jumentisque fœde amissis, cum tandem de paludibus emersisset, ubi primum in sicco potuit, castra locat, certumque per præmissos exploratores habuit exercitum Romanum circa Arreti mœnia esse. Consul deinde consilia atque animum et situm regionum itineraque et copias ad commeatu expedandos et cetera, quæ cognosce in rem erant, summa omnia cum cura inquirendo exequabatur. Regio erat in primis Italiæ fertilis, Etrusci campi, qui Fæsulas inter Arretiumque jacent, frumenti ac pecoris et omnium copia rerum opulenti. Consul ferox ab consulatu priore, et non modo legum aut patrum majestatis, sed ne deorum quidem satis metuens: hanc insitam ingenio ejus temeritatem fortuna prospero civilibus bellicisque rebus successu aluerat: itaque satis apparebat nec deus nec homines consulentem ferociter omnia ac præpropere acturum: quoque pronior esset in vitia sua, agitare eum atque irritare Pœnus parat, et læva relicto hoste, Fæsulas petens medio Etruriæ agro prædatum profectus, quantam maximam vastitatem potest cædibus incendiisque consuli procul ostendit. Flaminius, qui nec quieto quidem hoste ipse quieturus erat, tum vero, postquam res sociorum ante oculos prope suos ferri agique vidit, suum id dedecus ratus, per mediam jam Italiam vagari Pœnum, atque obsistente nullo ad ipsa Romana mœnia ire oppugnanda, ceteris omnibus in consilio salutaria magis quam speciosa suadentibus, "conlegam expectandum, ut, conjunctis exercitibus, communi animo consilioque rem gererent, interim equitatu auxiliisque levium armorum ab effusa prædandi licentia hostem cohibendum," iratus se ex consilio proripuit, signumque simul itineris pugnaeque cum dedisset, "immo Arreti ante mœnia sedeamus," inquit, "hic enim patria et penates sunt: Hannibal emissus e manibus perpopuletur Italiam, vastandoque et urendo omnia ad Romana mœnia perveniat, nec ante nos hinc moverimus quam, sicut olim Camillum ab Veis, O. Flaminium ab Arretio patres acciverint." Hæc simul increpans, cum ocus signa convelli juberet, et ipse in equum insilisset, equus repente conruit, consulemque lapsum super caput effudit. Territis omnibus qui circa erant velut fœdo omine incipiendæ rei, insuper nunciatur, signum, omni vi moliente signifero, convelli nequire. Conversus ad nuntium "num litteras quoque," inquit, "ab senatu adfers quæ me rem gerere vetent? abi, nuntia, effodiant signum, si ad convellendum manus præ metu obtorpuerit." Incedere inde agmen cœpit, primoribus, superquam quod dissenserant ab consilio, territis etiam duplici prodigio, milite in vulgus læto ferocia ducis, cum spem magis ipsam quam causam spei intueretur.

IV. Hannibal quæd agri est inter Cortonam urbem Trasumennumque lacum omni clade belli pervastat, quo magis iram hosti ad vindicandas sociorum injurias acuat. Et jam pervenerant ad loca nata insidiis, ubi maxime montes Cortonenses Trasumennus subit: via tantum interest perangusta, vel ad id ipsum de industria relicto spatium: deinde paulo latior patescit campus, inde colles adinsurgunt. Ibi castra in aperto locat, ubi ipse cum Afris modo Hispanisque consideret: Baliares ceteramque levem armaturam post montes circumducit, equites ad ipsas faucibus saltus, tumulis apte tegentibus, locat, ut, ubi intrassent Romani, objecto equitatu clausa omnia lacu ac montibus essent. Flaminius cum pridie solis occasu ad lacum pervenisset, inexplorato, postero die, vixdum satis certa luce, angustiis superatis, postquam in patentiore campum pandi agmen cœpit, id tantum hostium, quod ex adverso erat, conspexit: ab tergo ac super caput deceptere insidiæ. Pœnus ubi, id quod petierat, clausum lacu ac montibus et circumfusum suis copiis habuit nostem, signum omnibus dat simul invadendi. Qui ubi quævisque proximum fuit decurrerunt, eo magis Romanis subita atque improvisa res fuit, quod orta ex lacu nebula campo quam montibus densior sederat, agminaque hostium ex pluribus collibus ipsa inter se satis conspecta, eoque magis pariter decurrerant. Romanus clamore prius undique orto quam satis cerneret, se circumventum esse sensit, et ante in frontem lateraque pugnari cœptum est quam satis instrueretur acies, aut expediri arma, stringique gladii possent.

V. Consul percussis omnibus, ipse satis, ut in re trepida inpavidus, turbatos ordines, vertente se quoque ad dissonos clamores, instruit ut tempus locusque patitur, et, quacumque adire audiriue potest, adhortatur ac stare ac pugnare jubet: "nec enim inde votis aut imploratione deum sed vi ac virtute evadendum esse: per medias acies ferro viam fieri et, quo timoris minus sit, eo minus ferme periculi esse." Ceterum præ strepitu ac tumultu nec consilium nec imperium accipi poterat, tantumque aberat, ut sua signa atque ordinem miles et locum nosceret, ut vix ad arma capienda aptandaque pugnae conpeteret animus, opprimerenturque quidam onerati magis his quam tecti. Et erat in tanta caligine major usus aurium quam oculorum: ad gemitus vulnerum ictusque corporum aut armorum et mixtos strepentium paventiumque clamores circumferebant ora oculosque: alii fugientes pugnantium globo inlati hærebant, alios redeuntes in pugnam avertebat fugientium agmen. Deinde, ubi in omnes partes nequiquam impetus capti, et ab lateribus montes ac lacus, a fronte et ab tergo hostium acies claudebat, apparuitque nullam nisi in dextera, ferroque salutis spem esse, tum sibi quisque dux adhortatorque factus ad rem gerendam, et nova de integro exorta pugna est, non illa ordinata per principes hastatosque ac triarios, nec ut pro signis antesignani, post signa alia pugnaret acies, nec ut in sua legione miles aut cohorte aut manipulo esset: fors conglobat, et animus, suus cuique ante aut post pugnandi ordinem dabat: tantusque fuit ardor armorum, adeo intentus pugnae animus, ut eum motum terræ, qui multarum urbium Italiæ magnas partes prostravit, avertitque cursu rapidos amnes, mare fluminibus invexit, montes lapsu ingenti proruit, nemo pugnantium senserit.

VI. Tres ferme horas pugnatum est, et ubique atrociter. Circa consulem tamen prior infestiorque pugna est: eum et robora virorum sequebantur, et ipse, quacumque in parte premi ac laborare senserat suos, impigre ferebat opem, insignemque armis et hostes summa vi petebant, et tuebantur cives, donec Insuber eques, Ducario nomen erat, facie quoque noscitus, "consul, en," inquit "hic est," popularibus suis, "qui legiones nostras cecidit, agrosque et urbem est depopulatus: jam ego hanc victimam Manibus peremptorum fœde civium dabo:" subditisque calcaribus equo, per confertissimam hostium turbam impetum facit, obtruncatoque prius armigero, qui se infesto venienti obviam objecerat, consulem lancea transfixit: spoliare cupientem triarii objectis scutis arcuere. Magnæ partis fuga inde primum cœpit: et jam nec lacus, nec montes pavori obstabant: per omnia arta præruptaque velut cæci evadunt, armaque et viri super alium alii præcipitantur. Pars magna, ubi locus fugæ deest, per prima vada paludis in aquam progressi, quoad capitibus, humeris extare possunt, sese immergunt: fuere, quos inconsultus pavor nando etiam capessere fugam impulerit; quæ ubi immensa ac sine spe erat, aut deficientibus animis hauriebantur gurgitibus, aut nequiquam fessi vada retro ægerrime repetebant, atque ibi ab ingressis aquam hostium equitibus passim trucidabantur. Sex millia ferme primi agminis, per adversos hostes eruptione inipigre facta, ignari omnium quæ post se agerentur, ex saltu evasere, et cum in tumultu quodam constitissent, clamorem modo ac sonum armorum audientes, quæ fortuna pugnae esset, neque scire nec perspicere præ caligine poterant. Inclinata denique res, cum incalescente sole dispulsa nebula aperuisset diem, tum liquida jam luce montes campique perditas res strataque ostendere fœde Romanam aciem. Itaque, ne in conspectos procul inmitteretur eques, sublatis raptim signis, quam citatissimo poterant agmine sese abriperunt. Postero die cum super cetera extrema fames etiam instaret, fidem dante Maharbale, qui cum omnibus equestribus copiis nocte consecutus erat, si arma tradidissent, abire cum singulis vestimentis passurum, sese dediderunt. Quæ Punica religione servata fides ab Hannibale est, atque in vincula omnes conjecit.

VII. Hæc est nobilis ad Trasumennum pugna atque inter paucas memorata populi Romani clades. Quindecim millia Romanorum in acie cæsa sunt: decem millia sparsa fuga per omnem Etruriam aversis itineribus urbem petiere. Duo millia quingenti hostium in acie, multi postea utrimque ex vulneribus periere. Multiplex cædes utrimque facta traditur ab aliis: ego, præterquam quod nihil haustum ex vano velim, quo nimis inclinant ferme scribentium animi, Fabium æqualem temporibus hujusce belli potissimum auctorem habui. Hannibal captivorum, qui Latini nominis essent, sine pretio dimissis, Romanis in vincula datis, segregata ex hostium coacervatorum cumulis corpora suorum cum sepeliri jussisset, Flamini quoque corpus funeris causa magna cum cura inquisitum non invenit. Romæ ad primum nuntium cladis ejus cum ingenti terrore ac tumultu concursus in forum populi est factus: matronæ vagæ per vias, quæ repens clades adlata, quæve fortuna exercitus esset, obvios percunctantur: et cum frequentis contionis modo turba in comitium et curiam versa magistratus vocaret, tandem haud multo ante solis occasum M. Pomponius prætor, "pugna," inquit, "magna victi sumus." et quamquam nihil certius ex eo auditum est, tamen alius ab alio inpleti rumoribus domos referunt, "consulem cum magna parte copiarum cæsum, superesse "paucos aut fuga passim per Etruriam sparsos, aut captos ab "hoste." Quot casus exercitus victi fuerant, tot in curas dispersiti animi eorum erant, quorum propinqui sub C. Flaminio consule meruerant, ignorantium, quæ cujusque suorum fortuna esset: nec quisquam satis certum habet, quid aut speret aut timeat. Postero ac deinceps aliquot diebus ad portas major prope mulierum quam virorum multitudo stetit, aut suorum aliquem, aut nuntios de iis opperiens, circumfundebanturque obviis sciscitantes, neque avelli, utique ab notis, priusquam ordine omnia inquisissent, poterant. Inde varios vultus digredientium ab nuntiis cerneret, ut cuique læta aut tristia nuntiabantur, gratulantesque aut consolantes redeuntibus domos circumfusus. Feminarum præcipue et gaudia insignia erant, et luctus: unam in ipsa porta, sospiti filio repente oblatam, in complexu ejus expirasse ferunt; alteram, cui mors fili falso nuntiata erat, mæstam, sedentem domi ad primum conspectum redeuntis fili gaudio nimio exanimatam. Senatum prætores per dies aliquot ab orto usque ad occidentem solem in curia retinent consultantes, quoniam duce aut copiis quibus resisti victoribus Pœnis posset.

VIII. Priusquam satis certa consilia essent, repens alia nuntiatur clades, quattuor millia equitum cum C. Centenio pro prætore missa ad conlegam ab Servilio consule, in Umbria, quo post pugnam ad Trasumennum auditam averterant iter, ab Hannibale circumventa. Ejus rei fama varie homines adfecit: pars, occupatis majore ægritudine animis, levem ex comparatione priorum ducere recentem equitum jacturam; pars non id quod acciderat per se æstimare, sed ut in adfecto corpore quamvis levis causa magis, quam valido gravior, sentiretur, ita tum ægræ et adfectæ civitati quodcumque adversi inciderit, non rerum magnitudine, sed viribus extenuatis, quæ nihil, quod adgravaret, pati possent, æstimandum esse. Itaque ad remedium jam diu neque desideratum nec adhibitum, dictatorem dicendum, civitas confugit: et quia et consul aberat, a quo uno dici posse videbatur, nec per occupatam armis Punicis Italiam facile erat aut nuntium aut litteras mitti, nec dictatorem populus creare poterat, quod numquam ante eam diem factum erat, prodictatorem populus creavit Q. Fabium Maximum, et magistrum equitum M. Minucium Rufum: hisque negotium ab senatu datum ut muros turresque urbis firmarent, et præsidia disponent, quibus locis videretur, pontesque rescinderent fluminum: pro urbe ac penatibus dimicandum esse, quando Italiam tueri nequissent.

IX. Hannibal recto itinere per Umbriam usque ad Spoletium venit. Inde, cum perpopulato agro urbem oppugnare adortus esset, cum magna cæde suorum repulsus, conjectans ex unius coloniae haud nimis prospere tentatæ viribus, quanta moles Romanæ urbis esset, in agrum Picenum avertit iter, non copia solum omnis generis frugum abundantem, sed refertum præda, quam effuse avidi atque egentes rapiebant. Ibi per dies aliquot stativa habita, refectusque miles hibernis itineribus ac palustri via prælioque, magis ad eventum secundo quam levi aut facili, adfectus. Ubi satis quieti datum præda ac populationibus magis quam otio aut requie gaudentibus, profectus Præstatianum, Hadrianum agrum, Marsos inde Marrucinosque et Pellignos devastat, circaque Arpos et Luceriam proximam Apuliæ regionem. Qn. Servilius consul, levibus præliis cum Gallis actis, et uno oppido ignobili expugnato, postquam de conlegæ exercitusque cæde audivit, jam moenibus patriæ metuens, ne abesset in discrimine extremo, ad urbem iter intendit. Q. Fabius Maximus dictator iterum, quo die magistratum iniit, vocato senatu, ab diis orsus, cum edocuisset patres plus negligentia cærimoniæ auspiciorumque quam temeritate atque inscitia peccatum a C. Flaminio consule esse, quaque piacula iræ deum essent, ipsos deos consulendos esse, pervicit ut, quod non ferme decernitur, nisi cum tætra prodigia nuntiata sunt, decemviri libros Sibyllinos adire juberentur: qui, inspectis fatalibus libris, rettulerunt patribus, "quod ejus belli causa votum Marti foret, id "non rite factum, de integro atque amplius faciundum esse, et "Jovi ludos magnos et ædes Veneri Erycinæ ac Menti vovendas "esse, et supplicationem lectisterniumque habendum, et Veri "sacrum vovendum, si bellatum prospere esset, resque publica in "eodem, quo ante bellum fuisset, statu permansisset." Senatus, quoniam Fabium belli cura occupatura esset, M. Æmilium prætorem, ex conlegii pontificum sententia, omnia ea ut mature fiant, curare jubet.

X. His senatus consultis perfectis, L. Cornelius Lentulus pontifex maximus, consulente conlegio prætorum, omnium primum populum consulendum de vere sacro censet: injussu populi voveri non posse. Rogatus in hæc verba populus: "velitis "jubeatisne hæc sic fieri? si res publica populi Romani Quiritium ad quinquennium proximum, sicut velim eam, sic salva "servata erit hisce duellis, datum donum duit populus Romanus "Quiritium:—quod duellum populo Romano cum Carthaginiensi "est, quaque duella cum Gallis sunt quivēcis Alpes sunt:—quod "ver adulterit ex suillo, ovillo, caprino, bovillo grege, quæ "que profana erunt, Jovi fieri, ex qua die senatus populusque "jusserit: qui faciet, quando volet, quaque lege volet, facito: "quo modo faxit, probe factum esto: si id moritur quod fieri "oportebit, profanum esto, neque scelus esto: si quis rumpet "occidetre insciens, ne fraus esto: si quis clepsit, ne populo "scelus esto, neve cui cleptum erit: si atro die faxit insciens, "probe factum esto: si nocte sive luce, si servus sive liber faxit, "probe factum esto: si ante id ea senatus populusque jusserit "fieri, ac faxitur, eo populus solutus, liber esto." Ejusdem rei causa ludi magni voti æris trecentis triginta tribus millibus, trecentis triginta tribus, triente; præterea bubus Jovi trecentis, multis aliis divis bubus albis atque ceteris hostiis. Votis rite nuncupatis, supplicatio edicta, supplicatumque ire cum conjugibus ac liberis non urbana multitudo tantum, sed agrestium etiam, quos in aliqua sua fortuna publica quoque contingebat cura. Tum lectisternium per triduum habitum, decemviris sacrorum curantibus: sex pulvinaria in conspectu fuerunt, Jovi ac Junoni unum, alterum Neptuno ac Minervæ, tertium Marti ac Veneri, quartum Apollini ac Dianæ, quintum Vulcano ac Vestæ, sextum Mercurio et Cereri. Tum ædes votæ: Veneri Erycinæ ædem Q. Fabius Maximus dictator vovit, quia ita ex fatalibus libris edictum erat, ut is voveret cujus maximum imperium in civitate esset. Menti ædem T. Otacilius prætor vovit.

XI. Ita rebus divinis peractis, tum de bello reque de publica dictator rettulit, quibus quotve legionibus victori hosti obviam eundum esse patres censerent. Decretum ut ab Cn. Servilio consule exercitum acciperet: scriberet præterea ex civibus sociisque quantum equitum ac peditum videretur: cetera omnia ageret faceretque ut e re publica duceret. Fabius duas legiones se adjecturum ad Servilianum exercitum dixit: iis per magistrum equitum scriptis Tibur diem ad conveniendum edixit: edictoque proposito ut, quibus oppida castellaque immunita essent, uti commigrarent in loca tecta: ex agris quoque dimigrarent omnes regionis ejus, qua iturus Hannibal esset, tectis prius incensis ac frugibus corruptis, ne cujus rei copia esset. Ipse via Flaminia profectus obviam consuli exercituque, cum ad Tiberim circa Oericulum prospexisset agmen, consulemque cum equitibus ad se progredientem, viatorem misit qui consuli nuntiaret ut sine lictoribus ad dictatorem veniret. Qui cum dicto paruisset, congressusque eorum ingentem speciem dictaturæ apud cives sociosque, vetustate jam prope oblitos ejus imperii, fecisset, litteræ ab urbe adlatæ sunt, naves onerarias commeatum ab Ostia in Hispaniam ad exercitum portantes a classe Punica circa portum Cosanum captas esse. Itaque extemplo consul Ostiam proficisci jussus, navibusque, quæ ad urbem Romanam aut Ostiæ essent, completis milite ac navalibus sociis, persequi hostium classem, ac litora Italiæ tutari. Magna vis hominum conscripta Romæ erat: libertini etiam, quibus liberi essent et ætas militaris, in verba juraverant: ex hoc urbano exercitu qui minores quinque et triginta annis erant, in naves inpositi: alii, ut urbi præsiderent, relictæ.

XII. Dictator, exercitu consulis accepto a Fulvio Flacco legato, per agrum Sabinum Tibur, quò die ad conveniendum edixerat novis militibus, venit. Inde Præneste ac transversis limitibus in viam Latinam est egressus, unde, itineribus summa cum cura exploratis, ad hostem ducit, nullo loco, nisi quantum necessitas cogeret, fortunæ se commissurus. Quo primum die haud procul Arpis in conspectu hostium posuit castra, nulla mora facta quin Roenus educeret in aciem, copiamque pugnandi faceret: sed ubi quæta omnia apud hostes, nec castra ullo tumultu mota videt, increpans quidem, victos tandem quos Martios animos Romanis, debellatumque et concessumque propalam de virtute ac gloria esse, in castra rediit, ceterum tacita cura animum incensus, quod cum duce, haudquaquam Flaminio Sempronioque simili, futura sibi res esset, ac tum demum edocti malis Romani parem Hannibali ducem quæsisissent. Et prudentiam quidem, non vim dictatoris extemplo timuit: constantiam haud dum expertus, agitare ac tentare animum movendo crebro castra populandoque in oculis ejus agros sociorum cœpit: et modo citato agmine ex conspectu abibat, modo repente in aliquo flexu viæ, si excipere digressum in æquum posset, occultus obsistebat. Fabius per loci alta agmen ducebat modico ab hoste intervallo, ut neque omitteret eum, neque congredederetur: castris, nisi quantum usus necessarii cogeret, tenebatur miles: pabulum et ligna nec pauci petebant, nec passim: equitum levisque armatura, statio, composita instructaque in subitos tumultus, et suo militi tuta omnia et inestesa effusis hostium populatoribus præbebat: neque universo periculo summa rerum committebatur, et parva momenta levium certaminum ex tuto cœptorum, finitimoque receptu, adsuëfaciebant territum pristinis cladibus militem minus jam tandem aut virtutis, aut fortunæ pœnitere suæ. Sed non Hannibalem magis infestum tam sanis consiliis habebat quam magistrum equitum, qui nihil aliud, quam quod inpar erat imperio, moræ ad rem publicam præcipitandam habebat: ferox rapidusque in consiliis ac lingua inmodicus, primo inter paucos, dein propalam in vulgus, pro cunctatore segnem, pro cauto timidum, adfingens vicina virtutibus vitia, compellabat; premendoque superiorem, quæ pessima ars nimis prosperis multorum successibus crevit, sese extollebat.

XIII. Hannibal ex Hirpinis in Samnium transit, Beneventanum depopulatur agrum, Telesiam urbem capit, irritat etiam de industria ducem, si forte accensum tot indignitatibus, cladibus sociorum, detrahare ad æquum certamen possit. Inter multitudinem sociorum Italici generis, qui ad Trasumennum capti ab Hannibale dimissique fuerant, tres Campani equites erant, multis jam tum inlecti donis promissisque Hannibalis ad conciliandos popularium animos: hi nuntiantes, si in Campaniam exercitum admovisset, Capuæ potiendæ copiam fore, cum res major quam auctores esset, dubium Hannibalem, alternisque fidētem ac diffidentē, tamen ut Campanos ex Samnio peteret, moverunt: monitos, ut etiā atque etiā promissa rebus adfirmarent, jussosque cum pluribus et aliquibus principum redire ad se dimisit. Ipse imperat duci ut se in agrum Casinatē ducat, edoctus a peritis regionum, si eum saltum occupasset, exitum Romano ad opem ferendam sociis interclusurum. Sed Punicum abhorrens ab Latino nomine, Casilinum pro Casino dux ut acciperet, fecit, aversusque ab suo itinere per Allifanum Calatinumque et Calenum agrum in campum Stellatē descendit. Ubi cum montibus fluminibusque clausam regionem circumspexisset, vocatū ducem percunctatur, ubi terrarum esset. Cum is Casilini eo die mansurum cum dixisset, tum demum cognitus est error, et Casinum longe inde alia regione esse, virgisque cæso duce, et ad reliquorum terrorem in crucem sublato, castris communis, Maharhalem cum equitibus in agrum Falernum prædatum dimisit. Usque ad aquas Sinuessanas populatio ea pervenit: ingentē cladē, fugam tamen terrorenque latius Numidæ fecerunt: nec tamen is terror, cum omnia bello flagrant, fide socios dimovit, videlicet quia justo et moderato regebantur imperio, nec abnuebant, quod unum vinculum fidei est, melioribus parere.

XIV. Ut vero, postquam ad Vulturnum flumen castra sunt posita, exurebatur amœnissimus Italiæ ager, villæque passim incendiis fumabant, per juga Massici montis Fabio ducente, tum prope de integro seditio accensa. Quieti fuerant enim per paucos dies, quia, cum celerius solito ductum agmen esset, festinari ad prohibendam populationibus Campaniam crediderant: ut vero in extrema juga Massici montis ventum est, hostes sub oculis erant, Falerni agri colonorumque Sinuessæ tecta urentes, nec ulla erat mentio pugnæ, "spectatumne huc" inquit Minucius "ad rem fruendā oculis—sociorum cædes et incendia venimus? Nec si nullius alterius nos, ne civium quidem horum pudet, quos Sinuessam colonos patres nostri miserunt, ut ab Samnite hoste tuta hæc ora esset, quam nunc non vicinū Samnitis urit sed Pœnus advena, ab extremis orbis terrarum terminis nostra cunctatione et socordia jam huc progressus? Tantum, pro! degeneramus a patribus nostris ut, præterquam oram illi suam Punicas vagari classes dedecus esse imperii sui duxerint, eam nunc plenā hostium Numidarumque ac Maurorum jam factam videamus? Qui modo Saguntum oppugnari indignando, non homines tantum sed fœdera et deos ciebamus, scandentem mœnia Romanæ coloniæ et Hannibalem læti spectamus. Fumus ex incendiis villarum agrorumque in oculos atque ora venit; strepunt aures clamō-“ribus plorantium sociorum, sæpius nos quam deorum invocantium opem: nos hic pecorum modo per æstivos saltus deviasque calles exercitum ducimus conditi nubibus silvisque. Si hoc modo peragrando cacumina saltusque M. Furius recipere a Gallis urbem voluisset, quo hic novus Camillus, nobis dictator unicus in rebus adfectis quæsitus, Italiam ab Hannibale recuperare parat, Gallorum Roma esset: quam vereor ne, sic cunctantibus nobis, Hannibali ac Pœnis toties servaverint majores nostri. Sed vir ac vere Romanus, quo die dictatorem eum ex auctoritate patrum jussuque populi dictum, Veios adlatum est, cum esset satis altum Janiculum, ubi sedens prospectaret hostem, descendit in æquum, atque illo ipso die, media in urbe, qua nunc busta Gallica sunt, et postero die citra Gabios cecidit Gallorum legiones. Quid? post multos annos, cum ad Furculas Caudinas ab Samnite hoste sub jugum missi sumus, utrum tandem L. Papirius Cursor juga Samni perlustrando, an Luceriam premendo obsidendoque, et lacessendo victorem hostem, depulsum ab Romanis cervicibus jugum superbo Samniti inposuit? Modo C. Lutatio quæ alia res quam celeritas victoriam dedit, quod postero die quam hostem vidit, classem gravem commeatibus, impeditam suomet ipsam instrumento atque apparatu, oppressit? Stultitia est sedendo aut votis debellari credere posse: armari copias oportet et deducendas in æquum, et vir cum viro congregiari: audeo atque agendo res Romana crevit, non iis segnibus consiliis, quæ timidi cauta vocant.” Hæc velut contionanti Minucio circumfundebatur tribunorum equitumque Romanorum multitudo; et ad aures quoque militum dicta ferocia evolvebantur, ac, si militaris suffragii res esset, haud dubie ferebant Minucium Fabio duci prælaturos.

XV. Fabius pariter inter suos haud minus quam in hostes intentus, prius ab aliis invictum animum præstat. Quamquam probe scit non in castris modo suis sed jam etiam Romæ infamem suam cunctationem esse, obstinatus tamen tenore eodem consiliorum æstatis reliquum extraxit, ut Hannibal, destitutus ab spe summa ope petiti certaminis, jam hibernis locum circumspectaret, quia ea regio præsentis erat copiæ, non perpetuæ, arbusta vineæque, et consita omnia magis amœnis quam necessariis fructibus. Hæc per exploratores relata Fabio. Cum satis sciret per easdem angustias, quibus intraverat Falernum agrum, rediturum, Calliculam montem et Casilinum occupat modicis præsidiis, quæ urbs Vulturno flumine dirempta Falernum a Campano agro dividit: ipse jugis iisdem exercitum reducit, misso exploratum cum quadringentis equitibus sociorum

L. Hostilio Mancino. Qui ex turba juvenum audientium saepe ferociter contionantem magistrum equitum, progressus primo exploratoris modo, ut ex tuto specularetur hostem, ubi vagos passim per vicos Numidas vidit, per occasionem etiam paucos occidit: extemplo occupatus certamine est animus, excideruntque præcepta dictatoris, qui, quantum tuto posset, progressum prius recipere sese jusserat quam in conspectum hostium veniret. Numidæ alii atque alii occurrentes refugientesque ad castra prope ipsum cum fatigatione equorum atque hominum pertrahere: inde Carthalo, penes quem summa equestris imperii erat, concitatis equis invectus, cum priusquam ad conjectum teli veniret, avertisset hostes, quinque ferme millia continenti cursu secutus est fugientes. Mancinus, postquam nec hostem desistere sequi, nec spem vidit effugiendi esse, cohortatus suos in prælium rediit, omni parte virium inpar: itaque ipse et delecti equitum circumventi occiduntur: ceteri effuso rursus cursu Cales primum, inde prope inviis callibus ad dictatorem perferunt. Eo forte die Minucius se conjunxerat Fabio, missus ad firmandum præsidio saltum, qui super Tarracinam, in artas coactus fauces, imminet mari, ne ab Sinuessa Pœnus Appiæ limite pervenire in agrum Romanum posset. Coniunctis exercitiibus dictator ac magister equitum castra in viam deferunt, qua Hannibal ducturus erat. Duo inde millia hostes aberant.

XVI. Postero die Pœni quod viæ inter bina castra erat, agmine complevere. Cum Romani sub ipso constitissent vallo, haud dubie æquiore loco, successit tamen Pœnus cum expeditis equitibus, atque ad lacessendum hostem carptim Pœni et procursando recipiendoque sese pugnare. Restitit suo loco Romana acies: lenta pugna et ex dictatoris magis quam Hannibalis fuit voluntate: ducenti ab Romanis, octingenti hostium cecidere. Inclusus inde videri Hannibal, via ad Casilinum obsessa, cum Capua et Samnium et tantum ab tergo divitum sociorum Romanis commeatus subveheret, Pœnus inter Formiana saxa ac Literni arenas stagnaque perhorrida situ hibernaturus esset. Nec Hannibalem fefellit suis se artibus peti: itaque cum per Casilinum evadere non posset, petendique montes et jugum Calliculæ superandum esset, necubi Romanus inclusum valibus agmen adgrederetur, ludibrium oculorum, specie terribile, ad frustrandum hostem commentus, principio noctis furtim succedere ad montes statuit. Fallacis consilii talis apparatus fuit: faces undique ex agris collectæ, fascisque virgarum atque aridi sarmenti, præliganturque cornibus boum, quos domitos indomitosque multos inter ceteram agrestem prædam agebat: ad duo millia ferme boum effecta, Hasdrubalique negotium datum ut primis tenebris noctis id armentum accensis cornibus ad montes ageret, maxime, si posset, super saltus ab hoste in-sessos.

c. XVII. Primis tenebris silentio mota castra; boves aliquanto ante signa acti. Ubi ad radices montium viasque angustas ventum est, signum extemplo datur ut accensis cornibus armenta in adversos concitentur montes. Et metus ipse relucens flammæ ex capite, calorque jam ad vivum diu ad inaque cornuum adveniens, velut stimulatos furore agebat boves. Quo repente discursu, haud secus quam silvis montibusque accensis, omnia circum virgulta ardere, capitumque inrita quassatio excitans flammam, hominum passim discurrentium speciem præbebat. Qui ad transitum saltus insidendum locati erant, ubi in summis montibus ac super se quosdam ignes conspexere, circumventos se esse rati præsidio excessere: qua minime densæ micabant flammæ, velut tutissimum iter, petentes summa montium juga, tamen in quosdam boves palatos a suis gregibus inciderunt: et primo cum procul cernerent, veluti flammæ spirantium miraculo attoniti constiterunt, deinde, ut humana apparuit fraus, tum vero insidias rati esse, cum majore metu concitant se in fugam; levi quoque armaturæ hostium incurrere. Ceterum nox æquato timore neutros pugnam incipientes ad lucem tenuit: interea toto agmine Hannibal transducto per saltum, et quibusdam in ipso saltu hostium oppressis, in agro Allifano posuit castra.

XVIII. Hunc tumultum sensit Fabius: ceterum et insidias esse ratus, et ab nocturno utique abhorrens certamine, suos munimentis tenuit. Luce prima sub jugo montis prælium fuit, quo interclusam ab suis levem armaturam facile—etenim numero aliquantum præstabant—Romani superassent, nisi Hispanorum cohors ad id ipsum remissa ab Hannibale pervenisset. Ea adsuætor montibus, et ad concursandum inter saxa rupesque aptior ac leviorque, cum velocitate corporum, tum armorum habitu, campestem hostem, gravem armis statariumque, pugnae genere facile elusit. Ita haudquaquam pari certamine digressi, Hispani fere omnes incolumes, Romani, aliquot suis amissis, in castra contenderunt. Fabius quoque movit castra, transgressusque saltum, super Allifas loco alto ac munito consedit. Tum per Samnium Romam se petere simulans Hannibal usque in Pelignos populabundus rediit: Fabius medius inter hostium agmen urbemque Romam jugis ducebat, nec absistens, nec congregiens. Ex Pelignis Pœnus flexit iter, retroque Apuliam repetens Geronium pervenit, urbem metu, quia conlapsa ruinis pars mœnium erat, ab suis desertam. Dictator in Larinate agro castra communiit. Inde sacrorum causa Romam revocatus, non imperio modo, sed consilio etiam ac prope precibus agens cum magistro equitum, "ut plus consilio quam fortunæ confidat, et se potius "ducem quam Sempronium Flaminiumque imitetur: ne nihil. "actum censeret, extracta prope æstate per ludificationem hostis: "medicos quoque plus interdum quiete quam movendo atque "agendo proficere: haud parvam rem esse ab toties victore "hoste vinci desisse ab continuis cladibus, ac respirasse:" hæc nequiquam præmonito magistro equitum, Romam est profectus.

XIX. Principio ætatis, qua hæc gerebantur, in Hispania quoque terra marique cœptum bellum est. Hasdrubal ad eum navium numerum, quem a fratre instructum paratumque acceperat, decem adjecit: quadraginta navium classem Himilconi tradit, atque ita Carthagine profectus, navibus prope terram, exercitum in litore ducebat, paratus configere, quacumque parte copiarum hostis occurrisset. Cn. Scipio postquam movisse ex hibernis hostem audit, primo idem consilii fuit: deinde minus terra propter ingentem famam novorum auxiliorum concurrere ausus, delecto milite ad naves inposito, quinque et triginta navium classe ire obviam hosti pergit: altero ab Tarracone die stationem decem millia passuum distantem ab ostio Hiberi amnis pervenit. Inde quæ Massiliensium speculatoriæ præmissæ rettulere classem Punicam stare in ostio fluminis, castraque in ripa posita: itaque ut improvidos incautosque universo simul effuso terrore opprimeret, sublatis anchoris ad hostem vadit. Multas et locis altis positas turres Hispania habet, quibus et speculis et propugnaculis adversus latrones utuntur. Inde primo conspectis hostium navibus datum signum Hasdrubali est; tumultusque prius in terra et castris quam ad mare et ad naves est ortus, nondum aut pulsu remorum strepituque alio nautico exaudito, aut aperiensibus classem promontoriis, cum repente eques, alius super alium ab Hasdrubale missus, vagos in litore quietosque in tentoriis suis, nihil minus quam hostem aut prælium eo die expectantes, conscendere naves propere, atque arma capere jubet: classem Romanam jam haud procul portu esse. Hæc equites dimissi passim imperabant. Mox Hasdrubal ipse cum omni exercitu aderat; varioque omnia tumultu strepunt, ruentibus in naves simul remigibus militibusque, fugientium magis e terra quam in pugnam euntium mole. Vixdum omnes conscenderant, cum alii resolutis oris in anchoras eveherentur; alii, ne quid teneat, anchoralia incidunt, raptimque omnia præpropere agendo, militum apparatu nautica ministeria impediuntur, trepidatione nautarum capere et aptare arma miles prohibentur.

Et jam Romanus non adpropinquabat modo sed direxerat etiam in pugnam naves. Itaque non ab hoste et prælio magis Pœni quam suomet ipsi tumultu turbati, et tentata verius pugna, quam inita, in fugam averterunt classem: et cum adversi annis os lato agmini et tam multis simul venientibus haud sane intrabile esset, in litus passim naves egerunt, atque alii vadis, alii sicco litore excepti, partim armati, partim inermes, ad instructam per litus aciem suorum perfergere. Duæ tamen primo concursu captæ erant Punicæ naves, quattuor suppressæ.

XX. Romani, quamquam terra hostium erat, armatamque aciem toto prætentam in litore cernebant, haud cunctanter insecuti trepidam hostium classem, naves omnes, quæ non aut perfregerant proras litori inlisas, aut carinas fixerant vadis, religatas puppibus in altum extraxere; ad quinque et viginti naves e quadraginta cepere. Neque id pulcherrimum ejus victoriæ fuit, sed quod una levi pugna toto ejus oræ mari potiti erant. Itaque ad Onusam classe provecti; escensio ab navibus in terram facta. Cum urbem vi cepissent, captamque diripuisent, Carthaginem inde petunt, atque omnem agrum circa depopulati, postremo tecta quoque injuncta muro portisque incendunt. Inde jam præda gravis ad Longunticam pervenit classis, ubi vis magna sparti ad rem nauticam congesta ab Hasdrubale: quod satis in usum fuit sublato, ceterum omne incensum est. Nec continentis modo projectas oras, sed in Ebusum insulam transmissum. Ibi urbe, quæ caput insulæ est, biduum nequam summo labore oppugnata, ubi in spem irritam frustrati tempus animadversum est, ad populationem agri versi, direptis aliquot incensisque vicis, majore quam ex continenti præda parta, cum in naves se recepissent, ex Baliaribus insulis legati pacem petentes ad Scipionem venerunt. Inde flexa retro classis, reditumque in citeriora provinciæ, quo omnium populorum, qui Hiberum accolunt, multorum et ultimæ Hispaniæ legati concurrerunt. Sed qui vere ditionis imperiique Romani facti sint, obsidibus datis, populi, amplius fuerunt centum viginti. Igitur terrestribus quoque copiis satis fidens Romanus usque ad saltum Castulonensem est progressus: Hasdrubal in Lusitaniam ac propius Oceanum concessit.

XXI. Quietum inde fore videbatur reliquum æstatis tempus, fuissetque per Pœnum hostem: sed præterquam quod ipsorum Hispanorum inquieta avidaque in novas res sunt ingenia, Mandonius Indebilisque, qui antea Ilergetum regulus fuerat, postquam Romani ab saltu recessere ad maritimam oram, concitis popularibus, in agrum pacatum sociorum Romanorum ad populandum venerunt. Adversus eos tribunus militum cum expeditis auxiliis a Scipione missi, levi certamine, ut tumultuariam manum, fudere omnes, occisis quibusdam captisque, magnaque parte armis exuta. Hic tamen tumultus cedentem ad Oceanum Hasdrubalem cis Hiberum ad socios tutandos retraxit. Castra Punica in agro Lergavonensium, castra Romana ad Novam classem erant, cum fama repens alio avertit bellum. Celtiberi, qui principes regionis suæ legatos obsidesque dederant Romanis, nuntio misso a Scipione exciti, arma capiunt, provinciamque Carthaginiensium valido exercitu invadunt, tria oppida vi expugnant: inde cum ipso Hasdrubale duobus præliis egregie pugnant, ac quindecim millia hostium occiderunt, quattuor millia cum multis militariis signis capiunt.

XXII. Hoc statu rerum in Hispania P. Scipio in provinciam venit, prorogato post consulatum imperio ab senatu missus, cum triginta longis navibus et octo millibus militum magnoque commeatu advecto. Ea classis ingens, agmine onerariarum procul visa cum magna lætitia civium sociorumque portum Tarraconis ex alto tenuit. Ibi milite exposito, profectus Scipio fratri se conjungit; ac deinde communi animo consilioque gerebant bellum. Occupatis igitur Carthaginiensibus Celtiberico bello, haud cunctanter Hiberum transgrediuntur, nec ullo viso hoste Saguntum pergunt, ne, quod ibi obsides totius Hispaniæ traditos ab Hannibale fama erat modico in arce custodiri præsidio. Id unum pignus inclinatos ad Romanam societatem omnium Hispaniæ populorum animos morabatur, ne sanguine liberum suorum culpa defectionis lueretur. Eo vinculo Hispaniam vir unus sollerti magis quam fideli consilio exsolvit. Abelux erat Sagunti nobilis Hispanus, fidus ante Pœnis; tum, qualia plerumque sunt barbarorum ingenia, cum fortuna mutaverat fidem. Ceterum transfugam sine magnæ rei proditione venientem ad hostes nihil aliud quam unum vile atque infame corpus esse ratus, id agebat ut quam maximum emolumentum novis sociis esset. Circumspectis igitur omnibus, quæ fortuna potestatis ejus poterat facere, obsidibus potissimum tradendis animum adjecit, eam unam rem maxime ratus conciliaturam Romanis principum Hispaniæ amicitiam. Sed cum, injussu Bostaris præfecti, satis sciret nihil obsidum custodes facturos esse, Bostarem ipsum arte adgreditur. Castra extra urbem in ipso litore habebat Bostar, ut aditum ex ea parte intercluderet Romanis. Ibi eum in secretum abductum, velut ignorantem monet, quo statu sit res: "metum continuisse ad eam diem. Hispanorum animos, quia procul Romani abessent: nunc cis Hiberum castra Romana esse, arcem tutam perfugiumque novas volentibus res: itaque quos metus non teneat, beneficio “et gratia devinciendos esse.” Miranti Bostari percunctantique, “quoddam id subitum tantæ rei donum posset esse,” “Obsides” inquit “in civitates remitte: id et privatim parentibus, quorum “maximum nomen in civitatibus est suis, et publice populis “gratum erit: vult sibi quisque credi, et habita fides ipsam “plerumque obligat fidem: ministerium restituendorum domos “obsidium mihi met depono ipse, ut opera quoque impensa “consilium adjuvem meum et rei suapte natura gratæ quantum “insuper gratiam possim adjiciam.” Homini non ad cetera Punica ingenia callido ut persuasit, nocte clam progressus ad hostium stationes, conventio quibusdam auxiliaribus Hispanis, et ab his ad Scipionem perductus, quid adferret, exprimit: et fide accepta datque, ac loco et tempore constituto ad obsides tradendos, Saguntum redit. Diem insequentem absumpsit cum Bostare mandatis ad rem agendam accipiendis: dimissus, cum se nocte iturum, ut custodias hostium falleret, constituisset, ad compositam cum iis horam excitatis custodibus puerorum profectus, veluti ignarus in præparatas sua fraude insidias ducit. In castra Romana perducti: cetera omnia de reddendis obsidibus, sicut cum Bostare constitutum erat, acta per eundem ordine quo si Carthaginiensium nomine sic ageretur. Major aliquanto Romanorum gratia fuit in re pari quam quanta futura Carthaginiensium fuerat: illos enim, graves, superbos in rebus secundis expertos, fortuna et timor mitigasse videri poterat: Romanus primo adventu, incognitus ante, ab re clementi liberalique initium fecerat. Et Abelux, vir prudens, haud frustra videbatur socios mutasse: itaque ingenti consensu defectionem omnes spectare, armaque extemplo mota forent, ni hiems, quæ Romanos quoque et Carthaginienses concedere in tecta coegit, intervenisset.

XXIII. Hæc in Hispania quoque secunda æstate Punici belli gesta, cum in Italia paulum intervalli cladibus Romanis sollers cunctatio Fabii fecisset: quæ ut Hannibalem non mediocri sollicitum cura habebat, tandem eum militiæ magistrum delegisse Romanos cernentem, qui bellum ratione, non fortuna, gereret, ita contempta erat inter cives armatos pariter togatosque, utique postquam, absente eo, temeritate magistri equitum læto verius dixerim quam prospero eventu pugnatum fuerat. Accesserant duæ res ad augendam invidiam dictatoris: una fraude ac dolo Hannibalis, quod, cum a perfugis ei monstratus ager dictatoris esset, omnibus circa solo æquatis, ab uno eo ferrum ignemque et vim omnem hostium abstineri jussit, ut occulti alicujus pacti ea merces videri posset: altera ipsius facto, primo forsitan dubio, quia non expectata in eo senatus auctoritas est, ad extremum haud ambigue in maximam laudem verso, in permutandis captivis, quod, sicut primo Punico bello factum erat, convenerat inter duces Romanum Pœnumque ut, quæ pars plus reciperet quam daret, argenti pondo bina et selibras in militem præstaret. Ducentos quadragiuta septem cum plures Romanus quam Pœnus recepisset, argentumque pro eis debitum, sæpe jactata in senatu re, quoniam non consulisset patres, tardius rogaretur, inviolatum ab hoste agrum, misso Romam Quinto filio, vendidit, fidemque publicam inpendio privato exsolvit. Hannibal pro Gereoni mœnibus, cujus urbis, captæ atque incensæ ab se, in usum horreorum pauca reliquerat tecta, in stativis erat. Inde frumentatum duas exercitus partes mittebat; cum tertia ipse expedita in statione erat, simul castris præsidio, et circumspectans, necunde impetus in frumentatores fieret.

XXIV. Romanus tunc exercitus in agro Larinati erat: præerat Minucius magister equitum, profecto, sicut ante dictum est, ad urbem dictatore. Ceterum castra, quæ in monte alto ac tuto loco posita fuerant, jam in planum deferuntur, agitabanturque pro ingenio ducis consilia calidiora, ut impetus aut in frumentatores palatos, aut in castra relicta cum levi præsidio fieret. Nec Hannibalem fefellit cum duce mutatam esse belli rationem, et ferocius quam consultius rem hostes gesturos. Ipse autem, quod minime quis crederet, cum hostis propius esset, tertiam partem militum frumentatum, duabus in castris retentis, dimisit; dein castra ipsa propius hostem movit duo ferme a Gereonio millia in tumultum hosti conspectum, ut intentum sciret esse ad frumentatores, si qua vis fieret, tutandos. Propior inde ei atque ipsis imminens Romanorum castris tumultus apparuit; ad quem capiendum si luce palam iretur, quia haud dubie hostis breviora via præventurus erat, nocte clam missi Numidæ ceperunt. Quos tenentes locum, contempta paucitate, Romani postero die cum jecissent, ipsi eo transferunt castra. Tum itaque exiguum spatii vallum a vallo aberat, et id ipsum tota prope compleverat Romana acies: simul et per aversa castra equitatus cum levi armatura emissus in frumentatores late eadem fugamque hostium palatorum fecit. Nec acie certare Hannibal ausus; quia tanta paucitate vix castra, si oppugnarentur, tutari poterat: jamque artibus Fabiis—pars exercitus aberat jam ferme—sedendo et cunctando bellum gerebat, receperatque suos in priora castra, quæ pro Gereoni mœnibus erant. Justa quoque acie et conlatis signis dimicatum quidam auctores sunt: primo concursu Pœnum usque ad castra fusum, inde, eruptione facta, repente versum terrorem in Romanos; Numeri Decimi Samnitis deinde interventu prælium restitutum: hunc principem genere ac divitiis non Boviani modo, unde erat, sed toto Samnio, jussu dictatoris octo millia peditum, mille equites adducentem in castra, ab tergo cum apparuisset Hannibali, speciem parti utriusque præbuisse novi præsidii cum Q. Fabio ab Roma venientis; Hannibalem insidiarum quoque aliquid timentem recepisse suos; Romanum insecutum, adjuvante Samnite, duo castella eo die expugnasse; sex millia hostium cæsa, quinque admodum Romanorum: tamen in tam pari prope clade famam egregiæ victoriæ cum vanioribus litteris magistri equitum Romam perlatam.

XXV. De iis rebus persæpe et in senatu et in contione actum est. Cum, læta civitate, dictator unus nihil nec famæ, nec litteris crederet, "ut vera omnia essent, secunda se magis quam adversa "timere" diceret, tum M. Metellus tribunus plebis "id enim "ferendum esse" negat: "non præsentem solum dictatorem ob- "stitisse rei bene gerendæ, sed absentem etiam gestæ obstare, et "in ducendo bello ac sædulo tempus terere, quo diutius in magis- "tratu sit, solusque et Romæ et in exercitu imperium habeat: "quippe consulum alterum in acie cecidisse, alterum, specie "classis Punicæ persequendæ, procul ab Italia ablegatum: duos "prætores Sicilia atque Sardinia occupatos, quorum neutra hoc "tempore provincia prætore egeat: M. Minucium magistrum "equitum, ne hostem videret, ne quid rei bellicæ gereret, prope "in custodiam habitum: itaque hercule non Samnium modo, "quo jam, tamquam trans Hiberum agro, Pœnis concessum "sit, sed Campanum Calenumque et Falernum agrum pervasta- "tos esse, sedenti Casilini dictatore et legionibus populi Romani "agrum suum tutante. Exercitum cupientem pugnare et "magistrum equitum clausos prope intra vallum retentos; tam- "quam hostibus captivis arma adempta: tandem, ut abscesserit "inde dictator, ut obsidione liberatos, extra vallum egressos "fudisse ac fugasse hostes. Quas ob res, si antiquus animus "plebei Romanæ esset, audaciter se laturum fuisse dein de abro- "gando Q. Fabi imperio: nunc modicam rogationem promul- "gatum de æquando magistræ equitum et dictatoris jure. Nec "tamen ne ita quidem prius mittendum ad exercitum Q. Fabium "quam consulem in locum C. Flamini suffecisset." Dictator "contionibus se abstinuit, in actione minime popularis: ne in "senatu quidem satis æquis auribus audiebatur, hunc cum hostem "verbis extolleret, biennique clades per temeritatem atque inscien- "tiam ducum acceptas referret, "magistroque equitum, quod "contra dictum suum pugnasset, rationem diceret reddendam "esse: si penes se summa imperii consilii sit, propediem "effecturum ut sciant homines, bono imperatore haud magni "fortunam momenti esse, mentem rationemque dominari, et in

"tempore et sine ignominia servasse exercitum quam multa
 "millia hostium occidisse majorem gloriam esse." Hujus generis orationibus frustra habitis, et consule creato M. Atilio Regulo, ne præsens de jure imperii dimicaret, pridie quam rogationis ferendæ dies adesset, nocte ad exercitum abiit. Luce orta cum plebis concilium esset, magis tacita invidia dictatoris, favorque magistri equitum animos versabat, quam satis audebant homines ad suadendum, quod vulgo placebat, prodire, et, favore supe-rante, auctoritas tamen rogationi deerat. Unus inventus est suasor legis C. Terentius Varro, qui priore anno prætor fuerat, loco non humili solum sed etiam sordido ortus. Patrem lanium fuisse ferunt, ipsum institorem mercis, filioque hoc ipso in servili ejus artis ministerio usum.

XXVI. Is juvenis, ut primam ex eo genere quæstus pecunia a patre relicta animos ad spem liberalioris fortunæ fecit, togaque et forum placuere, proclamando pro sordidis hominibus causisque adversus rem et famam bonorum, primum in notitiam populi, deinde ad honores pervenit. Quæstura quoque et duabus ædilitatibus, plebeia et curuli, postremo et prætura perfunctus, jam ad consulatus spem cum adtolleret animos, haud parum callide auram favoris popularis ex dictatoria invidia petit, scitque plebis unus gratiam tulit. Omnes eam rogationem, quique Romæ, quique in exercitu erant, æqui atque iniqui, præter ipsum dictatorem, in contumeliam ejus latam acceperunt: ipse, qua gravitate animi criminantes se ad multitudinem inimicos tulerat, eadem et populi in se sævientem injuriam tulit, acceptisque in ipso itinere litteris senatusconsulti de æquato imperio, satis fidens haudquaquam cum imperii jure artem imperandi æquatam, cumque invicto a civibus hostibusque animo ad exer-citum rediit.

XXVII. Minucius vero cum jam ante vix tolerabilis fuisset secundis rebus ac favore vulgi, tum utique inmodice inmodesteque non Hannibale magis victo ab se, quam Q. Fabio, gloriari:
 "illum in rebus asperis unicum ducem ac parem quæsitum Han-
 "nibali, majorem minori, dictatorem magistro equitum, quod
 "nulla memoria habeat annalium, jussu populi æquatam in eadem
 "civitate, in qua magistri equitum virgas ac secures dictatoris
 "tremere atque horrere soliti sint: tantum suam felicitatem
 "virtutemque enituisse: ergo secuturumque se fortunam suam,
 "si dictator in cunctationi ac segnitie dæorum hominumque
 "judicio damnata perstaret." Itaque quo die primum congres-sus est cum Q. Fabio, "statuendum omnium primum" ait
 "esse, quem ad modum imperio æquato utantur: se optimum
 "ducere aut diebus alternis aut, si majora intervalla placerent,

“partitis temporibus, alterius summum jus imperiumque esse, ut par hosti non consilio solum, sed viribus etiam esset, si quam occasionem rei gerendæ habuisset.” Q. Fabio haudquaquam id placere: “omnia fortunam enim habituram, quæcunque temeritas conlegæ habuisset: sibi communicatum cum alio, non ademptum imperium esse: itaque se numquam volentem parte, qua posset, rerum consilio gerendum cessurum; nec se tempora aut dies imperii cum eo, exercitum divisurum, suisque consiliis, quoniam omnia non liceret, quæ posset servaturum.” Ita obtinuit ut legiones, sicut consulibus mos est, se inter dividerent: prima et quarta Minucio, secunda et tertia Fabio evenerunt: item equites pari numero, sociumque et Latini nominis auxilia dividerunt: castris se quoque separari magister equitum voluit.

XXVIII. Duplex inde Hannibali gaudium fuit: neque enim quicquam eorum, quæ apud hostes agerentur, eum fallebat, et perfugis multa indicantibus, et per suos explorantem: nam et liberam Minuci temeritatem se suo modo captaturum, et sollicitæ Fabii dimidium virium decessisse. Tumulus erat inter castra Minucii et Pœnorum, quem qui occupasset, haud dubie iniquiorem erat hosti locum factururus. Eum non tam capere sine certamine volebat Hannibal, quamquam ad operæ pretium erat, quam causam certaminis cum Minucio, quem semper occursum ad obsistendum satis sciebat, contrahere. Ager omnis medius erat prima specie inutilis insidiatori, quia non modo silvestre quicquam, sed ne vepibus quidem vestitum habebat, re ipsa natus tegendis insidiis eo magis, quod in nuda valle nulla talis fraus timeri poterat: et erant in anfractibus cavæ rupes, ut quædam earum ducenos armatos possent capere. In has latebras, quot quemque locum apte insidere poterant, quinque millia conduntur peditum equitumque: necubi tamen aut motus alicujus temere egressi, aut fulgor armorum fraudem in valle tam aperta detegeret, missis paucis prima luce ad capiendum quem ante diximus tumulum, avertit oculos hostium. Primo statim conspectu contempta paucitas; ac sibi quisque deposcere pellendos inde hostes ad locum capiendum. Dux ipse inter stolidissimos ferocissimosque ad arma vocat, et vanis animis et minis increpat hostem: principio levem armaturam dimittit, deinde conserto agmine mittit equites; postremo, cum hostibus quoque subsidia mitti videret, instructis legionibus procedit. Et Hannibal laborantibus suis alia atque alia, ut crescente certamine, mittens auxilia peditum equitumque, jam justam expleverat aciem, ac totis utrimque viribus certatur. Prima levis armatura Romanorum, præoccupatum inferiore loco succedens tumulum, pulsa detrusaque terrorem in succedentem intulit equitem, et ad signa legionum refugit. Peditum acies inter percultos inpavida sola erat, videbaturque, si justa ac si recta pugna esset, haudquaquam impar futura: tantum animorum fecerat prospere ante paucos dies res gesta: sed exorti repente insidiatores eum tumultum terroremque in latera utrimque ab tergoque incursantes fecerunt, ut neque animus ad pugnam neque ad fugam spes cuiquam superesset.

XXIX. Tum Fabius primo clamore paventium audito, dein conspecta procul turbata acie, "Ita est;" inquit, "non celerius quam timui deprenit fortuna temeritatem: Fabio æquatus imperio Hannibalem et virtute et fortuna superiorem videt. Sed aliud iurgandi succensendique tempus erit: nunc signa extra vallum proferte: victoriam hosti extorqueamus, confessionem erroris civibus." Jam magna ex parte cæsis aliis, aliis circumspectantibus fugam, Fabiana se acies repente, velut cælo dimissa ad auxilium, ostendit: itaque, priusquam ad conjectum teli veniret, aut manum consereret, et suos a fuga effusa, et ab nimis feroci pugna hostes continuit: qui solutis ordinibus vage dissipati erant, undique confugerunt ad integram aciem; qui plures simul terga dederant, conversi in hostem, volentesque orbem, nunc sensim referre pedem, nunc conglobati restare: ac jam prope una acies facta erat victi neque integri exercitus, inferebantque signa in hostem, cum Pœnus receptui cecinit, palam ferente Hannibale ab se Minucium, se ab Fabio victum. Ita per variam fortunam diei maiore parte exacta, cum in castra reditum esset, Minucius convocatis militibus "sæpe ego" inquit "audivi, milites, eum primum esse virum, qui ipse consulat quid in rem sit, secundum eum qui bene monenti obediat: qui nec ipse consulere, nec alteri parere sciat, eum extremi ingenii esse. Nobis quoniam prima animi ingeniique negata sors est, secundam ac mediam teneamus, et, dum imperare discimus, parere prudenti in animum inducamus. Castra cum Fabio jungamus; ad prætorium ejus signa contulerimus: ubi ego eum parentem appellavero, quod beneficio ejus erga nos ac majestate ejus dignum est, vos, milites, eos, quorum vos modo arma, dexterae texerunt, patronos salutabitis, et, si nihil aliud, gratorum certe nobis animorum gloriam dies hic dederit."

XXX. Signo dato conclamatur inde ut colligantur vasa. Profecti et agmine incedentes dictatoris castra, in admirationem et ipsum et omnes qui circa erant converterunt. Ut constituta sunt ante tribunal signa, progressus ante alios magister equitum, cum patrem Fabium appellasset, circumfususque militum ejus totum agmen patronos consalutasset, "Parentibus" inquit "meis, “dictator, quibus te modo nomine, quo fando possum, æquavi, “vitam tantum debeo; tibi cum meam salutem, tum omnium “horum: itaque plebei scitum, quo oneratus magis quam hono“ratus sum, primus antiquo abrogoque et, quod tibi mihiq“ue, quod exercitibusque his tuis, servato ac conservatori, sit felix, “sub imperium auspiciūque tuum redeo, et signa hæc legio“nesque restituo: tu, quæso, placatus me magisterio equitum, “hos ordinibus suis quemque teneri jubeas.” Tum dextræ interjunctæ, militesque, contione dimissa, ab notis ignotisque benigne atque hospitaliter invitati; lætusque dies ex admodum tristi paulo ante ac prope execrabili factus. Romæ, ut est perlata fama rei gestæ, dein litteris non magis ipsorum imperatorum quam vulgo militum ex utroque exercitu adfirmata, pro se quisque Maximum laudibus ad cælum ferre. Par gloria apud Hannibalem hostesque Pœnos erat, ac tum demum sentire cum Romanis atque in Italia bellum esse: nam biennio ante adeo et duces Romanos et milites spreverant, ut vix cum eadem gente bellum esse crederent, cujus terribilem eam famam a patribus accepissent. Hannibalem quoque ex acie redeuntem dixisse ferunt, “tandem eam nubem, quæ sedere in jugis mon“tium solita sit, cum procella imbrem dedisse.”

XXXI. Dum hæc geruntur in Italia, Cn. Servilius Geminus consul cum classe centum viginti navium circumvectus Sardinie et Corsicæ oram, et obsidibus utrimque acceptis, in Africam transmisit, et prius quam in continentem escensionem faceret, Menige insula vastata, et ab incolentibus Cercinam, ne et ipsorum ureretur diripereturque ager, decem talentis argenti acceptis, ad litora Africæ accessit, copiasque exposuit. Inde ad populandum agrum ducti milites navalesque socii, juxta effusi ac si insulis cultorum egentibus prædarentur. Itaque in insidias temere inlati, cum a frequentibus palantes, et ignari ab locorum gnaris circumvenirentur, cum multa cæde ac fœda fuga retro ad naves compulsi sunt. Ad mille hominum, cum iis Sempronio Blæso quæstore amisso, classis ab litoribus hostium plenis trepide soluta in Siciliam cûrsu tenuit, traditaque Lilybæi T. Otacilio prætori, ut ab legato ejus P. Sura Romam reduceretur. Ipse per Siciliam pedibus profectus, freto in Italiam trajecit, litteris Q. Fabii accitus, et ipse et conlega ejus M.
 Atilius, ut exercitus ab se, exacto jam prope semestri imperio, acciperent. Omnium prope annales Fabium dictatorem adversus Hannibalem rem gessisse tradunt. Cœlius etiam eum primum a populo creatum dictatorem scribit: sed et Cœlium et ceteros fugit uni consuli Cn. Servilio, qui tum procul in Gallia provincia aberat, jus fuisse dicendi dictatoris: quam moram quia ex-pectare territa jam clade civitas non poterat, eo decursum est, ut a populo crearetur, qui pro dictatore esset: res inde gestas gloriamque insignem ducis, et augentes titulum imaginis posteros, ut, qui pro dictatore, dictator crederetur, facile obtinuisse.

XXXII. Consules, Atilius Fabiano, Geminus Servilius Minuciano exercitu accepto, hibernaculis mature communitis—medium autumnus erat—Fabi artibus cum summa inter se concordia bellum gesserunt: frumentatum exeunti Hannibali diversis locis opportuni aderant, carpentes agmen, palatosque excipientes: in casum universae dimicationis, quam omnibus artibus petebat hostis, non veniebant: adeoque inopiae est coactus Hannibal, ut, nisi cum fugae specie abeundum timuisset, Galliam repetiturus fuerit, nulla relicta spe alendi exercitus in eis locis, si insequentes consules eisdem artibus bellum gererent. Cum ad Gereonium jam hieme impediante constitisset bellum, Neapolitani legati Romam venere. Ab iis quadraginta paterae aureae magni ponderis in curiam inlatæ, atque ita verba facta, ut dicerent, “scire re sese “populi ærarium bello exhauriri, et cum juxta pro urbibus “agrisque sociorum, ac pro capite atque arce Italiæ, urbe “Romana atque imperio, geratur, æquum censuisse Neapolitanos, quod auri sibi cum ad templorum ornatum, tum ad “subsidium fortunæ a majoribus relictum foret, eo juvare “populum Romanum: si quam opem in sese crederent, eodem “studio fuisse oblaturos: gratum sibi patres Romanos populum “que facturum, si omnes res Neapolitanorum suas duxissent, “dignosque judicaverint ab quibus donum, animo ac voluntate “eorum qui libentes darent, quam re, majus ampliusque, acciperent.” Legatis gratiæ actæ pro munificentia curaque; patera, quæ ponderis minimi fuit, accepta.

XXXIII. Per eosdem dies speculator Carthaginienensis, qui per biennium fefellerat, Romæ deprensus, præcisisque manibus dimissus, et servi quinque et viginti in crucem acti, quod in campo Martio conjurassent: indici datâ libertas et æris gravis viginti millia. Legati et ad Philippum Macedonum regem missi ad deposcendum Demetrium Pharium, qui bello victus ad eum fugisset, et alii in Ligures ad expostulandum, quod Pœnum opibus auxiliisque suis juvissent; simul ad visendum ex propinquo, quæ in Boiis atque Insubribus gererentur: ad Pineum quoque regem in Illyrios legati missi ad stipendium, cujus dies exierat, poscendum, aut, si diem proferre vellet, obsides accipiendos. Adeo, etsi bellum ingens in cervicibus erat, nullius usquam terrarum rei cura Romanos, ne longinqua quidem, effugiebat. In religionem etiam venit ædem Concordiæ, quam per seditionem mili-

tarem bienno ante L. Manlius prætor in Gallia vovisset, locatam ad id tempus non esse: itaque duumviri ad eam rem creati a M. Æmilio prætore urbano, C. Pupius et Cæso Quinctius Flamininus, ædem in arce faciendam locaverunt. Ab eodem prætore ex senatus consulto litteræ ad consules missæ ut, "si iis videretur, alter eorum ad consules creandos Romam veniret; se in eam diem, quam jussissent, comitia edicturum." Ad hæc consulis rescriptum, "Sine detrimento rei publicæ abscedi non posse ab hoste: itaque per interregem comitia habenda esse potius quam consul alter a bello avocaretur." Patribus rectius visum est dictatorem a consule dici comitiorum habendorum causa: dictus L. Veturius Philo M'. Pomponium Mathonem magistrum equitum dixit. Iis vitio creatis, jussisque die quarto decimo se magistratu abdicare, res ad interregnum rediit.

XXXIV. Consulibus prorogatum in annum imperium. Interreges proditi sunt a patribus C. Claudius, Appi filius, Cento, inde P. Cornelius Asina. In ejus interregno comitia habita magno certamine patrum ac plebis. C. Terentio Varroni—quem sui generis hominem, plebi insectationi principum popularibusque artibus conciliatum, ab Q. Fabi opibus et dictatorio imperio concusso aliena invidia splendentem, vulgus et extrahere ad consuiatum nitebatur—patres summa ope obstabant, ne se insectando sibi æquari adsuescerent homines. Q. Bæbius Herennius tribunus plebis, cognatus C. Terenti, criminando non senatum modo sed etiam augures, quod dictatorem prohibuissent comitia perficere, per invidiam eorum favorem candidato suo conciliabat: "Ab hominibus nobilibus per multos annos bellum quærentibus Hannibalem in Italiam adductum; ab iisdem, cum debellari possit, fraude bellum trahi: cum quattuor legionibus universis pugnari posse apparuisse eo, quod M. Minucius, absente Fabio, prospere pugnasset; duas legiones hosti ad eandem objectas, deinde ex ipsa cæde ereptas, ut pater patronusque appellaretur, qui prius vincere prohibuisset Romanos quam vinci: consules deinde Fabianis artibus, cum debellare possent, bellum traxisse: id fœdus inter omnes nobiles ictum, nec finem ante belli habituros quam consulem vere plebeium, id est hominem novum fecissent: nam plebeios nobiles jam eisdem initiatos esse sacris, et contemnere plebem, ex quo contemni patribus desierint, coepisse: cui non id apparere, id actum et quæsitum esse ut interregnum iniretur, ut in patrum potestate comitia essent? id consules ambos ad exercitum morando quæsisse; id postea, quia invitis iis dictator esset dictus comitiorum causa, expugnatum esse ut vitiosus “dictator per augures fieret: habere igitur interregnum eos;

 “consulatum unum certe plebis Romanæ esse: populum liberum “habiturum ac daturum ei, qui magis vere vincere quam diu “imperare malit.”

XXXV. Cum his orationibus accensa plebs esset, tribus patriciis petentibus, P. Cornelio Merenda, L. Manlio Volsone, M. Emilio Lepido, duobus nobilibus jam familiarum plebei, C. Atilio Serrano et Q. Ælio Pæto, quorum alter pontifex, alter augur erat, C. Terentius consul unus creatur, ut in manu ejus essent comitia rogando conlegæ. Tum experta nobilitas, parum fuisse virium in competitoribus ejus, L. Æmiliū Paulum, qui cum M. Livio consul fuerat, et damnatione conlegæ, et sua prope, ambustus evaserat, infestum plebei, diu ac multum recusantem, ad petitionem compellit: is proximo comitali die, concedentibus omnibus, qui cum Varrone certaverant, par magis in adversandum, quam conlega, datur consuli. Inde prætorialia comitia habita: creati M. Pomponius Matho et P. Furius Philus: Philo Romæ juri dicundo urbana sors, Pomponio inter cives Romanos et peregrinos evenit: additi duo prætores, M. Claudius Marcellus in Siciliam, L. Postumius Albinus in Galliam: omnes absentes creati sunt; nec cuiquam eorum, præter Terentium consulem, mandatus honos quem jam non antea gessisset, præteritis aliquot fortibus ac strenuis viris, quia in talia tempore nullis novus magistratus videbatur mandandus.

XXXVI. Exercitus quoque multiplicati sunt: quantæ autem copię peditum equitumque additæ sunt, adeo et numero et genere copiarum variant auctores, ut vix quicquam satis certum adfirmare ausus sim. Decem millia novorum militum alii scripta in supplementum: alii novas quattuor legiones, ut octo legionibus rem gererent. Numero quoque peditum equitumque legiones auctas, millibus peditum et centenis equitibus in singulas adjectis, ut quina millia peditum, treceni equites essent, socii duplicem numerum equitum darent, pediti æquarent: septem et octoginta millia armatorum et ducentos in castris Romanis, cum pugnatum ad Cannas est, quidam auctores sunt. Illud haudquaquam discrepat, majore conatu atque impetu rem actam quam prioribus annis, quia spem posse vinci hostem dictator præbuerat. Ceterum priusquam signa ab urbe novæ legiones moverent, decemviri libros adire atque inspicere jussi propter territos vulgo homines novis prodigiis: nam et Romæ in Aventino et Ariciæ nuntiatum erat, sub idem tempus lapidibus pluvisse, et multo cruore signa in Sabinis, Cæretes aquas, fonte calido, gelidas manasse: id quidem etiam quod sæpius acciderat magis terrebat: et in via Fornicata, quæ ad Campum erat, aliquot homines de cœlo tacti exanimatique fuerant: ea prodigia ex libris procurata. Legati a Pæsto pateras aureas Romam addulerunt: iis sicut Neapolitanis gratiæ actæ, aurum non acceptum.

XXXVII. Per eosdem dies ab Hierone classis Ostia cum magno commeatu accessit. Legati in senatum introducti nuntiaverunt, "cædem C. Flamini consulis exercitusque adlatam adeo ægre tulisse regem Hieronem, ut nulla sua propria regnique sui clade moveri magis potuerit. Itaque, quamquam probe sciat magnitudinem populi Romani admirabiliorem prope adversis rebus quam secundis esse, tamen se omnia, quibus a bonis fidelibusque sociis bella juvari soleant, misisse; quæ ne accipere abnuant magno opere se patres conscriptos orare. Jam omnium primum ominis causa Victoriam auream pondo ducentum ac viginti adferre sese: acciperent eam tenerentque et haberent propriam et perpetuam. Advexisse etiam trecenta millia modium tritici, ducenta hordei, ne commeatus deessent; et quantum præterea opus esset, quo jussissent, subvecturos. Milite atque equite scire nisi Romano Latinique nominis non uti populum Romanum, levium armatorum auxilia etiam externa vidisse in castris Romanis: itaque misisse mille sagittariorum ac funditorum, aptam manu adversus Baliares ac Mauros, pugnacesque alias missile telo gentes." Ad ea dona consilium quoque addebant "ut prætor, cui provincia Sicilia evenisset, classem in Africam trajiceret, ut et hostes in terra sua bellum haberent, minasque laxamenti daretur his ad auxilia Hannibali submittenda." Ab senatu ita responsum regi est, "virum bonum, egregiumque socium Hieronem esse, atque uno tenore, ex quo in amicitiam populi Romani venerit, fidem coluisse, ac rem Romanam omni tempore ac loco munifice adjuvisse: id, perinde ac deberet, gratum populo Romano esse. Aurum et a civitatibus quibusdam adlatum, gratia rei accepta, non accepisse populum Romanum: Victoriam omenque accipere, sedemque ei se divæ dare, dicare Capitolium, templum Jovis optimi maximi: in ea arce urbis Romanæ sacratam, volentem, propitiamque, firmam ac stabilem fore populo Romano." Funditores sagittarii et frumentum traditum consulibus: quinquereemes ad triavium classem, quæ cum T. Otacilio præpore in Sicilia erant, quinque et viginti additæ, permissumque est ut, si e republica censeret esse, in Africam trajicerent.

XXXVIII. Delectu perfecto consules paucos morati dies, dum socii ab nomine Latino venirent milites. Tum, quod nunquam antea factum erat, iurjurando ab tribunis militum

adacti milites, "jussu consulum conventuros neque injussa
 "abitueros." Nam ad eam diem nihil præter sacramentum fuerat, et, ubi ad decuriatum aut centuriatum convenissent, sua voluntate ipsi inter sese decuriati equites, centuriati pedites conjurabant, sese fugæ atque formidinis ergo non abitueros, neque ex ordine recessuros, nisi teli sumendi aut petendi, et aut hostis ferendi aut civis servandi causa. Id ex voluntario inter ipsos fœdere ad tribunos ad legitimam jurisjurandi adactionem translatum. Contiones, priusquam ab urbe signa moverentur, consulis Varronis multæ ac feroces fuere, denunciantis "bellum
 "arcessitum in Italiam ab nobilibus, mansurumque in visceribus
 "reipublicæ, si plures Fabios imperatores haberet: se quo die
 "hostem vidisset, perfecturum." Conlegæ ejus Pauli una pridie quam ab urbe proficisceretur contio fuit, verior quam gratior populo, qua nihil inclementer in Varronem dictum nisi id modo, "mirari se, quodne qui dux, priusquam aut suum aut
 "hostium exercitum, locorum situm, naturam regionis nosset,
 "jam nunc locatus in urbe sciret quæ sibi agenda armato forent,
 "et diem quoque prædicere posset, qua cum hoste signis con-
 "latis esset dimicaturus. Se, quæ consilia magis res dent
 "hominibus, quam homines rebus, ea ante tempus immatura
 "non præcepturum: optare ut, quæ caute ac consulte gesta
 "essent, satis prospere evadirent: temeritatem, præterquam
 "quod stulta sit, infelicem etiam ad id locorum fuisse." Id sua sponte apparebat, tuta celeribus consiliis præpositurum, et, quo id constantius perseveraret, Q. Fabius Maximus sic eum proficiscentem adlocutus fertur:

XXXIX. "Si aut conlegam, id quod mallet, tui similem,
 "L. Æmili, haberes, aut tu conlegæ tui esses similis, super-
 "vacanea esset oratio mea: nam et duo boni consules, etiam
 "me indicente, omnia & re publica, fide vestra faceretis, et mali
 "nec mea verba auribus vestris, nec consilia animis acciperetis.
 "Nunc et conlegam tuum et te talem virum intuenti mihi tecum
 "omnis oratio est, quem video nequiquam et virum bonum et
 "civem fore, si altera parte claudet respublica, malis consiliis
 "idem ac bonis juris et potestatis erit. Erras enim, L. Paule,
 "si tibi minus certaminis cum C. Terentio quam cum Hannibale
 "futurum censes: nescio an infestior hic adversarius quam ille
 "hostis maneat, et, cum illo in acie tantum, cum hoc omnibus
 "locis ac temporibus si certaturus es, adversus Hannibalem
 "legionesque ejus tuis equitibus ac peditibus pugnandum tibi
 "sit, Varro dux tuis militibus te sit oppugnaturus. Ominis
 "etiam tibi causa absit C. Flamini memoria: tamen ille consul
 "demum, et in provincia et ad exercitum cœpit furere: hic

"priusquam peteret consulatum, deinde in petendo consulatum,
 "nunc quoque consul, priusquam castra videat aut hostem,
 "insanit: et quia tantas jam nunc procellas, praelia atque acies
 "jactando, inter togatos ciet, quid inter armatam juventutem
 "censes facturum, et ubi extemplo res verba sequitur? atqui si
 "hic, quod facturum se denuntiat, extemplo pugnaverit, aut ego
 "rem militarem, belli hoc genus, hostem hunc ignoro, aut
 "nobilior alius Trasumenno locus nostris cladibus erit. Nec
 "gloriandi tempus adversus unum est, ut ego, contemnendo
 "potius quam adpetendo gloriam, modum excesserim: sed ita
 "res se habet; una, ratio belli gerendi adversus Hannibalem est
 "qua ego gessi; nec eventus modo hoc docet—stultorum iste
 "magister est—sed eadem ratio, quae fuit futuraque, donec res
 "eadem manebunt, immutabilis est. In Italia bellum gerimus,
 "in sede ac solo nostro; omnia circa plena civium ac sociorum
 "sunt; armis, viris, equis, commeatibus jurant juvabuntque—id
 "jam fidei documentum in adversis rebus nostris dederunt—:
 "meliores, prudentiores, constantiores nos tempus diesque
 "facit: Hannibal contra in aliena, in hostili est terra, inter
 "omnia inimica infestaque, procul ab domo, ab patria; neque
 "illi terra neque mari est pax; nullae eum urbes accipiunt,
 "nulla moenia; nihil usquam sui videt; in diem capto vivit:
 "partem vix tertiam exercitus ejus habet, quem Hiberum
 "annem trajecit: plures fame quam ferro absumpsit; nec his
 "paucis jam victum suppeditat. Dubitas ergo quin sedendo
 "superaturi simus eum qui senescat in dies, non commeatus,
 "non supplementura, non pecuniam habeat? quamdiu pro
 "Gereoni, castelli Apuliae inopis, tamquam pro Carthaginis
 "moenibus—sed ne adversus te quidem de me gloriabor:
 "Cn. Servilius atque Atilius, proximi consules, vide quem ad
 "modum eum ludificati sint: haec una salutis est via, L. Paule,
 "quam difficilem infestamque cives tibi magis quam hostes
 "facient: idem enim tui, quod hostium milites, volunt; idem
 "Varro consul Romanus, quod Hannibal Poenus imperator
 "cupiet: duobus ducibus unus resistas oportet: resistes autem,
 "adversus famam rumoresque hominum satis si firmus steteris,
 "si te neque conlecta vana gloria, neque tua falsa infamia
 "moverit. Veritatem laborare nimis saepe aiunt, extingui num-
 "quam: gloriam qui spreverit, vere eam habebit. Sine timidum
 "pro cauto, tardum pro considerato, inbellem pro perito belli
 "vocent: malo te sapiens hostis metuat quam stulti cives
 "laudent: omnia audentem contemnet Hannibal; nihil temere
 "agentem metuet. Nec ego, ut nihil agatur, sed ut agentem
 "te ratio ducat, non fortuna: tuae potestatis semper tu tuaque

"omnia sint; armatus intentusque sis, neque occasione tuæ desis,
 "neque suam occasionem hosti des: omnia non properanti clara
 "certaque erunt; festinatio improvida est et cæca."

XL. Adversus ea oratio consulis haud sane læta fuit, magis fatentis ea, quæ diceret, vera, quam facilia factu esse: "dictatori
 "magistrum equitum intolerabilem fuisse; quid consuli adversus
 "conlegam seditiosum ac temerarium virium atque auctoritatis
 "fore? se populare incendium priore consulatu semiustum ef-
 "fugisse: optare ut omnia prospere venirent, et, si quid adversi
 "caperet, hostium se telis, potius quam suffragiis iratorum civium
 "caput objecturum." Ab hoc sermone profectum Paulum tradunt, prosequentibus primoribus patrum: plebeium consulem sua plebes prosecuta, turba conspexit, cum dignitates deessent. Ut in castra venerunt, permixto novo exercitu ac vetere, castris bifariam factis, ut nova minora essent propius Hannibalem, in veteribus major pars et omne robur virium esset, consulum anni prioris M. Atilium, ætatem excusantem, Romam miserunt, Geminum Servilium in minoribus castris legioni Romanæ et socium peditum equitumque duobus millibus præficiunt. Hannibal, quamquam parte dimidia auctas hostium copias cernebat, tamen adventu consulum mire gaudere: non solum enim nihil ex raptis in diem comæatibus superabat, sed ne unde raperet quidem quicquam reliqui erat, omnibus undique frumento, postquam ager parum tutus erat, in urbes munitas convecto, ut vix decem dierum, quod conpertum postea est, frumentum super-esset, Hispanorumque ob inopiam transitio parata fuerit, si maturitas temporum expectata foret.

XLI. Ceterum temeritati consulis ac præpropere ingenio materiam etiam fortuna dedit, quod in prohibendis prædatoribus tumultuario prælio ac procursu magis militum, quam ex præparato aut jussu imperatorum, orto, haudquaquam par Pœnis dimicatio fuit: ad mille et septingenti cæsi, non plus centum Romanorum sociorumque occisi. Ceterum victoribus effuse sequentibus metu insidiarum obstitit Paulus consul, ejus eo die—nam alternis imperitabant—imperium erat, Varrone indignante ac vociferante emissum hostem e manibus, debellarique, ni cessatum foret, potuisse. Hannibal id damnum haud ægerrime pati, quin potius credere velut inescatam temeritatem ferocioris consulis ac novorum maxime militum esse. Et omnia ei hostium, haud secus quam sua, nota erant: dissimiles discordesque imperitare, duas prope partes tironum militum in exercitu esse.
 Itaque locum et tempus insidiis aptum se habere ratus, nocte proxima nihil præter arma secum ferentes educit milites, castra plena omnis fortunæ publicæ privatæque relinquit, transque proximos montes læva pedites instructos condit, dextra equites, impedimenta per convallem, medium agmen, traducit, ut diripiendis velut desertis fuga dominorum castris occupatum impedimentumque hostem opprimeret. Crebri relictis in castris ignes, ut fides fieret, dum ipse longius spatium fuga præciperet, falsa imagine castrorum, sicut Fabium priore anno frustratus esset, tenere in locis consules voluisse.

XLII. Ubi inluxit, subductæ primo stationes; deinde propius adeuntibus insolitum silentium admirationem fecit. Jam satis conperta solitudine in castris, concursus fit ad prætoria consulum, nuntiantium fugam hostium adeo trepidam, ut tabernaculis stantibus castra reliquerint: quoque fuga obscurior esset, crebros etiam relictos ignes. Clamor inde ortus, ut signa proferri juberent, ducerentque ad persequendos hostes ac protinus castra diripienda. Et consul alter velut unus turbæ militaris erat; Paulus etiam atque etiam dicere providendum præcavendumque esse: postremo, cum aliter neque seditionem neque ducem seditionis sustinere posset, Marium Statilium præfectum cum turma Lucana exploratum mittit. Qui ubi adequitavit portis, subsistere extra munimenta ceteris jussis, ipse cum duobus equitibus vallum intravit, speculatusque omnia cum cura. Renunciant insidias profecto esse: ignes in parte castrorum, qua vergant ad hostem, relictos, tabernacula aperta et omnia cara in promptu relictæ, argentum quibusdam locis temere per vias vel objectum ad prædam vidisse. Quæ ad deterrendos a cupiditate animo nuntiata erant, ea accenderunt, et clamore orto a militibus, ni signum detur, sine ducibus ituros, haudquaquam dux defuit; nam extemplo Varro signum dedit proficiscendi. Paulus, cum ei sua sponte cunctanti pulli quoque auspicio non addixissent, obnuntiari jam efferenti porta signa conlegæ jussit. Quod quamquam Varro ægre est passus, Flaminii tamen recens casus Claudique consulis primo Punico bello memorata navalis clades religionem animo incussit. Di prope ipsi eo die magis distulere quam prohibuere imminentem pestem Romanis: nam forte ita evenit ut, cum referri signa in castra jubenti consuli milites non parerent, servi duo, Formiani unus, alter Sidicini equitis, qui Servilio atque Atilio consulibus inter papulatores excepti a Numidis fuerant, profugerent eo die ad dominos: deductique ad consules nuntiant, omnem exercitum Hannibalis trans proximos montes sedere in insidiis. Horum opportunus adventus consules imperi potentes fecit, cum ambitio alterius suam primum apud eos prava indulgentia majestatem solvisset.

XLIII. Hannibal postquam motos magis inconsulte Romanos

quam ad ultimum temere evectos vidit, nequiquam, detecta fraude, in castra rediit. Ibi plures dies propter inopiam frumenti manere nequit; novaque consilia in dies non apud milites solum mixtos ex conlutione omnium gentium, sed etiam apud ducem ipsum oriebantur. Nam cum initio fremitus, deinde aperta vociferatio fuissent: exposcentium stipendium debitum, querentiumque annonam primo, postremo famem, et mercenarios milites maxime Hispani generis de transitione cepisse consilium fama esset, ipse etiam interdum Hannibal de fuga in Galliam dicitur agitasse, ita ut relicto peditatu omni cum equitibus se proriperet. Cum hæc consilia atque hic habitus animorum esset in castris, movere inde statuit in calidiora atque eo maturiora messibus Apuliæ loca, simul quod, quo longius ab hoste recessisset, transfugia inpeditiona levibus ingeniis essent. Profectus est nocte, ignibus similiter factis, tabernaculisque paucis in speciem relictis, ut insidiarum par priori metus contineret Romanos. Sed per eundem Lucanum Statilium, omnibus ultra castra transque montes exploratis, cum relatum esset visum procul hostium agmen, tum de insequendo eo consilia agitari cæpta. Cum utriusque consulis eadem, quæ ante semper, fuisset sententia, ceterum Varroni fere omnes, Paulo nemo præter Servilium prioris anni Consulem adsegitiretur, majoris partis sententia ad nobilitandas clade Romana Cannas, urgente fato, profecti sunt. Prope eum vicum Hannibal castra posuerat aversa a Volturmo vento, qui campis torridis siccitate nubes pulveris vehit. Id cum ipsis castris percommodum fuit, tum salutare præcipue futurum erat, cum aciem dirigerent ipsi aversi, terga tantum adflante vento, in occæcatum pulvere effuso hostem pugnaturi.

XLIV. Consules, satis exploratis itineribus, sequentes Pœnum, ut ventum ad Cannas est, ut in conspectu Pœnum habebant, bina castra communiunt eodem ferme intervallo, quo ad Gereonium, sicut ante copiis divis. Aufidus amnis utrisque castris adfluens aditum aquatoribus ex sua cuiusque opportunitate haud sine certamine dabat: ex minoribus tamen castris, quæ posita trans Aufidum erant, liberius aquabantur Romani, quia ripa ulterior nullum habebat hostium præsidium. Hannibal spem nactus locis natis ad equestrem pugnam, qua parte virum invictus erat, facturos copiam pugnandi consules, dirigit aciem, laccessitque Numidarum procursatione hostes. Inde rursus sollicitari seditione militari ac discordia consulum Romana castra, cum Paulus Sempronique et Flaminii temeritatem Varro, Varro speciosum timidis ac segnibus ducibus exemplum Fabium objiceret, testareturque deos hominesque, hic, "nullam

“penes se culpam esse, quod Hannibal jam vel usu cepisset Italiam; se constrictum a conlega teneri, ferrum atque arma iratis et pugnare cupientibus adimi militibus,” ille, “si quid projectis ac proditis ad inconsultam atque inprovidam pugnam legionibus accideret, se omnis culpæ exsortem, omnis eventus participem fore” diceret: “videret ut, quibus lingua prompta ac temeraria, æque in pugna vigerent manus.”

XLV. Dum altercationibus magis quam consiliis tempus teritur, Hannibal ex acie, quam ad multum diei tenuerat instructam, cum in castra ceteras reciperet copias, Numidas ad invadendos ex minoribus castris Romanorum aquatores trans flumen mittit. Quam inconditam turbam cum vixdum in ripam egressi clamore ac tumultu fugassent, stationem quoque pro vallo locatam atque ipsas prope portas evecti sunt. Id vero indignum visum, ab tumultuario auxilio jam etiam castra Romana terri, ut ea modo una causa, ne exemplo transirent flumen, dirigerentque aciem, tenuerit Romanos, quod summa imperii eo die penes Paulum fuerit. Itaque postero die Varro, cui sors ejus diei imperii erat, nihil consulto conlega, signum proposuit instructasque copias flumen traduxit, sequente Paulo, quia magis non probare, quam non adjuvare consilium poterat. Transgressi flumen, eas quoque, quas in castris minoribus habuerant, copias suis adjungunt, atque ita instructa acie, in dextro cornu—id erat flumini propius—Romanos equites locant, deinde pedites: lævum cornum extremi equites sociorum, intra pedites, ad medium juncti legionibus Romanis tenuerunt: jaculatores ex ceteris levium armorum auxiliis prima acies facta: consules cornua tenuerunt, Terentius lævum, Æmilius dextrum, Geminio Servilio media pugna tuenda data.

XLVI. Hannibal luce prima, Balcaribus levique alia armatura premissa, transgressus flumen, ut quosque traduxerat, ita in acie locabat, Gallos Hispanosque equites prope ripam lævo in cornu adversus Romanum equitatum; dextrum cornum Numidis equitibus datum, media acie peditibus firmata ita, ut Afrorum utraque cornua essent, interponerentur his medii Galli atque Hispani. Afros Romanam magna ex parte crederes aciem; ita armati erant armis et ad Trebiam, ceterum magna ex parte ad Trasumennum captis: Gallis Hispanisque scuta ejusdem formæ fere erant; dispares ac dissimiles gladii, Gallis prælongi ac sine mucronibus, Hispano, punctim magis quam cæsim adueto petere hostem, brevitate habiles et cum mucronibus. Sane et alius habitus gentium harum cum magnitudine corporum, tum specie terribilis erat: Galli super umbilicum erant nudi: Hispani linteis prætextis purpura tunicis candore miro fulgentibus constiterant. Numerus omnium peditum, qui tum steterunt in acie, millium fuit quadraginta, decem equitum. Duces cornibus præerant, sinistro Hasdrubal, dextro Maharbal, mediam aciem Hannibal ipse cum fratre Magone tenuit. Sol, seu de industria ita locatis, seu quod forte ita stetere, peropportune utrique parti obliquus erat, Romanis in meridiem, Pœnis in septentrionem versis: ventus—Vulturum regionis incolæ vocant—adversus Romanis coortus multo pulvere in ipsa ora volvendo prospectum ademit.

XLVII. Clamore sublato, procursum auxilii, et pugna levibus primum armis commissa: deinde equitum Gallorum, Hispanorum lævum cornum cum dextro Romano concurrat, minime equestris more pugnae; frontibus enim adversis concurrendum erat, quia, nullo circa ad evagandum relicto spatio, hinc amnis, hinc peditum acies claudebant in directum utrumque nitentes. Stantibus ac confertis postremo turba equis, vir virum amplexus detrahebat equo: pedestre magna jam ex parte certamen factum erat: acrius tamen quam diutius pugnatum est, pulsique Romani equites terga vertunt. Sub equestris finem certaminis coorta est peditum pugna. Primo et viribus et animis parum constabant ordines Gallis Hispanisque: tandem Romani, diu ac sæpe connisi, æqua fronte acieque densa impulere hostium cuneum nimis tenuem, eoque parum valdum, a cetera prominentem acie: impulsis deinde ac trepide referentibus pedem insistere, ac tenore uno per præceps pavore fugientium agmen in mediam primum aciem inlati, postremo, nullo resistente, ad subsidia Afrorum pervenerunt, qui utrumque reductis alis constiterant, media, qua Galli Hispanique steterant, aliquantum prominente acie. Qui cuneus ut pulsus æquavit frontem primum, dein cedendo etiam sinum in medio dedit, Afri circa jam cornua fecerant, inruentibusque incante in medium Romanis circumdedere alas, mox cornua extendendo clausere et ab tergo hostes. Hinc Romani defuncti nequiquam prælio uno, omissis Gallis Hispanisque, quorum terga ceciderant, et adversus Afros integram pugnam ineunt, non tantum in eo iniquam, quod inclusi adversus circumfusos, sed etiam quod fessi cum recentibus ac vegetis pugnabant.

XLVIII. Jam et sinistro cornu Romanis, ubi sociorum equites adversus Numidas steterant, consortum prælium erat, segne primo et a Punica ceptum fraude. Quingenti ferme Numidæ, præter cetera arma telaque gladios occultos sub loriceis habentes, specie transfugarum cum ab suis, parmas post terga habentes, adequitassent, repente ex equis desiliunt, parmisque et jaculis ante pedes hostium projectis, in mediam aciem accepti, ductique ad ultimos, considerare ab tergo iubentur. Ac dum prælum ab omni parte conseritur, quieti manserunt: postquam omnium animos oculosque occupaverat certamen, tum arreptis scutis, quæ passim inter acervos cæsorum corporum humi strata erant, aversam adoriuntur Romanam aciem, tergaque ferientes, ac poplites cædentes, stragem ingentem ac maiorem aliquanto pavorem ac tumultum fecerunt. Cum alibi terror ac fuga, alibi pertinax in mala jam spe prælum esset, Hasdrubal, qui ea jam parte præerat, subductos ex media acie Numidas, qua segnis eorum cum adversis pugna erat, ad persequendos passim fugientes mittit, Hispanos et Gallos equites Afris, prope jam fessis cæde magis quam pugna, adiungit.

XLIX. Parte altera pugnae Paulus, quamquam primo statim prælio funda graviter ictus fuerat, tamen et occurrit sæpe cum confertis Hannibali, et aliquot locis prælum restituit, protegentibus eum equitibus Romanis, omissis postremo equis, quia consulem et ad regendum equum vires deficiebant. Tum deinde nuntianti cuidam, iussisse consulem ad pedes descendere equites, dixisse Hannibalem ferunt, "Quam malle vinctos mihi traderet." Equitum pedestre prælum, quale jam haud dubia hostium victoria, fuit, cum victi mori in vestigio mallent quam fugere, victores, morantibus victoriam irati, trucidarent quos pelleri non poterant. Pepulerunt tamen jam paucos superantes, et labore ac vulneribus fessos: inde dissipati omnes sunt, equosque ad fugam, qui poterant, repetebant. Cn. Lentulus tribunus militum, cum, prætervehens equo, sedentem in saxo cruore oppletum consulem vidisset, "L. Æmili," inquit "quem unum insontem "culpæ cladis hodiernæ dei respicere debent, cape hunc equum: "dum et tibi virium aliquid superest, comes ego te tollere possum "ac protegere: ne funestam hanc pugnam morte consulis feceris: "et jam sine hoc lacrimarum satis luctusque est." Ad ea consul, "tu quidem, Cn. Corneli, macte virtute esto: sed cave frustra "morando exiguum tempus e manibus hostium evadendi absu- "mas: abi, nuntia publice patribus, urbem Romanam muniant "ac priusquam hostis victor advenit, præsidii firment: pri- "vatum Q. Fabio, Æmilium præceptorum ejus memorem et "vixisse adhuc, et mori: memet in hac strage militum meorum "patere expirare, ne aut reus iterum ex consulatu sim, aut "accusator conlegæ existam, ut alieno crimine innocentiam "meam protegam." Hæc exagentes prius turba fugientium civium, deinde hostes oppressere: consulem ignorantes, quis esset, obruerunt telis; Lentulum inter tumultum abripuit equus. Tum undique effuse fugiunt. Septem millia hominum in minora castra, decem in majora, duo ferme in vicum ipsum Cannas per-fugerunt, qui extemplo a Carthalone atque equitibus, nullo munimento tegentes vicum, circumventi sunt. Consul alter, seu forte, seu consilio, nulli fugientium insertus agmini, cum septuaginta fere equitibus Venusiam perfligit. Quadraginta quinque millia quingenti pedites, duo millia septingenti equites, et tanta prope civium sociorumque pars, cæsi dicuntur: in his ambo consulum quæstores, L. Atilius et L. Furius Bibaculus, et viginti unus tribuni militum, consulares quidam prætorique et ædilicii; inter eos Cn. Servilius Geminus et M. Minucius numerant, qui magister equitum priore anno, aliquot annis ante consul fuerat; octoginta præterea aut senatores, aut qui eos magistratus gessissent, unde in senatum legi deberent, cum sua voluntate milites in legionibus facti essent. Capta eo prælio tria millia peditum et equites mille et quingenti dicuntur.

L. Hæc est pugna Cannensis, Aliensi cladis nobilitate par, ceterum ut illis, quæ post pugnam accidere, levior, quia ab hoste est cessatum, sic strage exercitus gravior fœdiorque. Fuga namque ad Aliam sicut urbem prodidit, ita exercitum servavit: ad Cannas fugientem consulem vix septuaginta secuti sunt; alterius morientis prope totus exercitus fuit. Binis in castris cum multitudo semiarmis sine ducibus esset, nuntium, qui in majoribus erant, mittunt, "dum prælium, deinde ex lætitia epulis fatigatos quies nocturna hostes premeret, ut ad se transirent: uno agmine Canusium abituros esse." Eam sententiam alii totam aspernari: "Cur enim illos, qui se arcessant, ipsos non venire, cum æque conjungi possent? quia videlicet plena hostium omnia in medio essent, et aliorum quam sua corpora tanto periculo mallent objicere." Aliis non tam sententia displicere, quam animus deesse. P. Sempronius Tuditanus tribunus militum, "capi ergo mavultis" inquit "ab avarissimo et crudelissimo hoste, æstimarique capita vestra, et exquiri pretia ab interrogantibus, Romanus civis sis an Latinus socius, ut ex tua contumelia et miseria alteri honos quæretur? non tu, si quidem L. Æmili consulis, qui se bene mori quam turpiter vivere maluit, et tot fortissimorum virorum, qui circa eum cumalati jacent, cives estis. Sed, antequam opprimit lux, majoraque hostium agmina obsæpiunt iter, per hos, qui inordinati atque inconpositi obstruunt portas, erumpamus. Ferro atque audacia via fit quamvis per confertos hostes: cuneo quidem hoc laxum atque solutum agmen, ut si nihil obstat, disjicias: itaque ite mecum, qui et vosmet ipsos et rem publicam salvam vultis." Hæc ubi dicta dedit, stringit gladium, cuneoque facto per medios vadit hostes: et cum in latus dextrum, quod patebat, Numidæ jacularentur, translatis in dextrum scutis, in majora castra ad sexcenti evaserunt, atque inde protinus, alio magno agmine adjuncto, Canusium incolumes perveniunt. Hæc apud victos magis impetu animorum, quod ingenium suum cuique aut fors dabat, quam ex consilio ipsorum, aut imperio cujusquam agebantur.

LII. Hannibali victori cum ceteri circumfusi gratularentur, suaderentque, ut tanto perfunctus bello, diei, quod reliquum esset, noctisque insequentis quietem et ipse sibi sumeret, et fessis daret militibus, Maharbal præfectus equitum minime cessandum ratus "Immo ut, quid hac pugna sit actum, scias, die quinto" inquit "victor in Capitolio epulaberis. Sequere: cum equite, "ut prius venisse quam venturum sciant, præcedam." Hannibali nimis læta res est visa, majorque quam ut eam statim capere animo possent: itaque "voluntatem se laudare Maharbalis" ait, "ad consilium pensandum temporis opus esse." Tum Maharbal: "non omnia nimirum eidem di dedere: vincere "scis, Hannibal: victoria uti nescis." Mora ejus diei satis creditur salutis fuisse urbi atque imperio. Postero die ubi primum inluxit, ad spolia legenda, fœdamque etiam hostibus spectandam stragem insistent. Jacebant tot Romanorum millia, pedites passim equitesque, ut quem cuique fors aut pugna junxerat aut fuga. Adsurgentes quidam ex strage media cruenti, quos stricta matutino frigore excitaverant vulnera, ab hoste oppressi sunt. Quosdam et jacentes vivos, succisos feminibus poplitibusque invenerunt, nudantes cervicem jugulumque et reliquum sanguinem jubentes haurire. Inventi quidam sunt mersis in effossam terram capitibus, quos sibi ipsos fecisse foveas, obruentesque ora superjecta humo interclusisse spiritum apparebat. Præcipue convertit omnes subtractus Numida mortuo superincubanti Romano vivus, naso auribusque laceratis, cum, manibus ad capiendum telum inutilibus, in rabiem ira versa, laniando dentibus hostem expirasset.

LIII. Spoliis ad multum diei lectis, Hannibal ad minora ducit castra oppugnanda, et omnium primum, brachio objecto, flumine eos excludit. Ceterum ab omnibus labore, vigiliis, vulneribus etiam fessis maturior ipsius spe deditio est facta. Pacti, ut arma atque equos traderent, in capita Romana trecentis nummis quadrigatis, in socios ducentis, in servos centenis, et ut, eo pretio persoluto, cum singulis abirent vestimentis, in castra hostes acceperunt, traditique in custodiam omnes sunt, seorsum cives sociique. Dum ibi tempus teritur, interea cum ex majoribus castris, quibus satis virium animique fuit, ad quattuor millia hominum et ducenti equites, alii agmine, alii palati passim per agros, quod haud minus tutum erat, Canusium perfugissent, castra ipsa ab sauciis timidisque eadem conditione, qua altera, tradita hosti. Præda ingens parata est; et præter equos virosque et si quid argenti—quod plurimum in phaleris equorum erat; nam ad vescendum facto perexiguo, utique militantes, utebantur—omnis cetera præda diripienda data est. Tum sepeliendi causa conferri in unum corpora suorum iussit: ad octo millia fuisse dicuntur fortissimorum virorum. Consulem quoque Romanum conquistum sepultumque quidam auctores sunt. Eos, qui Canusium perfugerant, mulier Apula nomine Busa, genere clara ac divitiis, mœnibus tantum tectisque a Canusinis acceptos, frumento, veste, viatico etiam juit: pro qua ei munificentia postea, bello perfecto, ab senato honores habiti sunt.

LIII. Ceterum cum ibi tribuni militum quattuor essent, Fabius Maximus de legione prima, cujus pater priore anno dictator fuerat, et de legione secunda L. Publicius Bibulus et P. Cornelius Scipio, et de legione tertia Ap. Claudius Pulcher, qui proxime ædilis fuerat, omnium consensu ad P. Scipionem admodum adolescentem et ad App. Claudium summa imperii delata est. Quibus consultantibus inter paucos de summa rerum nuntiat P. Furius Philus consularis viri filius, "Nequiquam eos perditam spem fore, desperatam conploratamque rem esse publicam: nobiles juvenes quosdam, quorum principem L. Cæcilium Metellum, mare ac naves spectare, ut, deserta Italia, ad regem aliquem transfugiant." Quod malum, præterquam atrox, super tot clades etiam novum, cum stupore ac miraculo torpidos defixisset qui aderant, et consilium advocandum de eo censerent, negat consilii rem esse Scipio juvenis, fatalis dux hujusce belli: "Audendum atque agendum, non consultandum" ait "in tanto malo esse: irent secum extemplo armati, qui rem publicam salvam vellent: nullo loco verius, quam ubi ca cogitentur, hostium castra esse." Pergit ire, sequentibus paucis, in hospitium Metelli, et, cum concilium ibi juvenum, de quibus adlatum erat, invenisset, stricto super capita consultantium gladio, "Ex mei animi sententia" inquit, "ut ego rem publicam populi Romani non deseram, neque alium civem Romanum deserere patiar: si sciens fallo, tum me, Juppiter optime maxime, domum, familiam remque meam pessimo leto adficias. In hæc verba, L. Cæcili, jures postulo, ceterique qui adestis: qui non juraverit, in se hunc gladium strictum esse sciat." Haud secus pavidum, quam si victorem Hannibalem cernerent, jurant omnes, custodiendosque semet ipsos Scipioni tradunt.

LIV. Eo tempore, quo hæc Canusii agebantur, Verusiam ad

consulem ad quattuor millia et quingenti pedites equitesque, qui sparsi fuga per agros fuerant, pervenere. Eos omnes Venusini per familias benigne accipiendos curandosque cum divisissent, in singulos equites togas et tunicas et quadrigatos nummos quinos vice-nos, et pediti denos, et arma, quibus deerant, dederunt: ceteraque publice ac privatim hospitaliter facta; certatumque, ne a muliere Canusina populus Venusinus officiis vinceretur. Sed gravius onus Busæ multitudo faciebat, et jam ad decem millia hominum erant: Appiusque et Scipio, postquam incolumem esse alterum consulem acceperunt, nuntium extemplo mittunt, quantæ secum peditum equitumque copiae essent, sciscitatumque simul, utrumne Venusiam adduci exercitum, an manere juberet Canusi. Varro ipse Canusium copias traduxit: et jam aliqua species consularis exercitus erat, mœnibusque se certe ii, et si non armis, ab hoste videbantur defensuri. Romam, ne has quidem reliquias superesse civium sociorumque, sed occisione occisum cum duobus consulibus exercitum, deletasque omnes copias, adlatum fuerat. Numquam salva urbe tantum pavoris tumultusque intra mœnia Romana fuit. Itaque succumbam oneri, neque adgrediar narrare quæ edisserendo minora vero faciebant. Consule exercituque ad Trasumennum priore anno omissis, non vulnus super vulnus, sed multiplex clades, cum duobus consulibus duo consulares exercitus amissi nuntiabantur; nec ulla jam castra Romana, nec duces, nec militem esse; Hannibalis Apuliam, Samnium ac jam prope totam Italiam factam. Nulla profecto alia gens tanta mole cladis non obruta esset: comparares aut cladem ad Ægates insulas Carthaginiensium prælio navali acceptam, qua fracti Sicilia ac Sardinia cessere, inde vectigales ac stipendiarios fieri se passi sunt: aut pugnam adversam in Africa, cui postea hic ipse Hannibal succubuit: nulla ex parte comparandæ sunt nisi quod minore animo latæ sunt.

LV. P. Furius Philus et M. Pomponius prætores senatum in curiam Hostiliam vocaverunt, ut de urbis custodia consulerent: neque enim dubitabant, deletis exercitibus, hostem ad oppugnandam Romam, quod unum opus belli restaret, venturum. Cum malis, sicuti ingentibus, ita ignotis, nec consilium quidem satis expedirent, obstreperetque clamor lamentantium mulierum et— nondum palam facto—vivi mortuique et per omnes præne domos promiscue conplorarentur, tum Q. Fabius Maximus censuit “equites expeditos et Appia et Latina via mittendos, qui obvios “percunctando—aliquos profecto ex fuga passim dissipatos fore “—referant, quæ fortuna consulum atque exercituum sit, et, si “quid dii immortales, miseriti imperii, reliquum Romani nominis “fecerint, ubi eæ copiae sint: quo se Hannibal post prælium “contulerit, quid paret, quid agat, acturusque sit. Hæc exploranda noseundaque per impigros juvenes esse. Illud per patres ipsos agendum, quoniam magistratuum parum sit, ut tumultum ac trepidationem in urbe tollant, matronas publico arceant, continerique intra suum quamque limen cogant, conploratus familiarium coerceant, silentium per urbem faciant, nuntios rerum omnium ad prætores deducendos curent, suæ quisque fortunæ domi auctorem expectent: custodesque præterea ad portas ponant, qui prohibeant quemquam egredi urbem, cogantque homines nullam, nisi urbe ac incensibus salvis, salutem sperare: ubi contigerit recte tumultus, tum in curiam patres revocandos, consulendumque de urbis custodia esse.”

LVI. Cum in hanc sententiam pedibus omnes issent, submotaque foro per magistratus turba, patres diversi ad sedandos tumultus discessissent, tum demum litteræ a C. Terentio consule adlatæ sunt, “L. Æmilium consulem exercitumque cæsuum, sese Canusii esse, reliquias tantæ cladis velut ex naufragio colligentem: ad decem millia militum ferme esse inconstitorum inordinatorumque: Pœnum sedere ad Cannas, in captivorum pretiis prædaque alia, nec victoris animo, nec magni ducis more, nundinantem.” Tum privatæ quoque per domos clades vulgatæ sunt, adeoque totam urbem opplevit luctus, ut sacrum anniversarium Cereris intermissum sit, quia nec lugentibus id facere est fas, nec ulla in illa tempestate matrona expers luctus fuerat. Itaque ne ob eandem causam alia quoque sacra publica aut privata desererentur, senatusconsulto diebus triginta luctus est finitus. Ceterum cum, sedato urbis tumultu, revocati in curiam patres essent, aliæ insuper ex Sicilia litteræ adlatæ sunt ab T. Otacilio præpore: “regnum Hieronis classe Punica vastari: cui cum opem imploranti ferre vellent, nuntiatum his esse aliam classem ad Ægates insulas stare paratam instructamque ut, ubi se versus ad tuendam Syracusanam oram Pœni sensissent, Lilybæum extemplo provinciamque aliam Romanam adgrederentur: itaque classe opus esse, si regem socium Siciliamque tueri vellent.”

LVII. Litteris consulis prætorisque perlectis, M. Claudium, qui classi ad Ostiam stanti præseset, Canusium ad exercitum mittendum censuerunt, scribendumque consuli ut, cum prætori exercitum tradidisset, primo quoque tempore, quantum per commodum reipublicæ fieri posset, Romam veniret. Territi etiam super tantas clades, cum ceteris prodigiis, tum quod duæ Vestales eo anno, Opimia atque Floronia, stupri conpertæ: et altera sub terra, uti mos est, ad portam Collinam necata fuerat, altera sibimet ipsa mortem consciverat: L. Cantilius scriba pontificis, quos nunc minores pontifices appellant, qui cum Flornia stuprum fecerat, a pontifice maximo eo usque virgis in comitio cæsus erat, ut inter verbera expiraret. Hoc nefas cum inter tot, ut sit, clades in prodigium versum esset, decemviri libros adire jussi sunt, et Q. Fabius Pictor Delphos ad oraculum missus est sciscitatum, quibus precibus suppliciisque deos possent placare, et quænam futura finis tantis cladibus foret. Interim ex fatalibus libris sacrificia aliquot extraordinaria facta; inter quæ Gallus et Galla, Græcus et Græca in foro bovario sub terra vivi demissi sunt in locum saxo conscriptum, et jam ante hostiis humanis, minime Romano sacro, inbutum. Placatis satis, ut rebantur, deis, M. Clæudius Marcellus ab Ostia mille et quingentos milites, quot in classem scriptos habebat, Roman, ut urbi præsidio essent, mittit: ipse, legione classica—ea legio tertia erat—cum tribunis militum Teanum Sidicinum præmissa, classe tradita P. Furio Philo conlegæ, paucos post dies Canusium magnis itineribus contendit. Inde dictator ex auctoritate patrum dictus M. Junius, et Ti. Sempronius magister equitum, delectu edicto, juniores ab annis decem septem, et quosdam prætextatos scribunt: quattuor ex his legiones et mille equites effecti. Item ad socios Latinumque nomen ad milites ex formula accipiendos mittunt: arma, tela, alia parari jubent, et vetera spolia hostium detrahunt templis porticibusque. Et aliam formam novi delectus inopia Iberorum capitum ac necessitas dedit: octo millia juvenum validorum ex servitiis, prius sciscitantes singulos, vellentne militare, et empta publice armaverunt: hic miles magis placuit, cum pretio minore redimendi captivos copia fieret.

LVIII. Namque Hannibal secundum tam prosperam ad Cannas pugnam, victoris magis quam bellum gerentis intentus curis, cum, captivis productis segregatisque, socios, sicut ante ad Trebiam Trasumenumque lacum, benigne adlocutus, sine pretio dimisisset, Romanos quoque vocatos—quod numquam alias antea—satis miti sermone adloquitur: “non internecivum;” “sibi esse cum Romanis bellum; de dignitate atque imperio” “certare: et patres virtuti Romanæ cessisse, et se id adniti, ut” “sue invicem simul felicitati et virtuti cedatur. Itaque redi-” “mendi se captivis copiam facere: pretium fore in capiti, equiti” “quingenos quadrigatos nummos, trecenos pediti, servo cen-” “tenos.” Quamquam aliquantum adjiciebatur equitibus ad id pretium quo pepigerant dedentes se, læti tamen quæcumque conditionem paciscendi acceperunt: placuit suffragio ipsorum decem deligi, qui Romam ad senatum irent: nec pignus aliud fidei, quam ut jurarent se redituros, acceptum. Missus cum his Carthalo nobilis Carthaginensis, qui, si forte ad pacem inclinaret animos, conditiones ferret. Cum egressi castris essent, unus ex iis, minime Romani ingeni homo, veluti aliquid oblitus, jurisjurandi solvendi causa cum in castra redisset, ante noctem comites adsequitur. Ubi Romam venire eos nuntiatum est, Carthalo ni obviam lictor missus, qui dictatoris verbis nuntiaret ut ante noctem excederet finibus Romanis.

LIX. Legatis captivorum senatus ab dictatore datus est. Quorum princeps M. Junius "Patres conscripti," inquit, "nemo nostrum ignorat nulli umquam civitati viliores fuisse captivos quam nostræ. Ceterum, nisi nobis plus justo nostra placet causa, non alii umquam minus negligendi vobis quam nos, in hostium potestatem venerunt. Non enim in acie per timorem arma tradidimus; sed, cum prope ad noctem superstantes cumulis cæsorum corporum prælium extraxissemus, in castra recepimus nos: diei reliquum ad noctem insequentem fessi labore ac vulneribus vallum sumus tutati: postero die, cum circumsessi ab exercitu victore aqua arceremur, nec ulla jam per confertos hostes erumpendi spes esset, nec esse nefas duceremus, quinquaginta millibus hominum ex acie nostra trucidatis, aliquem ex Cannensi pugna Romanum militem restare, tunc de eodem pacti sumus pretium quo redempti dimiteremur; arma, in quibus nihil jam auxilii erat, hostium tradidimus. Majores quoque acceperamus se a Gallis auro redemisse, et patres vestros, asperrimos illos ad conditiones pacis, legatos tamen captivorum redimendorum gratia Tarentum misisse: atqui et ad Aliam cum Gallis, et ad Heracleam cum Pyrrho, utraque non tam clade infamis quam pavore et fuga pugna fuit. Cannenses campos acervi Romanorum corporum tegunt, nec supersumus pugnæ, nisi in quibus trucidandis et ferrum et vires hostem defecerunt. Sunt etiam de nostris quidam, qui nec in acie quidem refugerunt, sed præsidio castris relictis, cum castra traderentur, in potestatem hostium venerunt. Haud equidem ultius civis et commilitonis fortunæ aut conditioni invideo, nec premendo alium me extulisse velim: ne illi quidem, nisi pernicitatis pedum et cursus aliquod præmium est, qui plerique inermes ex acie fugientes non prius, quam Venusiæ aut Canusi, constiterunt, se nobis merito prætulerint, gloriatique sint in se plus quam in nobismet præsidii reipublicæ esse: sed illis et bonis ac fortibus militibus utemini, et nobis etiam promptioribus pro patria, quod beneficio vestro redempti atque in patriam restituti fuerimus. Delectum ex omni ætate et fortuna habetis; octo millia servorum audio armari: non minor numerus noster est, nec majore

" pretio redimi possumus quam ii emuntur : nam si conferam
 " nos cum illis, injuriam nomini Romano faciam. Illud etiam in
 " tali consilio animadvertendum vobis censeam, patres con-
 " scripti, si tamen duriores esse velitis, quod nullo nostro merito
 " faciatis, cui nos hosti relicturi sitis : Pyrrho videlicet, qui vos
 " hospitem numero captivos habuit, an barbaro ac Peno, qui
 " utrum avarior an crudelior sit, vix existimari potest. Si
 " videntis catenas, squalorem, deformitatem civium vestrorum,
 " non minus profecto vos ea species moveat, quam si ex altera
 " parte cernatis stratas Cannensibus campis legiones vestras.
 " Intueri potestis sollicitudinem et lacrimas in vestibulo curiæ
 " stantium cognatorum nostrorum, expectantiumque responsum
 " vestrum. Cum ii pro nobis proque iis qui absunt, ita suspensi
 " ac solliciti sint, quem censetis animum ipsorum esse, quorum
 " in discrimine vita libertasque est ? Sed si, me dius fidius,
 " ipse in nos mitis Hannibal contra naturam suam esse velit,
 " nihil tamen nobis vita opus esse censeamus, cum indigni, ut
 " redimeremur a vobis, visi sumus. Rediere Romam quondam
 " remissi a Pyrrho sine pretio capti : sed rediere cum legatis,
 " primoribus civitatis, ad redimendos sese missis. Redeam ego
 " in patriam trecentis nummis non æstimatus civis ? Suum
 " quisque animum habet, patres conscripti : scio in discrimine
 " esse vitam corpusque meum : magis me famæ periculum
 " movet, ne a vobis damnati ac repulsi abeamus : neque enim
 " vos pretio pepercisse homines credent. "

LX. Ubi is finem fecit, extemplo ab ea turba, quæ in comitio erat, clamor flebilis est sublatus, manusque ad curiam tendebant orantes, ut sibi liberos, fratres, cognatos redderent. Feminas quoque metus ac necessitas in foro ac turbæ virorum inmiscuerat.
 Senatus submotis arbitris, consuli cæptus. Ibi cum sententiis variaretur, et alii redimendos de publico, alii nullam publice impensam faciendam, nec prohibendos ex privato redimi ; si quibus argentum in præsentiam deesset, dandam ex ærario pecuniarum mutuam, prædibusque ac prædiis cavendum populo censerent, tum T. Manlius Torquatus, priscae ac nimis duræ, ut plerisque videatur, severitatis, interrogatus sententiam ita locutus fertur : " Si tantummodo postulassent legati pro his, qui in
 " hostium potestate sunt, ut redimerentur, sine ullius insectatione
 " eorum brevi sententiam peregissem : quid enim aliud quam
 " admonendi essetis, ut morem traditum a patribus, necessario
 " ad rem militarem exemplo, servaretis. Nunc autem, cum
 " prope gloriati sint quod se hostibus dediderint, præferrique
 " non captis modo in acie ab hostibus, sed etiam iis, qui Ve-
 " nusiam Canusiumque pervenerunt, atque ipsi C. Terentio

"consuli, æquum censuerint, nihil vos eorum, patres conscripti,
"quæ illic acta sunt, ignorare patiar. Atque utinam hæc, quæ
"apud vos acturus sum, Canusii apud ipsum exercitum agerem,
"optimum testem ignaviæ ejusque et virtutis: aut unus hic
"saltem adesset P. Sempronius, quem si isti ducem secuti
"essent, milites hodie in castris Romanis, non captivi in hostium
"potestate essent: et cum, fessis pugnando hostibus, tum victoria lætis, et ipsis plerisque regressis in castra sua, noctem
"ad erumpendum liberam habuissent, et septem millia armatorum
"hominum erumpere etiam per confertos hostes possent, neque
"per se ipsi id facere conati sunt, neque alium sequi voluerunt.
"Nocte prope tota P. Sempronius Tuditanus non destitit monere,
"adhortari eos, dum paucitas hostium circa castra, dum quies
"ac silentium esset, dum nox inceptum tegere posset, se ducem
"sequerentur: ante lucem pervenire in tuta loca, in sociorum
"urbes posse. Sicut avorum memoria P. Decius, tribunus
"militum, in Samnio; sicut, nobis adolescentibus, priore Punico
"bello Calpurnius Flamma trecentis voluntariis, cum ad tumultum
"eos capiendum situm inter medios duceret hostes, dixit
"Moriatur, milites, et morte nostra eripiamus ex obsidione
"circumventas legiones: si hoc P. Sempronius diceret, nec
"viros quidem, nec Romanos vos duceret, si nemo tantæ virtutis
"existisset comes: viam non ad gloriam magis, quam ad
"salutem ferentem demonstrat; reduces in patriam, ad parentes,
"ad conjuges ac liberos facit. Ut servemini, deest vobis
"animus: quid, si moriendum pro patria esset, faceretis?
"Quinquaginta millia civium sociorumque circa vos eo ipso die
"creta jacent: si tot exempla virtutis non movent, nihil
"unquam movebit: si tanta clades vilem vitam non fecit, nulla
"faciet. Et liberi atque incolumes desiderate patriam: immo
"desiderate, dum patria est, dum cives ejus estis. Sero nunc "desideratis, deminuti capite, abalienati jure civium, servi Carthaginiensium facti. Pretio redituri estis eo, unde ignavia
"ac nequitia abistis? P. Sempronium, civem vestrum, non "audistis, arma capere ac sequi se jubentem: Hannibalem post
"paulo audistis, castra prodi et arma tradi jubentem. Quam "ego ignaviam istorum accuso, cum scelus possim accusare!
"Non enim modo sequi recusarunt bene monentem, sed obsistere ac retinere conati sunt, ni strictis gladiis viri fortissimi
"inertes submovissent: prius, inquam, P. Sempronio per civium
"agmen, quam per hostium, fuit erumpendum. Hos cives
"patria desideret, et quorum si ceteri similes fuissent, neminem
"hodie ex iis, qui ad Cannas pugnaverunt, civem haberet? Ex
"millibus septem armatorum sexcenti extiterunt qui erumpere

“auderent, qui in patriam liberi atque armati redirent; neque “iis sexcenti hostes obstitere. Quam tutum iter duarum prope “legionum agminis futurum censetis fuisse? Haberetis hodie “viginti millia armatorum Canusii fortia, fidelia, patres con“scripti. Nunc autem quem ad modum hi boni fidelesque—“nam fortes ne ipsi quidem dixerint—cives esse possunt, nisi “quis credere potest fuisse, ut erumpentibus, quin erumperent, “obstistere conati sunt, aut non invidere eos, cum incolumitati, “tum gloriæ illorum per virtutem partæ, cum sibi timorem “ignaviamque servitutis ignominiosæ causam esse sciant? Ma“luerunt in tentoriis latentes simul lucem atque hostem ex-“pectare, cum silentio noctis erumpendi occasio esset. Ad “erumpendum e castris defuit animus; ad tutanda fortiter castra “animum habuerunt: dies noctesque aliquot obsessi, vallum “armis, se ipsi tutati vallo sunt: tandem ultima ausi passique, “cum omnia subsidia vitæ abessent, adfectisque fame viribus, “arma jam sustinere nequirent, necessitatibus magis humanis, “quam armis, victi sunt. Orto sole ab hostibus ad vallum “accessum; ante secundam horam nullam fortunam certaminis “expertis, tradiderunt arma ac se ipsos: hæc vobis ipsorum per “biduum militia fuit. Cum in acie stare ac pugnare decuerat, “tum in castra refugerunt; cum pro vallo pugnandum erat, “castra tradiderunt, neque in acie neque in castris utiles. Et “vos redimam? Cum erumpere castris oportet, cunctamini ac “manetis: cum manere, castra tutari armis necesse est, et castra “et arma et vos ipsos traditis hosti. Ego non magis istos redi“mendos, patres conscripti, censeo, quam illos dedendos Hanni-“bali, qui per medios hostes e castris eruperunt, ac per summam “virtutem se patriæ restituerunt.”

LXI. Postquam Manlius dixit, quamquam patrum quoque plerosque captivi cogitatione adtingebant, præter exemplum civitatis minime in captivos jam inde antiquitus indulgentis, pecuniæ quoque summa homines movit, qua nec ærarium exhauriri, magna jam summa erogata in servos ad militiam emendos armandosque, nec Hannibalem maxime hujusce rei, ut fama
 erat, egentem locupletari volebant. Cum triste responsum, “non redimi captivos,” redditum esset, novusque super veterem luctus tot jactura civium adjectus esset, cum magnis fletibus, questibus legatos ad portam prosequuti sunt. Unus ex iis domum abiit, quod fallaci reditu in castra jurejurando se exsol-visset. Quod ubi innotuit, relatumque ad senatum est, omnes censuerunt comprehendendum et, custodibus publice datis, de-ducendum ad Hannibalem esse. Est et alia de captivis fama:
 decem primos venisse de iis cum dubitatum in senatu esset, admitterentur in urbem necne, ita admissos esse, ne tamen iis senatus daretur: morantibus deinde longius omnium spe, alios tres insuper legatos venisse, L. Scribonium et C. Calpurnium et L. Manlium: tum demum ab cognato Scribonii tribuno plebis de redimendis captivis relatum esse, nec censuisse redimendos senatum, et novos legatos tres ad Hannibalem revertisse, decem veteres remansisse, quod per causam recognoscendi nomina captivorum ad Hannibalem ex itinere regressi religione sese exsolvisset: de iis dedendis magna contentione actum in senatu esse, victosque paucis sententiis, qui dedendos censuerint: ceterum proximis censoribus adeo omnibus notis ignominiosisque confectos esse, ut quidam eorum mortem sibi ipsi extemplo consciverint, ceteri non foro solum omni deinde vita, sed prope luce ac publico caruerint. Mirari magis adeo discrepare inter auctores, quam, quid veri sit, discernere queas. Quanto autem major ea clades superioribus cladibus fuerit, vel ea res indicio est, quod fides sociorum, quæ ad eum diem firma steterat, tum labare cœpit, nulla profecto alia de re, quam quod desperaverant de imperio. Defecere autem ad Pœnos hi populi, Atellani, Calatini, Hirpini, Apulorum pars, Samnites præter Pentros, Brutii omnes, Lucani: præter hos Uzentini et Græcorum omnis ferme ora, Tarentini, Metapontini, Crotonienses, Locrique, et Cisalpini omnes Galli. Ne tamen eæ clades defectionesque sociorum moverunt, ut pacis usquam mentio apud Romanos fieret, neque ante consulis Romæ adventum, nec postquam is rediit, renovavitque memoriam acceptæ cladis. Quo in tempore ipso adeo magno animo civitas fuit, ut consuli ex tanta clade, cujus ipse causa maxima fuisset, redeunti et obviam itum frequenter ab omnibus ordinibus sit, et gratiæ actæ, quod de re publica non desperasset: qui si Carthaginiensium ductor fuisset, nihil recusandum supplicii foret.

NOTES.

BOOK XXI.

LIVI is here used for the later LIVII. So generally throughout this edition the contracted form of the genitive of words in -ius and -ium will be found; e. g. Appi, imperi, fili, for the later forms Appii, imperii, filii. So in Virgil we have, "Capitoli immobile saxum;" and in Horace, "Vis consili expers."

i. The character and causes of the second Punic war.—in parte . . . scriptores, "It may be permitted me to premise, with respect to a part of my work, what many historians have announced at the beginning of their entire undertaking." Plerique is here equivalent to multi; as in x. 31: "in exercitu Appi Claudii plerosque fulminibus ictos nuntiatum est." The historian specially referred to is, no doubt, Thucydides. See the first chapter of his History.—summa totius answers to τῆς ὅλης συντάξεως; Polybius, iii. 1. Livy adduces four reasons why this war was the greatest ever carried on: (1) The nations that now engaged in conflict were the mightiest the world had ever seen, and were then, each of them, at the summit of their strength. (2) They had already measured their might against each other, and knew what each could do. (3) The conflict was so long and doubtful, that the victors were at one time (just after the battle of Cannæ) nearer ruin than the vanquished were at the very time when (just after the battle of Zama) they finally succumbed. (4) They fought with the fury of hate; the Romans being indignant that the once conquered Carthaginians should assume the offensive (ultra inferrent arma) against their former conquerors, and the Carthaginians being equally enraged at the naughtiness and rapacity of the Romans.—belli artes inter se conserere is a phrase formed after the model of manus inter se conserere.—fuervit is the aorist, not the present perfect; they were, not they have been.—propius periculum . . . vicerunt: periculum is the accusative after propius. For a similar sentiment see Silius Italicus, l. 13: propiusque fuere periculo, Quis superare datum.—perfecto Africo bello. The war referred to was one waged between the Carthaginians on the one side, and the mercenaries whom they were not in a condition to pay, together with the native African tribes, from whom they had extorted such vast sums for the prosecution of the war, on the other. The genius of Hamilcar enabled the Carthaginians to emerge victorious, after a desperate and bloody struggle. Sacrificaret must, of course, refer, not to Hannibal, the previous subject of the sentence, but to Hamilcar.—Sicilia Sardiniaque amissa. Sicily was given up by the Carthaginians when they sued for peace, in consequence of the celebrated naval victory of Agusa gained over them by the Roman consul, Caius Lutatius Catulus. Sardinia and Corsica were torn from them three years afterwards by the Romans, from a mean jealousy at the successful issue of the African war just mentioned. At the same time the Carthaginians were compelled to pay 12,000 talents for injuries which they had never committed, and hostile intentions which they had never entertained. Rerum is the objective genitive.—inter motum Africe. This is not strictly the case. The Romans behaved with forbearance while the African disturbances lasted. Their jealousy was not roused till they saw Hamilcar's skill triumphant.

ii. The progress of the Carthaginians in Spain.—anxius, from angere, to choke.—per quinque annos. This is not correct. The war lasted three years and four months.—augendo imperio is the ablative, governed by in understood.—flore etatis . . . adscitus, "beloved by him on account of the beauty of his person, and then adopted by him as his son-in-law, on account of his other, that is to say, his mental qualities."—profecto annis, the common reading for profecto animi, is open to several objections, and is besides only a conjecture, supported by no manuscript.—factionis Barcine. The Barcine faction was so called from Barca, the surname of the great Hamilcar Barca, who is here represented by Livy, in a point of view taken from Roman history, as having formed a party hostile to Rome out of the army and the commons, and opposed to the chief men of Carthage. In the next chapter, however, he is compelled to acknowledge that the party so formed had the majority in the senate too. In fact, there can be no doubt that Hamilcar's policy was the only noble policy, and that the sleepless rapacity of Rome was too patent to be overlooked by any one who loved his country better than his shop.—quoque is here used rather than etiam, because Livy would represent that the barbarian had the same composure of countenance, both when he was seized and when he was tortured. Præbuerit is the aorist, not the present perfect. Livy frequently employs this tense after ut, when it implies a consequence, not a purpose (see Arnold's Lat. Pr. Comp., 418), where most writers would use the past imperfect, in order to give a greater historic prominence to the consequence, and show that it actually did happen.—foedus. The treaty concluded to put an end to the first Punic war.—finis utriusque . . . Iberus. This statement is calculated to mislead. The Romans had no actual possessions, though they had allies, in Spain at the time alluded to. The agreement was, that the Carthaginians should not extend their conquests to the east of the Ebro.—Saguntinis, the people of Saguntum, a town lying nearly a hundred miles south-west of the Ebro, though Polybius and Livy seem to have thought it was just to the east of it. On its site is the modern town of Murviédro, so called from the remains of the ancient walls (muri veteres). Partly founded on the geographical mistake just noted, is the assertion of Livy, that in this new treaty with Hasdrubal was a clause stipulating that the Saguntines, being between the dominions of the two powers, should retain their liberty. This, however, is probably a pure invention to put the Carthaginians decidedly in the wrong, for Polybius never mentions the circumstance.

iii. Hannibal succeeds Hasdrubal as general.—in Hasdrubalis locum . . . sequeretur. This sentence is not strictly grammatical. In Hasdrubalis locum ought to have been closely connected with appellatus erat in the relative clause, instead of standing, as it now does, in the principal clause. It was placed at the commencement for the sake of emphasis, and the construction was not altered to suit its new position.—viadum puberem. Hannibal was at this time at least twenty-two years of age. He was nine when his father Hamilcar went to Spain, eighteen when his father died, and twenty-two or twenty-three when Hasdrubal is represented, about three years before his death, as sending for him to be his lieutenant. This statement, therefore, is a proof of Livy's carelessness.—Hanno, surnamed the Great, though for what reason it is difficult to discover. He was the constant leader of the opponents of the Barcine faction. The speech is, without doubt, an entire fabrication. Livy himself tells us (xxx. 37) afterwards that Hannibal never saw Carthage from the time he left it at nine years of age to go to Spain, till he returned a little before the battle of Zama. The two passages were probably copied from different authors with Livy's usual carelessness of fact, and love for what would produce a fine dramatic situation. Two reasons are suggested in the speech for keeping Hannibal at home: (1) That his morals may not be corrupted by Hasdrubal. (2) That he may learn to respect law and order from an enforced submission to civil magistrates.—prætorum, derived from præ, before, and the termination tor; and therefore readily applicable to leaders of armies. Hence consuls at Rome were first called prætores.—regni paterni et regis are used invidiously for imperi paterni and ducis, though it is quite true that, as Spain had been chiefly acquired by Hamilcar and his son-in-law, and the Spaniards had been personally attached to Hamilcar, and were now equally so to Hasdrubal, the power wielded by both of them was far more kingly than that ordinarily at the command of a Carthaginian general.—quandoque, "at some time or other."

iv. Hannibal's character.—ac, "and indeed," is another form of atque=adque, and subjoins the more important ferme optimus quisque to explain pauci. It is worth while to notice how many terms significative of moral worth have in all languages been used to signify adhesion to the cause of the few. Optimus here does not mean "best morally," but "best politically, siding with the aristocratic party." So, also, melio rem partem in the next line.—vultu, vultus, is the upper part, or the lower part of the face.—in se. Se is the ablative. Malle, confidere, audere are historical infinitives; that is, they are used instead of the past imperfect indicative, as is often the case in historical writing, to bring the various portions of the scene forward in quick succession.—fortiter ac strenue, "with courage and activity."—custodias stationesque. The former word signifies a smaller number of troops, guarding at intervals within the fortifications. By the latter is signified a greater number, engaged on outpost duty.—inter æquales = inter æqualium vestitum.—inhumana crudelitas, perfidia plus quam Punica. Both these charges I believe to be false. Polybius (ix. 24) expressly denies both. The Romans were never to be believed about an enemy. There is no doubt that Hannibal never did anything one-fiftieth part so bad as the crime of which the whole Roman people were guilty, in snatching Sardinia and Corsica from Carthage on a lying pretext, in a moment of intense temporary weakness. Had Carthaginian accounts come down to us, Roman faith, not Punic, would have been another name for perfidy.—nihil veri, nihil sancti . . . nulla religio. The Romans had no words in their language to express such abstract notions as untruthfulness, ungodliness, perjury, &c., because they were not untruthful, ungodly, or perjured, at the time their language was formed. Hence the notions are here expressed by circumlocutions, with the help of the negative words nihil and nullus. That these statements are not true has been already asserted, partly on the authority of Polybius. But Livy himself disproves some of them by his own statements in xxi. 21, 22; in xxv. 17; xxvii. 23; &c.

v. Hannibal prepares to besiege Saguntum.—quia . . . Romana arma movebantur=non dubium erat quin futurum esset ut Romana arma moveantur. There was no doubt that, if Hannibal attacked Saguntum without any pretext, the Romans would be able to prove indisputably to his countrymen that he was altogether in the wrong. Therefore he began to make a pretext, by stirring up the people round about, and involving them in quarrels with the Saguntines.—Olcadum. The Olcades lived to the north of New Carthage, near the source of the Guadiana.—ultra Hiberum. To the south of the Ebro; beyond it, to an inhabitant of Rome.—rerum serie . . . jungendoque—ad conjungendam domitarum gentium seriem, "that he might seem to have been drawn on to round off his dominion by the course of events, and the successive annexation of all the neighbouring tribes."—Cartalam. The correct name, Althæa, is given by Polybius (iii. 13).—Carthaginem novam. A town built south of C. Palos by Hasdrubal, the son-in-law of Hamilcar, in the immediate neighbourhood of the richest silver mines in Spain. It was called New Carthage, to distinguish it from the African Carthage, though the word Carthage itself means New City, and therefore Carthago nova—urbs nova nova. Carthago nova was the chief of all the Carthaginian possessions in Spain; its site is now occupied by the modern Cartagena.—civium. There were very few of Hannibal's fellow-citizens in his army to pay. Livy was thinking of the composition of the Roman armies. The Carthaginian armies consisted all but exclusively of mercenaries. The citizens of Carthage itself were too fond of money-making and luxury to like soldiering. Hence it was that they fell before the warrior citizens of Rome, just as in medieval times, the silken Italians, for the same reason, fell before the iron legions of France, Germany, and Spain.—Vacceos. The Vaccei dwelt on the Douro; Salamanca, the modern Salamanca, was their capital. This is, as far as we know, the furthest to which the Carthaginians ever pushed their conquests in Spain in that direction. The use of the preposition in, instead of ad, before Vacceos, shows that the name of the nation is here used as the name of the place in which the nation lives. So ex is often used instead of a or ab.—Carpetanos. One of the most powerful tribes of Spain, inhabiting a great part of Old and New Castile.—ab hostibus, "on the part of the enemy."—valloque ita producto, "and his rampart having been only just so far removed from the river that . . ."—adpendicibus. This word is used to show that the great majority of the Spanish army was Carpetanian. A mere handful comparatively were Olcades and Vaccei.—inmissa, "sent in" by Hannibal.—medioque alveo, "in the middle of the channel."—vix vado fidens, "hardly daring to step firmly in the shallow part of the river."—omni is ablative for the commoner amne. So we find in cap. xlv. Maharballi for Maharbale—tanto pavore—in tanto pavore; "before they could free themselves of the fear in which they still were."—fugam exripa fecit—fecit ut ex ripa fugerent.—et jam omnia . . . Carthaginensium erant. So Polybius, iii. 14. ὅν ἡττηθέντων οὐδείς ἐτι τῶν ἐν τῷ Ἰβήρῳ ποταμῷ ῥαβδῶς πρὸς αὐτοὺς ἀποφθαλμεῖν ἐτόλμα πλὴν Ζακανθαίων.

vi. The Saguntines send ambassadors to Rome to sue for protection.—ceterum is often used by Livy, especially after non in the sense of sed.—Turdetania. The Turdetani dwelt between the Guadalquivir and Guadiana, about Seville. It is difficult, therefore, to imagine how a tribe, living the whole breadth of the peninsula from the Saguntines, could have picked a quarrel with them. Hence Niebuhr wishes to read Edetanis for Turdetanis; the Edetani being a tribe close to Saguntum, in Valencia and Arragon, and being then, without doubt, under Carthaginian influence. This is the more possible, as Polybius does not mention the matter at all, and Appian, though he calls them by another name, Τορβολήτας, adds οἱ γειτονέ εισι Ζακυνθίων. Ti. stands for Tiberius, as T. alone stands for Titus.—consules tunc Romæ erant P. Cornelius Scipio et Ti. Sempronius Longus. The following note from Ruperti should be well studied: “Longe probabilius diligentiusque singula exponit, quo potissimum duce Noster in hoc bello describendo uti solet, Polybius, lib. iii. c. 13—17, 20, 33, et sq. scil. P. Cornelio et M. Minucio consulibus (that is, 533 A. V. C.), Hannibalem imperio in Hispania suscepto, Althæam, Olædum oppidum cepisse, et Carthaginem novam concessisse in hiberna; L. Veturio et C. Lutatio consulibus (that is, 534 A. V. C.), Vaccaeos Carpetanosque ab eo devictos, et legatos Saguntinos Romam, Romanosque in Hispaniam ad Hannibalem missos esse, qui eum Sagunto abstinere juberent; M. Livio et L. Æmilio consulibus (that is, 535 A. V. C.), Saguntum oppugnatam captamque esse, et novos legatos Roma Carthaginem venisse, qui deposcerent Hannibalem, bellumque Pœnis indicerent; P. Cornelio Scipione et Ti. Sempronio consulibus (that is, 536 A. V. C.), Hannibalem populis Hispaniæ usque ad Pyreneum subactis, per Galliam ad Alpes profectum et inde in Italiam transgressum esse. Polybius, iii. 33, notat mendacia scriptorum quales Livio ante oculos fuere, docetque se res ab Hannibale in Hispania gestas, hausisse ex ænea tabula ab ipso Hannibale descripta.”—quibus si videretur=qui, si iis videretur.—spe, “expectation.”—intenderant. The past perfect is often introduced by Livy after a past imperfect or present perfect to attract the reader’s attention, and fix it on what follows. Here it introduces the advice which was ultimately acted on.

vii. The siege of Saguntum. The chapters containing Livy’s account of this siege are among the most beautiful he ever wrote. They are however, far too full and minute to be authentic. Polybius does not profess to enter into such details. He merely says that the town, after having been besieged for eight months, was taken by storm; that Hannibal gained immense booty, and thus made the Carthaginians willing to second his designs. Livy probably took his account from the work of Cælius Antipater, who was rather a rhetorician than an historian, and is therefore an untrustworthy authority. Cicero does not speak of him with any great respect, De Or. ii., 13: “Sed iste ipse Cælius neque distinxit historiam varietate locorum; neque verborum collocatione, et tractu orationis leni et æquabili perpolverit illud opus; sed ut homo neque doctus neque maxime aptus ad dicendum, sicut potuit, dolavit; vicit tamen, ut dicis, superiores.” Dum ea Romani parant. Notice how dum, whilst, governs the present imperfect tense, even though the verb in the principal clause, oppugnabatur, is in the past imperfect.—oriundi, agrees with Saguntini understood in civitas. So xxvi. 19: “Emporiis, urbe Græca (oriundi et ipsi a Phœcia sunt), copias exposuit.”—Zacyntho. Zante, one of the seven Ionian isles. Ζακυνθα, the Greek name for Saguntum, is so like Zacynthus, that that likeness probably created the story of the connection in origin between the two.—ab Ardea Rutulorum quidam generis, “some of the race of the Rutulians from Ardea.” Ardea was a town about twenty-four miles from Rome, of considerable importance, as this legend testifies, in very early times.—fructibus, “commercial gains.”—disciplina sanctitate . . . coluerunt, “by the purity of their moral principles, which led them to keep their faith to their allies, even to their own destruction.” This is a flourish of Livy’s. The Saguntines fought for themselves. They owed the Romans nothing.—submovere, pati, &c., are historic infinitives.—adversum femur, “the front of the thigh.”

viii. The siege of Saguntum continued.—dum . . . curaretur. Dum governs the subjunctive here, because it relates not merely to time, but to purpose. See Arnold's Lat. Comp. 508 (b).—partibus. Pars often occurs in Livy in the ablative governed by a preposition understood.—continētibz rēnis, "a continuous breach."—per occasionem partis alterius, "as either party seizes on or gives an opportunity for an attack."—juste acies, "pitched battles," "quæ jure dici possent acies." Crevier.—phalarica. This ponderous spear was so called from phala, a wooden tower or scaffolding used in sieges, to throw missiles from into a besieged city.—tereti, "round," from terere, to rub smooth.—nudum, "without arms, defenceless."

ix. Hannibal refuses an audience to the Roman ambassadors.—operæ esse = operæ pretium esse, vacare. This of course, as well as the former reason given, was a mere pretence.—præmittit is the historic present, and therefore equivalent to a past tense.—gratificari pro Romanis is an unusual construction. Some commentators therefore have, with some show of reason, supposed that Livy wrote gratificari populo Romano, which, being contracted into p. Rom., might easily have been altered by transcribers into pro Romanis.

x. Hanno's speech on the complaints of the Roman ambassadors at Carthage. This speech is a very beautiful one, but is of course entirely a creation of Livy's, in order to give a dramatic representation of what he conceived to be the views of the peace-party at Carthage.—adversus senatum, "before the senate." The common reading adverso senatu, besides being against the manuscripts, would make the expression non cum adversu superfluous.—monuisse, prædixisse se, "that he had advised and forewarned them." So προειπεῖν is used in Greek.—ulti agrees with Romani understood in Romane legiones.—bonus imperator vester, "that precious general of yours," that is, of the Barcine faction.—publica fraus absit; "Concessio ex personâ Romanorum; quasi diceret Hanno; fœderis rupti et noxam et pœnam non publicam esse Carthaginiensium, sed solius Hannibalis propriam, Romani facile patiuntur." Crevier.—Ægates insulas. Three small islands lying off the western angle of Sicily, near which C. Lutatius Catulus gained the great naval victory which put an end to the first Punic war. The largest of them, Ægusa, is now called Favignana.—Erycem. A town and mountain in the western angle of Sicily, held by Hamilcar in spite of the efforts of the Romans to dislodge him, till the victory of Catulus made the Carthaginians sue for peace.—Mars alter. So Horace, Sat. ii. 3, 296: Hæc mihi Stertinius, sapientum octavus, amico Arma dedit.—isti. The Barcine faction.—Tarento, id est Italia. Italy is added to explain Tarentum, because Italy, not Tarentum, was mentioned in the treaty. Polybius, however (iii. 26), expressly denies that there was any such agreement; μήτε γενομένους, μήδ' ὑπαρχόντων τὸ παράπαν ἐγγράφου τοιαύτου μηδένος.—Sagunti non abstinemus. So Hor. Carm. iii. 27, 69: abstineto, Dixit, irarum calidaeque rixæ."—id ac quo verbis ambigebatur. "Possis ordinare in hunc modum: Eventus belli . . . ei victorium dedit, unde jus stabat, id de quo, sive quæ erat res de qua verbis ambigebatur, nempe uter populus fœdus rupisset." Crev. This insertion of the relative clause before the proposition to which it refers, is usual. Thus Cic. pro Sex. Rosc. Am. 4: "Sin a vobis (id quod non spero) deserar, tamen animo non deficiam."—dedendum, devehendum, ablegandum, are governed by some such word as dico, understood in the preceding detestor, or in the following censeo.—deposcit. I should prefer to read with some, deposcat.

xi. The siege of Saguntum continued.—in hostes stimulando, is in opposition to, and explains ira.—pro contione, "before the assembled army." Contio, generally spelt concio, because it has erroneously been derived from concieo, is a contraction for convēntio.—cementa, "rough-hewn stone," contracted for cadmenta, from cado.—calce durata, "cemented with lime."—latius quam qua caderetur ruebat. "Latior erat ruina quam ea pars muri, qua casa sive icta fuerat." Caderetur is in the subjunctive to show that this destruction happened, not in one part of the wall, but wherever it might be struck.—Oretanos, a powerful tribe of Spain, living in Granada, Murcia, and La Mancha.

xii. The siege continued.—Maharbale, one of the best of Hannibal's officers. He performed many brilliant exploits during the war. He it was who urged Hannibal to march on to Rome after the battle of Cannæ.—cives, "the Carthaginian army." There were, however, as has been already explained, very few citizens of Carthage in the army. Hispanum. Alorcus is said to be a Spaniard, not a Saguntine, because the Saguntines are supposed by Livy to be Greeks.—aliquid, "in some measure."—alia = muri, munimenta, arces.—prætores, "the chief magistrate." senatus, "an interview with the senate."

xiii. Alorcus's speech.—quo, sc. itinere . . . ne ullius alterius, "and not in the interest of Hannibal."—postquam . . . est. A rare construction. Postquam seldom has the present after it, unless it be the historic present.—si . . . audiat, si . . . habitu estis. Notice how Livy varies the mood after si in the case of the two verbs.—captam habet, "has taken and still keeps."—binis, "two a-piece." Livy represents Hannibal as relaxing his terms in this respect. In c. 12, he says, singulis vestimentis.

xiv. The siege continued.—plerumque, refers to primores, "most of the leading men."—semet ipse. Ipsē is generally attracted to the case of the subject, unless it is specially intended to mark that the subject did the thing to himself, rather than to any one else. Thus we should say nosce te ipsum, not nosce te ipse.—crudele . . . cognitum ipso eventu est. This is an instance of zeugma, or two subjects having a common verb, which applies properly to only one of them. The meaning is: "crudele fuit, ceterum necessarium cognitum ipso eventu est." Alschevski however translates it thus: "which cruel command was however in other respects shown by the result to be inevitable." Crudele, this cruel order was probably never given. Polybius says nothing about it. It no doubt owes its origin to the deadly hate which the Romans bore to Hannibal. How an enormous spoil in money, slaves, and goods could have been gained, when almost all the city was either a heap of ruins or burnt, and all the men, and most of the women and children perished, Livy does not explain.—super se ipsos, "over their own heads." Here the sense requires ipsos, not ipsi. See the previous note.

xv. The capture of the town, and the date of the capture.—Octavo mense, quam, not "after seven full months, and in the middle of the eighth," but "eight full months after." See Arnold's Lat. Comp., p. 89, n. 1.—quidam seripsere. See Polybius, iii. 17: "τέλος ἐν ὀκτώ μηνὶ κατὰ κράτος εἶλε τὴν πόλιν."—quæ si ita sunt, fieri non potuit ut. Livy, as has already been shown in the notes on c. vi., has got himself into these difficulties by attempting to crowd the events of four years into one. Hannibal entered on his command in the year 533 A.U.C., burst into Italy in the year 536, and conquered C. Maminius, the colleague of C. Servilius, at the Trasymene Lake in the year 537. The supposition of Livy would therefore not do away with all the contradictions in which he has involved himself.

xvi. Preparations for war.—sociorum is the objective genitive.—de summa rerum, "for the very existence of the state."—nam neque hostem . . . congressum, nec rem Romanam . . . fuisse, governed by dicebant, or sentiebant, understood. Such verbs are often omitted by Livy in lively narration. The Romans were moved at the near prospect of the war: (1) Because they had never engaged with so potent an enemy, led by so renowned a general, inured to arms by such long-continued campaigns, flushed with so great a victory, and incited by such valuable spoils; and, (2) Because they themselves had never been so sunk in sloth, and so unfit for war by reason of such long-continued peace, broken only by contemptible contests with undisciplined barbarians.—Sardos, Corsosque et Histros atque Illyrios. Sardinia and Corsica were of course easily reduced by the Romans, after they had been disgracefully filched from the Carthaginians. The Istrians and Illyrians, having annoyed the Romans by their piracies, were subdued with almost as little trouble, the former in the years 533 and 534, and the latter in 525 A.U.C.—cum Gallis. The war with the Gauls was a much more important affair. The dread of it had hung over the Romans for several years, and prevented them from interfering with the progress of the Carthaginians in Spain, though they were aware and jealous of it. From the year 516 A.U.C. the Gauls were threatening an attack, and so much were they dreaded that as many as 300,000 of the Romans and of the Latin name were in arms to repel them; and there were reserves to the amount of 450,000 more. At length, in the year 529, the Gauls came, and were not finally subdued till after a resistance protracted through four desperate campaigns. The only war that occurred between the first and second Punic wars, besides these mentioned here by Livy, was the Ligurian war, which was put an end to by Q. Fabius Maximus, then consul for the first time, 521 A.U.C.—in Italia. It is not at all probable that the Romans could as yet have had the least notion that they would have to fight with Hannibal "in Italy and before the walls of Rome." Hannibal was not likely to let them know it, so long as he could keep it secret, and they themselves had been reluctant to commence the war earlier, not only from fear of the Gaulish invasion, but because they thought they must carry on the war at great expense and loss by sea (as indeed is shown in the opening words of the next chapter), either in Spain or in Africa itself. Hannibal's intention probably oozed out, after the taking of Saguntum was known at Rome, from information derived from some of the Gauls, whose disposition Hannibal had been sounding.

xvii. Disposition of the Roman forces.—socium, for sociorum. So words of the second declension, signifying weights, measures, and money, form their genitives in -um, instead of -orum. Livy also is fonder of the forms deum, fabrum, liberum, socium, duum, than of the corresponding longer forms deorum, fabrorum, sociorum, duorum—quattuor et viginti . . . millia, &c. Each of the six legions, then, must have consisted of 4000 foot and 300 horse.—ipsis, that is, consulibus—celoces, cutters; connected with celer, and the Greek κέρως.—vellent, jubere, "whether they wished and ordered."—deducti, "launched."—bellum is here put in the relative clause, instead of being put in the principal one.—ea, "those legions." Though ea, instead of agreeing with legiones in gender is attracted, as is often the case, to the gender of the following word millia.—cum suo justo equitatu, that is, "with 300 horse for each legion.—duas legiones . . . Gallia provincia eodem versa in Punicum bellum habuit, may be translated in two ways, according as versa is made to agree with millia, taken as a collective word embodying the general idea of troops, or with Gallia provincia. In the first case the sentence would run thus: "the province of Gaul had two Roman legions, and 10,000 foot and 1000 horse of the allies, all destined for the same purpose, that is, for the Punic war." In the second case the meaning would be: "the province of Gaul lying in the same direction, that is, in the direction of the Punic war, had" . . . &c. "The province of Gaul" is of course Gallia Cisalpina, which had just before been reduced to the form of a dependent province.

xviii. The declaration of war.—ut omnia justa ante bellum fierent, "that everything that was right and proper under such circumstances should be done before the war was formally entered upon." The ambassadors were the celebrated Q. Fabius Cunctator, "unus qui nobis cunctando restituit rem," M. Livius and L. Æmilius, the consuls of the previous year, C. Licinius, the same probably who was consul in the year 518, and Q. Æmilius one of the members of the original embassy.—unus, of course, agrees with inquit understood.—ceterum is used instead of a second et to answer to the former one, because the sense requires an adversative particle, and the omitted clause et hæc legatio præceps est can easily be supplied.—adhuc = not etiam, but hucusque, "up to this point," intimating that the speaker expected something sterner words to follow.—ego . . . censeam, "I should venture to think."—nequum enim erant socii vestri. This is a pitiful excuse. As Polybius remarks, if, in the treaty that was made between the Romans and the Carthaginians at the end of the first Punic war, when it was stipulated that they should not injure each other's allies, it had been intended that the clause was not to apply to any nations who might afterwards become the allies of either people, a limitation to that effect would have been inserted in the body of the treaty.—at enim answering to the Greek ἀλλὰ . . . γὰρ, introduces an objection which the opposite party would be likely to urge. Hence its use by Livy in speeches, not in historical narrative. The answer to the objection so introduced is a poor one. It is very probable that at the time that the Romans made the treaty with Hasdrubal, mentioned in c. 2, Carthage was in a state of anarchy, and that therefore it was difficult to find any regular authority but Hasdrubal to treat with. However this may be, the Carthaginians tacitly accepted the treaty afterwards, and though, in spite of Livy's assertion, it said nothing about the Saguntines (see Polybius, iii. 27), yet it stipulated that the Carthaginians should not go beyond the Hiberus with an army; and this stipulation Hannibal fully intended to transgress. With regard to the non-recognition on the part of the Roman people of the treaty agreed to by Lutatius Catulus, that had been provided for by a clause in the treaty itself, which ended with these words "κρίτας εἶναι ταύτας ἐὰν καὶ τῇ δήμεσθῃ τῶν Παλαιῶν," Polybius, iii. 29. The fact is that the Carthaginians were not putting forward their true reasons for wishing to go to war again, and therefore, alleging as they did, mere pretexts, got the worst of the argument. The conduct of Hannibal was contrary to the spirit both of Lutatius Catulus's treaty and Hasdrubal's treaty; and he and his countrymen knew it. They acted as they did because of their deep sense of the shameful conduct of the Romans with respect to Sardinia and Corsica at a time when Carthage was in its lowest state of weakness and depression. Thus it was the sin of Rome that "found her out," that gave her a vital stab from which she never after recovered, and has helped to point the old (but never to be forgotten) truth, that evil deeds create their own punishment.

xix. Remarks on the meaning of the treaties between Rome and Carthage. Sagunto excisa. Sagunto may here come from the feminine form Saguntus.

So Florus, ii. 6: "Igitur in causam belli Saguntus adlecta est." Or it may be supposed to be in apposition with urbe understood. So Virg., Æn. viii. 561: "Præneste sub ipsa." Seneca, Troa. 14: "excisa ferro est Pergamum."—nam; the usual force of this adverb will appear, if we supply the omission in the line of thought. "And yet they could have met them on their own grounds; for &c."—quid, "for what respect?" Lutatii priore fœdere, "the former treaty made by Lutatius."—diserte, "expressly."—censuisset. Censere is generally used of the senate, juberet of the people. See Livy, xxxi. 7: "Quæ patres censuerunt, vos jubete." But here populus may be said to stand for senatus populusque. Fabri.—tot annorum silentio; the treaty with Hasdrubal was made thirteen years after the end of the First Punic war, and therefore between eight and nine before the Second Punic war.—tantum ne=modo ne.—Bargusios, a tribe dwelling in the north-east of Spain, not far from the Pyrenees. Near them probably dwelt the Volciani.

xx. The Romans fail in attaching the Gauls to their cause.—in iis refers to "the Gauls" implied in "Galliam."—nova terribilisque species; and yet it was once the custom in Rome too. See Livy, i. 44.—censere seems here equivalent to jubere or the Greek ἐκείναι.—gentis suæ homines, the tribes of Cisalpine Gaul.—Massiliam, the modern Marseilles. This being a Greek colony, and often at variance with its Celtic neighbours, would naturally incline to Rome.—præoccupatos jam ante. Of this form of pleonasm Livy is very fond. So in c. 32, "prius præcepta res erat."

xxi. Hannibal prepares for the campaign in Italy.—reliquis is equivalent to reliquit.—credo ego vos, &c. This speech is invented for Hannibal.—hec gentes = hæc gentes. The demonstrative particle ce or e for ecce can be added to those parts of hic which ordinarily are without them. Thus hi becomes hice; hæc becomes hæce or hece.—clivis gentibus; this is the first hint Hannibal gives to his soldiers, and that not a distinct one, that the war is to be transferred into other countries.—commeatum, "leave of absence."—vere primo, "in the early spring" of the year 536.—Gades, now Cádiz, a colony, founded before the historic period by the Phœnicians, but reduced by Hamilcar under the rule of Carthage.—Herculi. The Phœnician Hercules was worshipped under the name of Melcart, in all the Phœnician cities and their colonies. Judging from the little that is known of him, we may assume that his worship was the worship of brute power, not of any moral quality. The Assyrian Hercules was, as may be seen from the sculptures, a god of the same kind, one who could strangle lions with a grasp or lash them to death. The Father of Gods and men, whose home was in the Capitol, was a nobler God than that, and the offspring of the aspirations of a nobler nation.—ab Sicilia, "on the side of Sicily." ut Afri in Hispania, in Africa Hispani, &c. This diabolical recipe for keeping up a "strong government" in an empire composed of heterogeneous elements has often been practised since Hannibal's time. The Romans saw its merits and applied it extensively in after times. Austria and Russia are its great admirers now. In the former kingdom, for instance, Slavonic and Hungarian and Croat regiments keep down Germans and Italians; and Germans and Italians, returning hate for hate, keep down Slaves, Hungarians, and Croats; and so all goes well, as it is supposed. The same policy is practised in Russia, with the same present success. But power built on the principle of division cannot last.—cætratos; "cætra secutum loreum quo utuntur Afri et Hispani."—Baliares, the Balearic Isles, the principal of which are Majorca and Minorca. The inhabitants were celebrated as slingers, and as such served first in the Carthaginian and afterwards in the Roman armies. The name is of Iberian origin, and has no connection with the Greek verb βάλλειν.—The numbers of Hannibal's forces given in this chapter are authentic; for they are copied by Livy from Polybius, who got them at Lacinium from a brazen tablet engraved by the orders of Hannibal himself. iii. 33. ἡμεῖς γὰρ ἐδρόρτες ἐπὶ Λακινίᾳ τῇ γράφῃ ταύτῃ ἐν χαλκῷ κατὰ τεταγμένην ὑπ' Ἀννίβου, κ.τ.λ.

xxii. Hannibal's preparations and vision.—atque id eo haud minus, "and not less did he think so on this account . . ." There is no need for omitting haud, as some commentators have done.—Liguribus. This was in spite of their recent defeats by Q. Fabius Maximus. But they had been in the habit of acting as mercenaries for Carthage. See Pol. i. 17.—Batiaribus quingentis; the number is not to be found in the manuscripts of Livy. It has been added from Polybius, iii. 33.—Libyphœnices, a mixed race that sprang from the intermixture of the Phœnician settlers with the native races. Like the half-bred races of America in their intermixture of blood, they were unlike them in having freedom and the right of intermarriage with the Carthaginians.—Numidae, derived from the Greek νομάδες, is the common name given by the Romans to the various nomadic tribes inhabiting those highlands of Africa, on the shores of the Mediterranean, which lay between the river Ampsaga and the territory of Carthage. This country answers in great measure to the French province of Algeria; and the Kabyles of the present day still retain the characteristic features attributed to the Numidae by ancient writers.—Mauri, the people of Mauretania, which, now answering to part of Algeria, and to Fez and Morocco, comprehended the highlands of Africa, on the Mediterranean, lying between the river Ampsaga and the Atlantic.—Ilergetum, a Spanish tribe situated between the Ebro, the Segre, and the Pyrenees.—ducenti; according to Polybius, three hundred.—Etovissum, conjectured to be the modern Oropesa, a town on the coast, nearly half-way between Murviedro and the Ebro.—inde profectus maritumam oram ducit, "having set out from New Carthage, he leads his army past the city Etovisa to the Ebro, along the sea coast." Some editors have appended que to maritumam, in order to get over the difficulty of construction in maritumam oram. But as New Carthage, from which Hannibal started was on the sea coast, he could not lead his army to the sea coast. Maritumam oram must be considered the accusative of cognate signification, just as we talk of "leading a man some way, a great way," &c. See Alschevski's note on the passage.—in quiete = in somnis. For a more deeply coloured account of this dream, see Cicero, Div. i. 24.—cura ingenii humani, "with that apprehension of evil consequences so natural to," or "with the curiosity so innate in, the human mind." For the latter meaning see Livy, xlii. 39. Inerat cura insita mortalibus videndi . . .—mols, "monster."

xxiii. Hannibal subdues Spain up to the Pyrenees.—Hoc visu letus . . . Earlier writers tell how a real objective spirit led the way for Hannibal. Livy turns it into a dream. His poetic mind evidently revels in this vision and its effects on Hannibal. The sceptical Polybius, on the contrary, iii. 47, most characteristically sneers at the whole story, and coldly adds that it is unnecessary to introduce the supernatural to account for the natural. The two passages are very curious as evidencing the difference of bias in the two historians.—Bargusios; (c. 19) "this tribe received the Roman ambassadors favourably, and therefore were to be, according to Hannibal's orders, used more harshly than the rest by Hanno." Polyb. iii. 85.—Ausetanos et Lacetaniam: the Ausetani and Lacetani lay between the Segre, the Pyrenees, and the Mediterranean. Lacetaniam, however, is a conjecture. The manuscripts have Aquitanium, which may refer to some Spanish tract so called, but cannot of course refer to the Gallic Aquitania. Indeed Strabo, iii. 4, calls the part of Spain in question Ιακκηγρavia.—Salum, "the pass."—rumor certior; if Hannibal's soldiers did not know his designs, we may be sure that the Romans did not know them so early as Livy makes out they did.—Alpium transitu. They could not yet have known he was going to cross the Alps.—"et ipse," he also as well as others. It does not seem necessary to conjecture "et ipsos."

xxiv. Hannibal enters Gaul.—reliquis copiis. He crossed the Ebro, according to Polybius, iii. 35, with 90,000 foot and 12,000 horse. He left 10,000 foot and 1000 horse with Hanno, and sent home a similar number. In subduing the tribes between the Ebro and the Pyrenees, he lost 20,000 foot and 1000 horse. He therefore had now 50,000 foot and 9000 horse. Of these when he had crossed the Rhone he had 38,000 foot and rather more than 8000 horse left; and having lost nearly half these in crossing the Alps, he succeeded in bringing 20,000 foot and 6000 horse into Italy. Such is the terrible waste of war.—See Ruperti, p. 757.—Illiberri, now Elne, a small town close to the Pyrenees, on the French side. The word, as retaining its foreign ending, is here undeclinable. Further on it is declinable, because it has a Greek termination appended to it.—Ruscinonem, now "La Tour de Roussillon," not far from the modern Perpignan. From this town is derived the name of the province Roussillon.—hæc, i. e. dixit.

xxv. The Cisalpine Gauls revolt.—Placentiam Cremonamque colonias. The colonies of the Romans were for the purpose of establishing a recently acquired dominion on a firm basis, and therefore resembled the French military colonies in Algeria rather than those sent out from this country. Six thousand men were sent to Placentia, now Piacenza, on the right bank, and a like number to Cremona, on the left bank of the Po, for the express purpose of completing the subjugation of the Gauls, and preventing their helping Hannibal, if he should come that way, or creating a diversion in his favour, should he appear in any other direction.—in eum ipsum agrum, the land, that is, which had been divided among the colonists by the three commissioners (triumviri), sent with them from Rome for that purpose.—Id quoque dubium est . . . A second doubt intrudes itself, which may help to explain the first. Were these Romans who were maltreated by the Boii ambassadors sent to them to expostulate with them about their revolt, or were they triumvirs who were busied in dividing the land among the colonists? Possibly the confusion of names may arise from the fact that ambassadors were sent to demand the deliverance of the triumvirs, and the names of the triumvirs and ambassadors were subsequently mixed up together.—effusum, "not in regular marching order."—plerisque incultis, "most of the country being uncultivated."—præcipitatus is not a participle, but an aorist, coupled with the aorist emeruit. The auxiliary est, therefore, is, as often in Livy, understood. So Virgil, Æn. vi. 547: "Tantum effatus, et in verbo vestigia torsit.—quingentos. This is from conjecture. One manuscript has C, which does not agree very well with the words multa cum caede.—Tannetum lies between Parma and Modena.—contendere is indicative not infinitive—ad tempus, for the time.—Commeatibus fluminis, "supplies from the river."—Brixianorum Gallorum, the Gauls of Brixia, now Brescia, in the country of the Cenomani.

xxvi. Hannibal arrives at the Rhone.—Saluvium. The Saluvii or Salges, were a Ligurian race, inhabiting the coast region of the Mediterranean between Antibes and the Rhone.—videtur credens Hannibalem superasse Pyrenæos montes. The Romans never expected that Hannibal could subdue the free and warlike nations between the Ebro and the Pyrenees before Scipio's arrival in Spain. But Hannibal feeling how important it was not to leave the Romans the opportunity of getting a footing there, had made short work of it, though, because he had to do so, his losses were greatly increased.—Volcarum. The Volce Tectosages and Volce Arecomici stretched along the coast continuously, with the exception of the small territory belonging to the Sordones, from the Pyrenees to the Rhone, so that it is not easy to discover what tribes Livy means by ceteris pacatis.—colunt autem circa utramque ripam Rhodani. This seems to be a mistake of Livy's. They did not dwell on the east bank of the Rhone.—eorum ipsorum, i.e. Volcarum.—et ipsi . . . cupiebant. The Gauls on the east bank had to supply the half-starved army with necessaries, and would therefore be glad to get rid of them as soon as possible. Those on the other bank would have the same reason for disapproving of their passage.—novasque alias, i.e. luntres, not naves.

xxvii. Hannibal begins the passage of the Rhone.—equites virique, "horse and foot."—adverso flumine, "up the stream," parva insula. If the place where Hannibal crossed the Rhone was, as seems to have been the case, a little above Roquemaure, the "small island" here spoken of would be near the Pont St. Esprit, which is about 25 miles above Roquemaure.—materia, "wood" connected probably with madeo, as our word is with wet.—mole, "difficulty."—utres. It is interesting to see the same practice exemplified in the Assyrian sculptures.—ex loco prodito fumo.—prodito can be taken either with loco or with fumo. In the former mean it would mean "high," in the latter "having been raised as a signal."—eques . . . navium equum . . . transmittens, "higher up, the cavalry, mostly near their horses, which were swimming in the river, took over a line of ships to break the force of the stream, and so . . ."

xxviii. The crossing concluded.—navitarum, militum. The omission of et is owing to the liveliness and hurry shadowed forth in the narrative.—utroque vim facere conati possibly may, as Alschevski says, be equivalent to qui vel utro vim facere conati fuerant, "they who had ventured to attack the enemy even before they had been attacked by him." But the reading of some of the manuscripts, utroque, seems the better one.—variata = varie exposita.—ut quemque—rapiente, "the force of the stream itself carrying them off one by one to the other bank, as each, though afraid of the deep water, lost his footing."—cum . . . acti. Supply sunt after acti, making it, not the participle, but the aorist indicative. The verb substantive occurs so soon after, though under a different government, that it may have seemed unnecessary to put it in both clauses.—repetiti = et ipsi petiti.—ceteris, "everything that was before connected with it."—altum, the river. It is generally applied only to the sea. Here, of course, it is used to give the notion of vastness and depth.—pondere ipso stabiles. Livy, like Polybius iii. 46, supposed that the elephants sank to the bottom of the river, and there, steadied by their immense weight, and making their trunks, which always managed to keep partly above water, serve the double purpose of taking in air and discharging the water that had been swallowed, at last struggled against the current straight to the other side of the stream.

xxix. The first engagement in the war. Dum trajiciuntur—miserat. Dum takes a present indicative, in order to give an air of liveliness to the narrative, even when dependent on a past tense. — ale, so called, because the Numidians stood in the same relation to the Carthaginians, that the Roman allies stood to the Romans themselves; and as the Roman allies were drawn up on the two wings, their contingents were called ale. — principium simul omenque belli. So Scott in the "Lady of the Lake," Canto iv.

Which spills the foremost foeman's life,
That party conquers in the strife.

It may be worth while here, at the mention of the first contest in this death-struggle, to call to mind that it was no mere chance that enabled Rome ultimately to triumph. She conquered because she deserved to conquer. The triumph of Carthage over Rome would have been a triumph over the welfare of the human race; for her citizens worshipped not glory, but gold; they were not animated by the love of country, or a respect for law and order, as the Romans were. They were selfish, gloomy, morose, cowardly, implacable, inordinately fond of creature-comforts, and jealous of extending political privileges to others. On the other hand, the Romans, in the heroic age of their country, which was not yet past, were not unwilling to extend the franchise, cared but little for sensual indulgence, were brave, open, and cheerful, and were willing to sacrifice themselves, and all belonging to them, for their country. Hence their triumph and subsequent dominion were a benefit to humanity. They diffused among their subjects that love of order, that respect for law, that knowledge of the art of government, that sense of the meaning and objects of political coherence, which it was so important that men should know. — summa rerum. "the war taken as a whole." — ad utrumque ducem sui fœderunt. So Cic. pro Sext. 68. Hunc sui cives e civitate eiecerunt. — nec Scipioni stare sententia poterat nisi, "and Scipio could form no settled plan except." — Rem fama . . . horrendum = "rem arcuam per se, sed præsertim, si quis eam ex fama tantum noverit, nunquam expertus, horrendam." Crev.

xxx. Hannibal encourages his soldiers to attempt the passage of the Alps. — pergere ire. So. c. 22, sub fin.: "pergeret porro ire." — quicumque . . . obsedissent. This is not true. Hannibal, not his army, was demanded by the Romans. — orbem terrarum. Of course Hannibal, never could have used such an expression, because the Romans had not then subdued the world. The question who should rule was then to be decided, though neither of the parties engaged could have been aware of it. It is hardly necessary to remark that the speeches inserted by Livy and other ancient writers into their histories, are not to be understood as having ever been really spoken by those into whose mouths they are put, but as what, according to the historian's view, might have been spoken under the given circumstances. We must therefore judge them by their dramatic fitness. If they bring the scene and actors vividly before us, and disclose to us the hidden springs and machinery by which the action of the period was sustained and directed, they are to be looked on as valuable means of arriving at an intelligent appreciation of history. — Italice is the partitive genitive. — nec here = nec ullas. — per vias paucis esse: et exercitibus? The et has been added, from conjecture, but may easily have slipped out between esse and exercitibus, as it is often written e instead of et in the manuscripts, and as it has here an e on each side of it. If the note of interrogation be retained, the sentence is very abrupt. Its general meaning would be "The Alps can be penetrated by small bodies of travellers, who can do little to assist each other in smoothing the asperities of the road."

Must they not, then, a fortiori, be penetrable by armies, whose united powers could destroy any impediment?" I should prefer however to substitute a full stop for the note of interrogation, and translate "that the Alps were penetrable both for small parties and armies."—legatos, ambassadors from the Boii.—sublime elatos. So Virgil, G. iii. 108. "Jamque humiles, jamque elati sublime videntur—Aera per vacuum ferri"—ac is here used to attract attention to conjugibus, because it is here placed after liberis, the common formula being conjugibus liberisque.—migrantium modo, "carrying, as emigrants are wont to do, all their baggage with them."—caput orbis terrarum. Livy cannot get out of his head his notion of Rome as she was in his time.—cederent is the subjunctive in the oratio obliqua for the imperative in the oratio recta.—sperent is put in the present tense to show the difference between his obnoxious proposal, and his real wish.—campum—"the Campus Martius."

xxxi. Hannibal marches to the foot of the Alps.—adversa ripa, "along the bank, up the stream."—rectior via. The nearest road would have led to the Maritime, or to the Cottian Alps.—esset is in the subjunctive after non quia, because the reason mentioned is not the true reason. The true reason, according to Livy's view, was that Hannibal wished to avoid a combat with Scipio.—quartis castris, "after four days' march."—Isara, the Isere. The old reading Arar (the Saone), is inadmissible because it could not, and the Isara could, be reached in four days' march.—diversis ex Alpibus. The Rhone flows from the Pennine, the Isere from the Graian Alps; the Saone, on the contrary, does not come from the Alps at all.—incolunt prope Allobroges. The Allobroges lived not near, but in the insula; but it did not suit Livy to say so. With the same view he says ad not in insulam, "to, not into, the island." From this point Livy's account of Hannibal's movements is perplexing and self-contradictory. He copies from Polybius largely, who makes Hannibal lead his army over the Little St. Bernard. He ornaments Polybius' plain statement with romantic and impossible details from less trustworthy writers, and then transfers the scene to the pass of Mont Genevre. The result, of course, is by no means satisfactory. Polybius' statement will not fit Mont Genevre, to which it was never meant to apply.—pellebatur, "was being driven out."—quod refers generally to everything denoted by copia rerum omnium.—non recta regione . . . Livy means to insinuate that after Hannibal had distanced Scipio and the Roman army, he turned back again to resume the route he had originally intended to follow. Of course, if Hannibal had ever intended to go by Mont Genevre, he would have crossed the Rhone near Avignon, and marched securely along the left bank of the Durance, which in that part of its course, and not, as Livy says, in the higher part, is a very turbulent, and therefore easily guarded stream. Livy's whole account is a fiction.—ad lœvum, "to the left," not of Hannibal, but of Livy, writing in Italy.—Tricastinos. This tribe lived in the country through which Hannibal had already passed in his four days' march to the island. The Vocentii were situated on the Drome, to the east of the Tricastini, and the Tricorii on the Drac, rather to the north-east of the Vocentii.—haud usquam impedita via. This is a very good description of the Insula, the land at the junction of the Rhone and the Isere, to which Polybius, from whom Livy borrows it, has applied it; but it is a most absurd description of the high mountain land about the sources of the Drome, the Drac, and the Durance.—Alpinus amnis, from the Cottian Alps.—difficillimus, to agree with amnis, not difficillimum to agree with flumen understood. This is the usual, though not the most obvious construction.

See Arnold's Lat. Prose Comp., § 168.—nova semper vada novosque gurgites . . . volvens. "Et vadaolvere et gurgites bene dicitur amnis, qui volvendo arenas facit vada hac, illac gurgites." Crev.—sava, glaucosa, rocks and gravel." All this description, though considerably exaggerated, applies to the Durance only in the latter part of its course, from its junction with the Bleaune till it reaches the Rhone.

xxxii. Scipio sends his brother with an army to Spain and returns by sea to Italy to meet Hannibal emerging from the Alps.—quadrato agmine, "with his army drawn up in order of battle."—repetit Genium, "quod Ligurum emporium" says Ruperti "forte adpulerat, quum oram Ligurum præternavigaret."—campestri maxime vinere. This, as has already been observed is altogether inapplicable to the country near the upper part of the valley of the Durance.—montium altitudo nivesque, &c. This fine description can only apply to the highest Alps, and therefore hardly even to Mont Genevre, the highest point to which Livy's description would refer; for it is not more than 6000 feet above the level of the sea.—montani. Livy, who is here copying from Polybius, does not mention that Polybius says that the mountaineers in question were the Allobroges, because that would militate against his surreptitious transference of the whole scene from the neighbourhood of the Mont du Chat to that of Mont Genevre. Gallisque ad visenda loca præmissis. See Polybius iii. 50. πρόσπεμψε δέ τινας τῶν καθηγουμένων αὐτοῖς Γαλατῶν χάριν τοῦ κατασκέψασθαι τὴν τῶν ὑπεραντίων ἐπινοίαν.

xxxiii. Successful issue of the contest with the mountaineers.—via, by the path which led up the pass.—arce sua, their advantageous position on the heights.—perversis rupibus, "along the rough rocks."—invia ac devia are in the acc.: after either adsueti or decurrant. See Virgil vi. 838. "Ne, pueri, ne tanta animis adsuescite bella," and Catullus lxiv. 6. "Ausi sunt vada salsa cita decurrere puppi."—tendenti. This is a rare form for the ablative, especially the ablative absolute.—castellum probably on the site of the modern town of Bourget, near Chamberri.—Polybius (iii. 51.) calls it τὴν πόλιν ἐξ ἧς ἐπορεύσαντο τὴν ὁδὸν οἱ πολέμοι. of Livy had any distinct notion on the subject, he must have fixed his castellum somewhere near Briançon.—captivo ac pecoribus, "the booty and especially the cattle." So raptio captivæ vivere.—montanis, though it represents the agent, is not preceded by the preposition a, in order to assimilate its construction to loco to which it is joined by the conjunction ac.—primo is here pretty nearly equivalent to primo impetu.—aliquantum so triduo via confecit. This is borrowed from Polybius iii. 52. The application there is obvious. Hannibal took three days in getting from Bourget by Chamberri to the valley of the Isere, and up that to the country of the Centrones, the modern Tarentaise. This is a good three days' journey. But what kind of good three days' journey Hannibal could have taken if he had found himself, where Livy places him, looking at Mont Genevre, without attempting to ascend it, it is not very easy to discover.

xxxiv. Combat with a second mountain tribe.—alium populum, according to Polybius, the tribe of the Centrones, inhabiting the modern district of Tarentaise. It is impossible to fix on any particular tribe from Livy's account. The Caturiges dwelt in that part of France in which he seems desirous of placing Hannibal.—suis artibus, "arts of which he generally claimed the monopoly."—omnia is governed by circumspectans; solicitusque being inserted as adverbially qualifying circumspectans, "anxiously examining." in eos versa pedum acies haud dubium fecit quin . . . is a short way of saying "quum in eos versa esset peditum acies, tam acriter a montanis pugnatum est, ut necesse fuerit . . ."—fuerit is here the aorist put for the past perfect, a construction which Livy, as has already been said, often used. Without ut it would have been fuit.—demittere agmen, "to lead down his troops," that is the heavy infantry, into the defile.—interrupto medio agmine, "the middle of the line having been broken by Hannibal's irresolution," Polybius says nothing of this. He makes Hannibal occupy τὴν λευκάπετρον ὄχθον, which commanded the pass to enable the cavalry and baggage to get safely through; but he does not lay the blame on Hannibal's want of presence of mind. That is probably a touch put in by Livy himself. There is a white rock in the Little St. Bernard pass, now called "La Roche Blanche," which commands the whole of that part of the pass where the combat seems to have taken place.

xxxv. The summit of the Pass is gained.—elephanti, sicut . . . pracedebant, "though the elephants were driven over the precipitous and narrow roads not without great delay and toil, yet wherever they went, the army proceeded on its march without molestation from the enemy, because . . ." i. e. agmen, not elephanti, is the nominative to pracedebant. The reading præbebant, however, which retains the same substantive as subject to all the verbs, seems preferable.—Nona die. So Polybius, iii. 53; Ἐννατὸς δὲ διαβάσας εἰς τὰς ὑπερβολὰς, αὐτοῦ κατεστρατοπέδευσε, καὶ δύο ἡμέρας προσέειπε. According to him the nine days' march is to be reckoned from Bourget in the neighbourhood of Chamberri; and the jugum Alpinum is the summit of the Little St. Bernard Pass, there being a plateau there about two miles and a half in length, well fitted for the encampment of a large army.—per invidia plerique et errores quos ducuntium fraus, &c. Polybius says nothing of either treachery on the part of Hannibal's guides, or errors brought on by their ignorance. In fact both suppositions are inadmissible. For "the guides had been sent to meet Hannibal by the Insubres, a nation in frequent intercourse with Transalpine Gaul, their original country. The Insubres had found their way to Carthago Nova, in Spain, and the guides they had selected were not likely to mistake the safest road into Italy. Hannibal was in alliance with the Allobroges as well as with the Insubres, and a prince of the Cisalpine Gauls was with the guides." Journal of Royal Geog. Soc. xxv. p. 184. Livy however introduces the notion of fraud or ignorance on the part of the guides, to account for Hannibal's having passed over so little ground during the nine days of which he speaks—in jugo, on the summit of the Mont Genevre pass, according to Livy.—occidente jam sidere Vergiliarum, "it being just about the time for the setting of the constellation of the Pleiades." This would be about the 26th of October. Snow begins to fall on the Little St. Bernard in September, and the inhabitants consider that the winter sets in about Michaelmas. On the pass of Mont Genevre, however, which is considerably lower, the snow of course would not fall quite so early.—promuntorio. So the best manuscripts, says Alschevski, spell the word; and he accordingly derives it from prominere, a derivation which it is impossible to receive. The true derivation is no doubt from pro, mont, the crude form of mons, and the termination orium.—Italiam ostentat subjectosque Alpibus montibus Circumpadanos campos. This of course is only to be taken in a very modified sense. From no known part of the Alps could a good view of the basin of the Po be obtained, and of course still less what Polybius, strangely enough, adds to the prospect, "τὸν τῆς Πάμης αὐτῆς τόπον." The French critics, however, in order not to sacrifice this dramatic situation, have not hesitated to make Hannibal and his whole army mount up to the summit of Monte Viso, a feat, as Cramer remarks, only second to taking an army up to the top of Mont Blanc.—cetera plana, proclivia fore; Polybius says, because the Gauls below, that is the Insubres, &c., were, as we have already seen, well disposed towards them. But Livy, who intends to bring Hannibal out among the Taurini, a Ligurian and hostile race, is obliged to leave that remark out.—summo is an adverb like the commoner summum.—ab Italia, "on the side of Italy."—arrectiora. Any one who has travelled over any of the passes of the Alps can corroborate the correctness of Livy's description of the greater steepness of the Alps on the Italian side.

xxxvi. The difficulties of the descent.—rupes is the whole cliff, saxis the rocks that compose it.—lapsu terra. On the descent of the pass of the Little St. Bernard, after leaving La Tuile, the road contracts, and enters a narrow passage between two rocks. The old road used constantly to be carried away to the extent of about 300 yards in length by avalanches, descending from Mount Cramont, the Cremonis jugum of Livy, which we shall meet with further on; and to avoid this a new road has been built.—in pedum mille admodum altitudinem, "to the depth of about a thousand foot."—altitudinem. This is a curious mistake of Livy's. Polybius says that the road has been destroyed for the length of one stadium and a half, that is about 300 yards. Livy understands him to refer to the height of the precipice formed, and not to the length of the road swept away. "By this alteration," says Cramer, "the operation which Hannibal's soldiers had to perform, and which is so naturally stated in the Greek historian, in Livy becomes absurd and unintelligible." In fact, that from any ordinary cause a precipice a thousand feet deep should be formed on the sloping side of a mountain where a road had wound before, is all but incredible.—digressus = digressus est.—ea vero via insuperabilis fuit, "that way however, the way, namely, over the hitherto untraveller and pathless regions around, turned out to be impracticable."—per nudam infra glaciem fluentemque tabem, "over the bare ice beneath, and the fluid slush of the melting snow."—Tetra luctatio, "a terrible struggle."—ut a lubrica glacie, "as might be expected in consequence of (or seeing that it was a struggle to get free from) the ice, which was so slippery that it gave no hold to the step, and because (abl. abs.) the foot slipped away so much the more readily on account of the steep inclination of the descent."—ad quas "(by propping himself) against which."—ipsis adminiculis refers to "the hands and knees" just mentioned.—Jumenta=fiven. "Sometimes however, while treading on the lowest snow (that is, the snow of the former winter, which the action of the subsequent summer had turned into ice) they penetrated even that."—in conitendo, "in struggling to get up."—perfringebant, "they broke right through."—concreta gives a better sense if taken with jumenta; "fast frozen in (or of one piece with) the hard and deep ice." The whole of this beautiful description shows Livy's powers as a poet to great advantage.

xxxvii. The last part of the passage.—Tandem, &c., "His verbis Livius ad id, unde in priore cap. deverterat, redit."—ad rupem muniendam, "to make the cliff passable," that cliff, namely, mentioned in the beginning of c. 36.—arboribus circa inmanibus. Where did Hannibal get the trees from? They were, according to Livy, in the region of perpetual ice and snow, where trees are not to be found, as indeed he says afterwards in this very chapter.—defectis detruncatisque, "having been felled and having had their branches lopped off."—aceto putrefaciunt. The account of Livy, says Niebuhr, very justly, "that Hannibal broke the rocks by means of vinegar, is one of those tales which we grieve to see related seriously by an intelligent man." The road had been destroyed for 300 yards by an avalanche, and Hannibal had to repair it by substructions of pine logs and other means, such as are familiar to travellers in Switzerland and other mountain-regions. Livy, by supposing Polybius to mean height, when he meant breadth, and by his willingness to receive all the marvels that Cælius Antipater and others had collected, has made a monstrous and impossible tale of Polybius's simple and intelligible statement. Yet Livy's marvellous account is the more popular. See Juvenal, x. 153.—Diducit scopulos et montem rumpit aceto. Pliny, xxiii. 1, says: "acetum saxa rumpit infusum, quæ non ruperit ignis antecessens." It is true indeed that, if great heat be applied to rocks, especially to limestone, and then a cold fluid be applied to them, they will split, and also that vinegar will decompose limestone. But to operate in this manner on a rock 1000 feet deep would be a labour of many months, not of four days. To say with Ernesti "Acetum fuit potus militaris. Inde non mirum, quomodo id Carthaginiensibus, tantaque ejus copia, ad manus fuerit," is to get over only the smallest part of the difficulty; though it must be remembered that an army which had lost almost all its baggage by the attacks of the mountaineers, and was actually starving for want of food, would not be likely to have preserved such abundance of this acetum, a luxury, and not a necessity, in regions where water was so plentiful.—mollivntique anfractibus modicis. "and make the descent practicable by cutting zig-zags on the face of the cliff," as has been done, for instance, in the famous Gemmi Pass, in Switzerland. inferiora. "sunt radices Alpium." "Τὰ δ' ὑπὸ μέσῃ τῇ παράρτειν ἐξ ἀμφὶν τῶν μερῶν, ὁλοφώρα καὶ δευδροφώρα, καὶ τὸ ὅλον οἰκήσιμά ἐστιν." Polyb. iii. 55.—aprica. is followed by a gap in the MSS. It might, therefore, be better to read apricosque.

xxxviii. Hannibal arrives in Italy.—Livy's remarks on his route, &c.—maxime, "in the main."—quinto mense. So Polybius, iii. 56., "τέλος δὲ τὴν μὲν πᾶσαν πορείαν ἐκ Καννῆς πόλεως ἐν πέντε μηνὶ ποιησάμενος, τὴν δὲ τὴν Ἀλπεων ὕπερβολὴν ἡμέρας πεντεκαίδεκα."—quinto decimo die. So says Polybius, from whom Livy copies. But Livy makes the number of days nineteen. Nine days are spent in reaching the summit; the army rests there two days; it marches through the snow one day; it is detained four days making a road for itself, and takes three days descending into the plain.—qui minimum, viginti millia peditum, sex equitum. "Ita memorat Polybius, qui quidem sese id didicisse testatur ex æræ tabula Lacinii ab ipso Hannibale inscripta et incisa." Crev. See Polyb. iii. 56.—moveret, i.e., me moveret. L. Cincius Alimentus wrote, among other works, a history in Greek of the history of Rome, from its commencement to his own times. He was Pretor in Sicily a few years after the battle of Cannæ.—adducta is governed in the infinitive mood by some such word as scribens understood in auctor moveret.—Taurinis. The Taurini were a Ligurian tribe, occupying the country between the Cottian Alps and Turin. "Hoc loco dictum videmus triginta sex millia Hannibalem amisisse ab eo tempore quo Rhodanum transierit, ad id tempus, quo e Taurinis in Italiam ipsam digressus sit."—Italiam. Piedmont and Lombardy, it must be remembered, were not part of Italy at that time.—Id cum inter omnes constet, namely, "that the Taurini are the nearest tribe to Gaul."—Pennino. The Pennine range extends from Mont Blanc to Monte Rosa. It was probably so called from the Celtic word Pen, or Ben, a height, which occurs in the names of so many Scotch mountains. The spelling Penino arose from the notion that Hannibal crossed the Great St. Bernard, and that the name was derived from Penus, a Carthaginian. This, however, is the least possible pass of all to fix upon.—Cremonis jugum, now called Cramont, is a mountain overhanging the pass of the Little Saint Bernard, and just south of Mont Blanc, from which it is divided by the vale of the Allée Blanche. This opinion of Coelius's is the one adopted by Polybius, and seems to be the true one. It is the easiest of all the passes from France into Italy, and the only one which almost throughout could support a large army, dependent mainly on the country through which it passed for supplies.—non in Taurinos. There is no difficulty in the fact of this pass not leading in Taurinos, but per Salassos. The Taurini were, as the event proved, fiercely hostile to Hannibal, and were, therefore, not the tribe for a prudent general to bring his emaciated and half-dead army among. The Salassi, or the people of the vale of Aosta, on the contrary, though of predatory habits, had probably been bribed over by the Insubres to allow Hannibal to pass through their territories in peace, and were no doubt kept to their promise by the knowledge that they might be attacked in front and rear at once by Hannibal and his allies, if they attempted violence.—Libuos Gallos, a tribe dwelling in the country near the modern Vercelli, a part of whose territory possibly Hannibal would have had to traverse to get from Aosta to Milan, the capital of the Insubres.—deduxerint is a politer form of expressing the author's opinion than deduxissent, which some editors have. So xxx. 3: "Hæc per nuntios acta magis equilem crediderim . . ." See Arnold's Lat. Comp. 417 (d). Opposed to this courteousness of form in stating an opinion is the strong expression verissimum est, in the earlier part of the chapter.—nec verissimile est, &c. The pass of the Great Saint Bernard was probably not open at that time, though Livy himself supposes that the Boii and Lingones came by that road into Italy. At any rate its difficulty and distance put Hannibal's passage by it out of the question. The passage of Mont Genevre, to which Livy gives the preference, was first explored by Pompey. The pass of Mont Cenis was not heard of till the middle ages.—ad Galliam is here used, where we might expect e Gallia, because Augustus first made a road through the territory of the Salassi into Gaul.—semigermanis does not occur elsewhere.—Seduni, Veragri, the people of Sion, and of Martigny, both on the valley of the Upper Rhone in the Vallais.—ab eo, "from that God."—Pœninum. The God more probably got his name from the mountain of which he was worshipped, than the mountain from the God. He was afterwards worshipped by the Romans as Jupiter Penninus.

xxxix. Hannibal and Scipio approach each other.—armare, "to prepare for battle."—Pisas, now Pisa, in Tuscany.—Manlio Atilioque. See chapters xxv. and xxvi.—in novis ignominis, i. e., the defeat they had sustained from the Gauls.—quum . . . venit. The indicative is here used, because merely a coincidence of time is meant, and all notion of causation is out of the question. Time and causation, however, are so often connected that the subjunctive also would be allowable here. See Arnold's Lat. Comp. 488 (a)—Placentiam. See c. xxv.—unam urbem, probably what was afterwards called Augusta Taurinorum, i. e. Turin.—volentis, i. e. Hannibalis. Most editors have volentes.—præstantem virum credebat. Very probably Hannibal did think that the Romans had chosen their best general to conduct the war against him. But if he did, he was mistaken. The Romans were as great lovers of routine as the English, and had chosen exactly the same men for consuls whom they would have chosen if no war had threatened. It was by steady endurance and bulldog tenacity of purpose that they always conquered in the long run. The beginnings of their great wars were seldom creditable to them, as the beginnings of ours are seldom creditable to us.—inter se opinione, "their respect for each other."—fueral = factus erat.—occupavit facere = prius trajecit, i. e., before Hannibal. So, in Greek, ἐπαύσατο διαβας.

xi. Scipio's speech. This speech treats (1) of Scipio's recent connection with his army; (2) of the folly of fearing an enemy who have been so often defeated; (3) of the small number of the enemy's forces; (4) of their weakness through disease and suffering; (5) of the omen of ultimate success given by the result of the first skirmish; (6) of the improbability of Hannibal's being as formidable an adversary as Hamilcar was; (7) of the vengeance which the faithlessness and treachery of the Carthaginians call down upon their heads; and (8) of the importance of remembering that they are going to fight for their country, their wives, and their children.—superedissem loqui apud vos is put short for superedissem loqui apud eum; sed quod non meum exercitum, sed vos educo, apud vos loqui volo.—visissent is in the subjunctive, because the clause to which it belongs states the reason why it would have been unnecessary to address Scipio's former soldiers. In the next clause merely the fact is brought before the hearers; and therefore habui is in the indicative.—meis auspiciis. The province of Spain had fallen to Scipio by lot. See c. xvii. As the commander of an army received the auspices together with the imperium, the war was said to be carried on under his auspices, and hence if his lieutenant gained a victory in his absence, the merit and the triumph were his, not the lieutenant's.—nee genus belli. Nec is here, as elsewhere in Livy, put for et ne. "And that you may not be ignorant of the kind of war," &c.—voluntario because he might have gone to Spain if he had chosen.—viginti annos. See Polybius i. 62.—belli premia. This is a falsehood. See notes on ch. i. and xviii.—duobus partibus . . . amissis and plures pene perierint quam supersint do not agree very well together. The latter, however, is the truer statement. Hannibal started from the Rhone with 38,000 foot and more than 8000 horse, and brought to the Po 20,000 foot and 6000 horse.—At enim, &c., "but (for some one will perhaps object that, though few, they are . . .) we answer . . ."—præcisti, "frost-bitten," "having lost the fingers or toes through the cold."—pugnaturi estis, "you will probably have to fight with."—habebitis, "you will certainly have as an enemy." For the difference of meaning between these two futures, see Arnold's Lat. Com. 447 (b).

xii. Scipio's speech continued.—vestri adhortandi causa. . . Just as adhortandi is in the genitive case, because it depends on causa, so vestri is in the genitive case, because it depends on the gerundial verbal substantive adhortandi. The literal translation, therefore, of the phrase is "for the sake of the exhorting of you."—qua parte refers to equitum, implied in equestri.—neque regressus ad naves erat, "and it became evident that Hannibal had no intention of returning to the sea-coast, and sailing to Italy by sea."—Regressus is a substantive here.—timendo is, of course, ironical.—Utrum . . . videor, "do I seem to have fallen in with him unexpectedly, while avoiding the contest, or . . ."—per viginti annos. The space between the two wars was really 23 years.—pugnaverint is in the subjunctive after videm sint qui, in the sense of tales sint ut; but emistis under the same government is in the indicative, to draw attention to its being an actual occurrence, and one to be gloated over; "whom you let out, after their long blockade in Eryx, at the rate of 18 denarii a man."—Herculis. Hercules was, as we have seen, the Phœnician deity, and Hannibal, as a religious man (see c. xxi), very probably wished to follow in his steps. There was a tradition that Hercules, after slaying Geryon, had crossed the Graian Alps: "quo facto is hodie scitus Graius appellatur." Corn. Nep. Hann. iii.—vectigalis stipendiariusque. The vectigalis aid in kind; the stipendiarius in money. He who was both was, of course, servus populi Romani.—agilaret. So Silius Italicus, ii. 296: "Exagitant Manes juvenem furieque paternæ."—humanorum = "quo homines affici possunt." This part of the speech is, of course, exaggerated. The Romans were nearly as much exhausted as the Carthaginians.—tutela nostræ ducimus "we considered them under our protection."—domesticas curas, "cares about his own home only."—illius urbis, "of that city," pointing in the direction of Rome.

xlii. Hannibal prepares his soldiers for battle by showing them how his mountain captives prefer even death to captivity.—dejecta, i. e., in sitellam probably. For this mode of casting lots see Smith's Dict. of Ant., under the word stula.—in il. "for that purpose."—exciderat. So Homer, II. vii. 182: "ἐκ δ' ἔθορε κλῆρος κνέεης."—cujusque = ejusque. So quæque, in c. lvii.—ejusdem conditionis, i. e., among the prisoners.—inter spectantes, i. e., among the soldiers.

xliii. Hannibal's speech. This speech treats of (1) the only hope of the army's safety being in their bravery; (2), the greatness of the prize in view; (3), their own past deeds, and the rewards they deserve; (4), the imaginary nature of much of the danger apprehended; (5), the inferiority of the Roman army and general; (6), the advantage they themselves have in being the assailants; (7), the overweening pride of the Romans; (8), the necessity of either conquering or dying.—Dum is here admissible instead of cum, because the emphasis rests not on dimisisset, but on adfectos.—Si quem animum, &c. = "Si, quo animo spectavistis alienæ sortis exemplum, sive sortem captivorum vestrorum, eodem animo judicaveritis de fortuna vestra, et sic statueritis, vincendum vobis esse, aut bene moriendum, vicinus, milites." Crevier.—claudunt. Supply effugium from the succeeding clause, and translate "shut out all hope of escape;" habentibus is the dative, agreeing with nobis, understood.—Satis adhuc, "long enough."—Lusitania, answering generally to Portugal, but extending further to the west, and not so far to the north.—Celtiberia, properly the central table-land of Spain, including part of Aragon and Burgos, and all Cuenca and Soria.—emeritis stipenditis = bello confecto.—nee existimaveritis. In prohibitions, except in the case of law-language, the imperative is not employed. Instead of it, if the verb is in the second person, as here, the present perfect subjunctive is used; if the verb is in the third person, the present imperfect subjunctive is used. There is only one passage in Livy, according to Fabri, in which the imperative is used in a prohibition, iii. 2: "Erit copia pugnandi; ne timeat."—populi regesque, "free and monarchical states."—perlevi momento = "levissima impulsione, parvo molimine, facile."—ignoranti, abl.—sed is not followed by etiam, because it introduces something of more importance than what precedes.—semenstri, since the Ides of March; at which time, being the beginning of the old Roman year, the consuls used to enter on the duties of their office. At a later period the time was altered to the 1st of January.

xliv. Hannibal's speech continued.—infrenatos, i. e., the Numidians.

So Virgil, Æn. iv. 41: "Et Numidæ infreni cingunt, et inhospita Syrtis."—socios, i. e., the Libyans and Libyphenicians.—vos omnes. This, as has been already noticed, in c. xxx., was not true.—quæ non excedamus, "which we may not transgress."—ne transieris. . . Saguntinis! is the haughty command of the Romans.—ad Hiberum est Saguntum is the reply of Hannibal. "Saguntum (that is, Saguntum and its territories) ad Hiberum est, non trans Hiberum; i. e. in ea Hispaniæ parte situm, quæ Carthaginensium ditionis est."—Ad is used instead of cis, because cis could not be properly used by Hannibal, now that he was in Italy.—nusquam . . . moveris is the second command issued by the Romans, and "parum est . . . transcendes" Hannibal's second reply.—cessero, supply si.—transcendes autem dico, "you will cross over, did I say?"—respectum habent = "habent quo respiciant."—dubitabit, "should waver," "incline to the Romans."

xiv. The Romans cross the Ticinus. Hannibal's soldiers are eager for battle.—castellum, "a redoubt," "a tête-de-pont."—sociorum, evidently here the Ligurian tribes, from the order to spare the Gauls that follows immediately after.—Vico Tanulis, a town "in agro Vercellensi," somewhere between the modern towns of Ivrea and Biella, to the north-west of Vercelli.—inamumem, "free from both vectigal and stipendium." . . . quæ sociorum civæ, &c. If Hannibal meant what he said, he here hit on the great blot in the constitution of the Carthaginians. They never extended the franchise, and therefore never could rise beyond a certain limit in power. The Romans, on the other hand, owed all their greatness to the facility with which they had from time to time admitted new citizens to share their privileges. After the second Punic war they discontinued the generous and healthful practice, and declined in political power in consequence.—Jovem, probably Baal, the Phœnician Jove.—velut diis auctoribus, "as if the Gods had become securities for the fulfilment of the pledge."

xlv. The skirmish between the Ticinus and the Po.—apum. See Pliny, xi, 18, 56: "Ubique ille (rex apum) cœdit, ibi cunctarum castra sunt. Tunc ostenta faciunt privata ac publica, uva dependente in domibus templisve" . . . Quibus, i. e., prodigiis.—procuratis, "having been expiated by sacrifice."—Romanos, sociorumque. They formed the heavy, and the Gauls the light infantry.—inter subsidia ad secundam aciem, i. e., "to the second or third line, to be there received between the intervals which were always to be found between each separate manipulus of infantry, and turma of cavalry."—primos, because their position was now in the rear, and the Numidians had got round to them.—cedendo = dum cedunt.—malim. Livy always did prefer, not what was most probable, but what was most romantic, or most consonant with his notions of Roman dignity. In fact, Livy's whole work is a trumpet-call to rouse his countrymen to be what their fathers were. It is just possible that the hatred borne in after times to Scipio in consequence of his overbearing conduct, may have led Coelius and others to deny him the glory of having saved his father; but it is far more likely that the fame he afterwards acquired, gained him the credit of an exploit which was really performed by a Ligurian slave.—quod . . . obtinnit. Though obtinnit is added on to the relative clause, it is, of course, only nominally dependent on it. So Cicero, De Or. ii., 10, 43: "quod et a Crasso tactum est, et ut audio, ille ipse Aristoteles . . . adjunxit."

xlvii. The Romans retreat.—vasa, "baggage" . . . ab Ticino. The Romans, as has been seen, had gone to the west of the Ticinus. Now they had to recross it, and give it up as a line of defence.—rate is the bridge, when unloosed from what fastened it to the other bank.—ut jam, “even granting that.”—fuertint is used to modify the positiveness of the assertion; just as vix crediderim is courteously used for vix credo.—die unius, of one day. The earlier writers often used this contracted form instead of the fuller form in ei, both for the genitive and dative.

xlvi. —The Romans and the Carthaginians move to the Trebia.—tacito, “without the usual signal to march.”—jaclanti, “jolting.”—revocatum ex Sicilia. See c. li. Sempronius was recalled from Lilybæum the moment the Romans heard that Hannibal had succeeded in what they had, till then, deemed his mad project of crossing the Alps with an army of mercenary troops.—anxius inopia, Polybius (iii. 68,) says, with much more internal probability, that the Gauls in the vicinity, being devoted to his cause, furnished his army abundantly with necessaries.—Clastidium, now Chiasteggio, a few miles south-west of the junction of the Po and the Ticino.—numerus = numerus modicum. Numerus is often used in a wider sense than our word number. See Cic. Phil. ii. 27, 66: “Maximus vini numerus fuit.”—nummis aureis. The first Roman gold coinage was struck 547 A. U. C., or eleven years after the time of which Livy speaks. But he may be speaking of the sum given as equivalent to 400 aurei of his own time, when the aureus was (see Smith's Dict. of Ant.) equivalent to about £1 1s. 1½d., according to the present value of gold.

xlix. Preparations of the Romans in Sicily.—Liparas, the town, not the island. Hence the absence of the preposition before it. The group is still called The Lipari islands.—insulam Vulcani, Hiera, now Vulcano, south of Lipari.—tenuerunt ad ... i.e., tenuerunt se ad. “they stopped (themselves) near;” just as tenere, governing the acc. without a preposition, means to arrive at.—Messanam in portum, “to the port of Messana.” The Latin idiom makes both words depend on the verb of motion. See Arnold's Lat. Prose Comp., § 316. So c. lxi.: “Tyracnem in hiberna reditum est.”—intenderent is in the subjunctive of indirect narration for the imperative of direct narration.—teneri is governed by the notion of ordering to be found in missi. For a similar change of construction, of which, by the way, Livy is very fond, see iii., 32: “Placet creari Decemvros sine provocatione, et ne quis eo anno alius magistratus esset.”—ad, “in addition to.”—socii navales, “the sailors.” These were chiefly slaves or freedmen, gathered from the citizens or from the maritime states of Italy.—perque omnem oram. After these words, supply ut essent, or take qui in the sense of aliqui. There is no authority for the missi or missis, which some editors insert at the end of the sentence, though the insertion of either would do away with the great harshness of construction in the sentence.—simul, “as soon as.”—tamen is inserted resumptively to connect the verb with simul itaque.—sublatis armamentis, “with sails set.” “Armamenta sunt antennæ, vela, mali, rudentes, remi et omne instrumentum nauticum.” Rupertii.—demendis armamentis. “Dicuntur demum armamenta, cum vela contrahuntur, mali inclinantur, antennæ componuntur.” Drakenborch.

l. The Carthaginian fleet is defeated at Lilybæum.—conserta esset, “was grappled with,” connected by means of the boarding-bridges, called corsi, with one of the Roman ships.—perforata. The great aim of the Carthaginians, as it used to be of the Athenians in the time of their naval power, was to strike the enemy's vessels amidships with the beaks of their vessels; and this through their superiority in manœuvring (arte) they had some chance of effecting. The Romans, on the contrary, like the Spartans, trusting to main strength, tried to assimilate the naval battle as nearly as they could to a land-fight; and to facilitate this they invented the terrible corvi.—ejus, i.e., pugna.—Messana, the old form of the genitive of the first declension.—armatam. A ship was said to be armata, when it had its masts and yards up.—prætoriam navem, "the flag-ship"—ut quo = utpote quo.—et quibusdam volentibus novas res fore, "and especially because a change in political relations would be acceptable to some of them." The construction is borrowed from the Greek. See Thucydides, ii., 3 : Τῷ γὰρ πλῆθει τῶν Πλαταιῶν οὐ βουλευμένῳ ἦν τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἀφίστασθαι. So Tacitus Agr. 18 : "Quibus bellum volentibus erat."

li. Sempronius is recalled, to aid his colleague against Hannibal.—Melitam, Malta.—urbem, i.e., Vibo, on the west coast of Bruttium, called by the Greeks Hipponium; now Bivona.—transitu, i.e., Hannibalis. The events, then, recorded in this and the two preceding chapters must have happened before the middle of November at the latest.—Ariminum, now Rimini, a town in Umbria on the Adriatic (maris supero), a few miles south of the Rubicon. He probably preferred this route to that from Pisa, as safer from the attacks of Hannibal, and more likely to enable him to join his colleague with safety.—decem navibus. The rest of his ships were probably employed in transporting his soldiers from Lilybæum to Rome, as in c. xvii. we learn that he had 160 ships under his command. From Rome, according to Polybius, iii., 68, the soldiers had to make their way as they best could to join the consul at Ariminum, within forty days from the time of their leaving Lilybæum; and such, we are told, was their discipline and patriotism, that they all arrived at the time appointed.

lii. A skirmish between the Romans and Carthaginians.—oppositum, though referring to consules as well as to quidquid, agrees with the latter as the more important.—modo ne = nammodo ne.—moverint expresses more strongly than moverent what the Romans hoped but did not expect. Moverent might indicate an express order given by the Romans to the Gauls; a sense which would here be unsuitable.—deinceps, "continuously."—ad id, "up to that time."—futuros, "whom they expected to be."—consulem, that is, Scipio. The arrival of Sempronius was too recent to make the Gauls apply to him. They perhaps did not know he had joined his colleague yet.—ut, "though."—primos quosque is Alchefski's reading for primosque of the manuscripts.—censebat shows that Sempronius and Scipio's opinions were delivered in a council of war.—nille qualifies jaculatoribus.—peditum = ex peditibus.—ferme qualifies nille.—sparsos in early editions was preceded by ii, against the manuscripts.—major . . . fuit, "the fame of victory attached rather to the Romans than to the enemy."

liii. Hannibal's anxiety to bring on a battle.—major, i.e., victoria.—aut, "or rather."—Quantum ingemiscant, &c., "how must our fathers be groaning, in spirit, if perchance they are looking at us." The present tense representing the supposition as capable of being realised, adds to the vividness of the appeal.—in prætorio, not here probably in the general's tent only, but in the space, 200 feet square, forming a sort of parade ground around the tent. See Smith's Diet. Ant. on the word Cæstra.—tempus propinquum comitiorum. It was now the middle of December. The new consuls would supersede Sempronius and Scipio on the Ides of March; and the comitia for the election of consuls would probably be held early in February.—dum . . . erat. In some editions dum . . . esset.—

facere, i.e., propinquum certamen, "to bring the contest on, if there should be any backwardness on the part of the Romans."

liv. Hannibal lays an ambush. The Numidians attack the Romans, and tempt them to pursue them across the river.—equites legendo is the reading of the manuscripts for the more elegant ad equites legendos of Gronovius. "A dative of the gerund with an accusative (esse onus ferendo, for oneri ferendo) is very unusual." Madvig. § 413.—centenos, "a hundred of each."—prætorium, "the council of war."—"Prætorium mitti vel dimitti dicebatur, quum legati, tribuni, centuriones (primi pili), præfecti, et si qui alii circa imperatorem (in prætorio) esse consilii communicandi, aut imperiorum tesserarumque excipiendarum ergo solerent, ab imperatore dimittebantur ac discedebant." Ruperti.—ad destinatum jam ante = ad id quod jam ante consilio destinatum erat.—brumæ, "the winter solstice," contracted from brevima, another form of brevissima, "the shortest day."—et quidquid, &c., "and the nearer they came to the atmosphere of the stream, the more keenly," &c. "The cold," says Niebuhr, in this part of Lombardy, especially in the neighbourhood of Verona, is in truth not less severe than an ordinary winter in Germany."

lv. The battle of the Trebia.—oleo. "Brandy was not then known except in Egypt." Niebuhr.—Baliarum . . . levem armaturam = Baliarum levemque armaturam. See Polybius, iii. 72: προβαλόμενος ἐφεδρεῖαν τοῦς λογαφόρους καὶ Βαλιάρεις, ὄντας εἰς ὀκτακισχιλίους. And the figure of asyndeton is a favourite one with Livy.—quod virum, quod roboris erat. Polybius says (iii. 72), περὶ δυσμυρίοις ὄντας τὸν ἄριστον.—ab cornibus. Polybius says πρὸ τῶν κεράτων.—subito resistentibus alludes to the constant practice of the Numidians to feign retreat, in order to draw their enemies into confusion, and then suddenly turn round and renew the attack.—circumdedit pedibus, i. e., "locavit a dextra laevaque peditem."—duodeviginti milia, i. e., of foot soldiers.—socium = sociorum. See notes on c. xvii.—Cenomanorum. The Cenomani were a Gaulish tribe to the north of the Po, between the Adda and the Adige. They were almost uniformly faithful to the Romans.—efficit is historic present for aorist.—decem millibus equitum quattuor milia. The numbers then were, on the side of the Romans, 38,000 foot and 4000 horse, and on the side of the Carthaginians 36,000 foot and 10,000 horse.—leves armature. The singular is usual. The plural may be used here to signify the separate bodies formed for the attack of the right and left wings.—velites here = jaculatores, or light-armed troops in general; since the peculiar kind of light-armed troops, afterwards specially called velites, was not instituted till the siege of Capua some years later. See Livy, xxvi. 4.—avertere is the aorist indicative.

lvi. The Romans are beaten and flee to Placentia.—in suos, i. e., the Carthaginians.—media acie. Supply in, not e, to show the place where the elephants were maddened to fury, not the place from which they were sent.—extremam, i. e., aciem.—cornum, a less common form than cornu.—queque must not be translated also, but and (one) whereby, being compounded of the relative adverb quo and the enclitic conjunction que.—auxilia, "their foreign allies;" socii is the term for the Italian allies of the Romans.—media . . . acie . . . perrumpere. It was the custom of Hannibal, as we shall see more plainly afterwards, to strengthen his wings and weaken his centre, in order to tempt the Romans to press onwards, and so break their line of battle, and expose themselves to attack on all sides at once.—cunctationem ingrediendi and auxilium ingrediendi are rare constructions, neither noun ordinarily taking a genitive after them.

But, as Weissenborn remarks, a gerund will stand after nouns which would not admit a noun in the genitive.—timor hostium, "their fear of the enemy."—elephantos prope omnes. Polybius says, "all but one."—et quod reliquum . . . erat can hardly, as Alschefski rightly remarks, be here equivalent to magna pars militum quæ reliqua fuit, because Livy himself says that very few of those who were engaged in the fight ever did get back to the camp again. It would rather here seem to mean, "and all that remained of that vast array of troops."—sensere, i. e., the Carthaginians.—ab Scipione, because Sempronius had made his way to Rome, like a brave man as he was, to hold the comitia.

Ivii. The terror in Rome. The Consular Comitia are held.—urbem Romanam, "the great city of Rome," in opposition to Romam, the mere local designation, in the previous line. Polybius (iii. 75) mentions what Livy judiciously omits, that Sempronius had, at first, sent home a false account of the result of the engagement: ἐπεψε τοὺς ἀπαγγελοῦντας, ὅτι, μάχης γενομένης, τὴν νίκην αὐτῶν ὁ χειμὼν ἀπέειλετο.—quæ . . . avarent. Qui is the old form of the ablative.—fallendi, "of escaping notice."—Servilius was the patrician, Flaminius the plebeian consul. Flaminius had been consul six years before, and had then obtained a triumph over the Gauls. He was strongly obnoxious to the patricians for having supported a law which tended to prevent the senators from embarking in commercial, in contradistinction to agricultural, pursuits.—quæque = quæcunque. So c. xlii.: et cujusque sors exciderat.—emporium, probably the port of Placentia, lying immediately on the Po.—Romanis, for a Romanis. The dative is frequently put for the ablative of the agent after passive participles, especially when the action done by the agent is for the benefit of the agent.—spei depends on plurimum, not on effectum.—consul, i. e., Scipio.—Victumvitas. This is different from the town so variously spelt by different editors, mentioned in c. xlv., as near Vercelle, and north of the left bank of the Po, as it is evidently not far from Placentia, and on the right bank of the Po. Neither of these last-mentioned expeditions of Hannibal are mentioned by Polybius.

Iviii. Hannibal attempts to cross the Apennines before the winter is quite over. Polybius says nothing of this unsuccessful attempt. The whole chapter is most beautifully written.—in Etruriam ducit, in order to draw the Etruscans to revolt, before the Romans had taken the field.—Apenninum, like the word Pennine, probably contains the Celtic word Pen, or Ben, a height.—intoti adfligebantur, "they were whirled round and dashed to the earth."—spiritum includeret, "stopped their breath."—capitis auribus is preferable to capiti auribus, as better representing a temporary condition. Thus Livy (xxii. 2), speaking of a permanent condition, says "Hannibal . . . altero oculo capitur."—explicare, "to spread the canvas of the tent."—statuere, "to fix the tent-pole in the ground."—levata vento = "in altum elata et rapta."—strage, "a confused heap," in accordance with its derivation from sterno.—torrentibus. So c. xxxii.: "pecora jumentaue torrida frigore."—movere ac recipere. Supply ceperunt from the subsequent cepit. est. Alschefski quotes a similar instance of the active voice being understood in consequence of the presence of the passive: "Quid enim futurum fuit, si illa plebs . . . agitari cepisset tribunicis procellis, et in aliena urbe cum patribus severe certamina." Livy, ii. 1.—ad alienam opem . . . inops. So Hor. Od. iii. 16, 28: "magnas inter opes inops."

Iix. Engagement between Sempronius and Hannibal. This engagement is not alluded to by Polybius.—millia, i. e., passuum, a very common ellipsis.—passum = passum, one u being sometimes omitted in the genitive plural of the fourth declension.—vincerent has for its subject Romani, understood in res Romana.—dextra levague. There were four gates to a Roman camp, and probably to a Carthaginian camp.—pugna raro magis usita ea, &c. Supply clara after magis from the subsequent clavior, and translate “rarely would any fight have been more glorious than this (for the valour exhibited by the Romans and their general) or more remarkable for the loss of life on either side, if . . .”—dimidium ejus equitum, half of that number of cavalry. This use of ejus is a favourite one with Livy. See x. 18 : “ad tria millia hostium caesa erant, dimidium fere ejus (thereof) captum.” xlii. 8 : “bonaque ut iis, quod ejus recipere possit, reddantur.”—equestris ordinis. The use of this phrase here is an anachronism. The ordo equestris, as a distinct political class, did not exist before it was called into being by the Lex Sempronia of C. Gracchus. Those whom Livy here distinguishes as equestris ordinis from the rest of the equites are the members of the eighteen centuries of the Servian timocracy, who received an equus publicus, and a sum of money to support it, from the state. The equites who were not equestris ordinis were those who did not belong to the eighteen centuries, and therefore did not receive an equus publicus, but served with their own horses and took regular pay. This class of equites came into existence, according to Livy (v. 7), during the siege of Veii.—perfecti sociorum were to the Italian allies what the tribuni militum were to the Romans.—senatorum ferme liberis, “mostly sons of senators.” All the sons of senators would be members of the eighteen equestrian centuries; but these centuries were not composed entirely of the sons of senators, as plebeians as well as patricians were to be found in them.

lx. Cn. Scipio's successes in Spain against Hanno.—Emporis, contracted for Emporioris, now Ampurias, the first town to which ships sailing round the Pyrenean Promontorium would come. For the reason of its being in the plural number see Livy, xxxiv. 9 : “Jam tunc Emporiæ duo oppida erant muro divisa : unum Græci habebant a Phœcia, unde et Massilienses, oriundi; alterum Hispani.”—Lacetanis. Possibly Laletanis should be read for Lacetanis, as the Lacetani were inland, and Scipio's operations were on the sea-coast, where the Laletani were situated.—dux cum . . . principibus capiuntur = dux et . . . principes capiuntur. So xlii. 20 : “taurum cum quinque vaccis uno ictu fulminis exanimatos.”—Cissis, not Sciassis. Polybius calls it Kissa. It is supposed to be on the same site as the modern Guisóna.—supellex is in apposition with præda, and both rerum and mancipiorum are dependent on præda.—citra with reference to Cn. Scipio, who was then in Spain.

lxi. Hasdrubal coming too late to help Hanno is obliged to retreat.—mille equitum. Mille is here used as a substantive, with the genitive equitum dependent on it. So Corn. Milt. 5 : “Ea civitas mille milist militum.” It is, however, rarely so used as it is here, in the ablative. See Madvig § 72, a.—occurseris, i. e., iis.—Tarracone, now Tarragona, the chief city in Catalonia during the Roman times.—Atanagrum, in some editions Athanagiam, the capital of the Ilergetes, supposed to be the modern Agramant, near Lerida.—in jus ditiorumque. This is equivalent to “entire subjection.”—Ausetanos, a tribe at the foot of the Pyrenees in Catalonia.—talentis, probably Attic talents, each = £248 15s. Od.

lxii. Prodigious in Italy, and the way in which they were averted.—quis is the ablative.—bovario is generally written boario.—hastam, either the spear in the hand of the goddess Juno Sospita, who was worshipped there, or some spear standing by itself.—pulvinario, a very rare form for the common pulvinar.—sortes extenuatas, "the lots had grown thin." The lots were oaken sticks with ancient characters written on them. "Numerium Suffucium, Prænestinorum monumenta declarant, honestum hominem et nobilem, somniis crebris, ad extremum etiam minacibus, cum juberetur certo in loco silicem cedere, perterritum visis, iridentibus suis civibus, id agere cepisse: itaque perfracto saxo sortes erupisse, in robore insculptas priscarum litterarum notis." Cic. de Div. ii. 41. 85. It was considered a very sad sign when the sticks looked a little smaller.—hostiæ majores in opposition to lactentes.—quibus editum est, i. e. ut caderentur.—et Junoni, "and that for Juno." This would seem to imply that hastam was not the spear in Juno's hand; that it was not thought necessary to make a special expiation for the spontaneous motion of the spear, which was not sacred to any deity, but that it was thought necessary to expiate the portent of the crow sitting on the pulvinar, because that concerned a goddess.—Juventati, the wife of Hercules, mentioned just after.—nominatim, in opposition to circa omnia pulvinaria.—Genio, "the Guardian Spirit of Rome." He is often seen represented on coins of Trajan and Hadrian. See Smith's Dictionary of Greek and Rom. Biog. and Myth., article Genius.—C. Atilius, mentioned before, c. 26. He was probably praetor peregrinus.

lxiii. Flaminius, afraid of being cheated by the patricians, on pretended scruples of religion, of the opportunity of distinguishing himself, leaves Rome secretly.—consulem, "the Consul Sempronius," as may be seen from the last few words of the chapter.—Hic in provincia, "here in his province," that is, at Ariminum.—tribunus plebis. He was tribune of the people in the year 522 A. U. C., and offended the patricians by carrying an agrarian law for the division of the Ager Gallicus et Picenus among the plebeians.—consul. He was consul 531 A. U. C. As the senators hated him in consequence of the agrarian law that he had carried, they tried to deprive him of his consulship on the ground of some pretended irregularity of the auspices; but the letter which was to deprive him of his command arrived just as he was about to fight with the Insubrians, and, of course, was not opened till the battle was over and the victory won. When the senate, in consequence, refused him a triumph, he appealed to the commons, and obtained it from them.—novam, "new," either as opposed to the older agrarian law, or as introducing a new state of things.—Q. Claudius. . . tulerat, &c. This happened the year before Flaminius's second consulship. The object of the bill was of course to restrain the nobility from commerce, and to confine them to agriculture.—amphorarum. The tonnage of a ship was measured by amphoræ; one amphora containing (see Smith's Dict. of Gr. & Rom. Ant.) 5 gallons 7·577 pints.—auspiciis ementiendis = "falsis auspiciis nuntiandis." He had already been turned out of one office, the mastership of the horse to Q. Fabius Maximus, by the squeaking of a mouse.—Latinarumque feriarum mora. The feriæ Latine were among the feriæ conceptivæ, or moveable feasts, which took place not at a fixed date but whenever the senate chose to fix a day (concipere) for their celebration. Hence, as it was considered the bounden duty of the consul to preside at them, if the senate did not wish the consul to go to his province, they were in no hurry to fix the time at which they should be held. There is no doubt that if Flaminius suspected such meanness and hypocrisy in his political opponents, he was bound, from love to his country, to act as he did, for Hannibal would not be likely to wait till the squabbles between parties at Rome were settled and the feriæ Latine duly celebrated. Indeed, as it was, he had anticipated Flaminius.—Non cum senatu modo, &c. The whole of this speech represents most aptly the specious manner in which religious zeal is often basely assumed as a cloak for party-spirit.—spretorum, i. e., deorum atque hominum.—Capitolium.—nam consul magistratum initurus solebat primum a senatu et populo mane domi suæ salutari, et inde in Capitolium deduci (illud dicebatur officium, hoc processus consularis); deinde in Capitolio vota rite concipere, seu nuncupare, et bovem immolare Jovi; tum munus suum auspicari, coacto senatu; ad eum referre tum de religione feriisque Latinis (vel eas indicare); tum de republica; et in leges jurare; mox has ferias agere, et Jovi Latiari solenne sacrum in monte Albano facere. Vota nuncupare, i. e., suscipere, seu Diis sacrificia, signa, templa promittere solebant magistratus in provincias abeuntes. Votis nuncupatis paludati urbe exibant, multitudine hominum officii causa eos prosequente." Ruperti.—ne Latinas indiceret, i. e., ferias.—Jovique Latiari. For the origin of this sacrifice, common to Rome originally with all the towns of the Priscans and Latins, and the towns of the Alban confederacy, and pointing to a time when she was their equal, not their superior, see Smith's Dict. of Ant., article Feria.—auspicato profectus points to a second procession to the Capitol immediately before starting from Rome.—paludatis. Most editors have paludatus. Weissenborn conjectures paludatus paludatis cum lictoribus, which reading is perhaps the best of all, not only because it will reconcile the variations in the manuscripts, but because not only the consul but also his lictors went out of the city after he had been invested by the comitia curiata with the imperium, wearing the paludamentum, or red cloak, which could only be worn outside the city.—sine insignibus, i. e., sine paludamento.—clam, furtim, "secretly and like a thief (fur)."—imperii, "of the military imperium."—The toga prætexta, so called because it was bordered with purple, was worn by magistrates.—procul, "at a distance."—a C. Atilio prætore. These two legions were probably the same which he had in the beginning of the year commanded himself, had then given over to Scipio, and had received again from Scipio at the end of the year, when Scipio had to return to Rome to be cured in quiet of the wound he received at the Ticinus.—exercitus duci est ceptus. This is a slight anacoluthon for exercitus ducere cepit, as the form of the previous part of the sentence shows.

BOOK XXII.

i. Hannibal begins the campaign. The disturbed state of feeling at Rome.—Galli. Hannibal, then, must have wintered in Lombardy, not, as Livy (xxi. 59) would have led us to suppose, in Liguria. Livy forgot to mention his subsequent return to Lombardy.—postquam here governs the subjunctive; a very rare construction, because postquam generally expresses no relation closer than that of time between the two notions that it connects. Sometimes, however, even in that case it takes a subjunctive; as "postquam ædificasset, ornassetque classes, exercitusque comparasset" (Cic. pro L. Man. 4, 9). In the passage before us it is not so much the sequence of time that is prominently brought forward, as the subjective view of the Gauls on the subject. See Alsch. on the passage.—principium, a rare form of the genitive plural for words that, like princeps, having no neuter plural, generally make their genitive plural in um.—tegumenta capitis, “wigs.”—errore, “by their doubt as to his identity.”—justum imperium. This means that Flaminius had gone out without being invested by the comitia curiata with the imperium.—magistratus, “that only magistrates,” not private persons, as Flaminius still was, when he stole out of Rome.—sine auspiciis profectum. If the auspices had not been properly taken in Rome, before starting, they could never, so it was held, be properly taken afterwards away from home.—equiti. “Hanc curam equitum fuisse Polyb. vi. 35, dicit.”—solis orbem minui visum, i. e., there was a partial eclipse of the sun.—Præneste, about 23 miles east of Rome.—ardentes lapides, “meteoric stones.”—Arpis, now Arpa, in Apulia, west of the Gulf of Manfredonia.—Capenæ, a town in the south of Etruria, due north of Rome.—aquæ Cæretæ. Cære, the Greek Agylia, was a town of Etruria, about 27 miles west of Rome. The baths of Cære were famous. Hence arose, not far from the old city, the watering-place, Aquæ Cæretaneæ.—Anii, the modern Porto d’Anzo, on the coast of Latium, about 38 miles from Rome.—Faleriis, a town in the south-east corner of Etruria, now Santa Maria di Falleri.—excidisse, “fell out,” that is, of the stella.—Iuporum, as being sacred to Mars.—Capuæ, the capital of Campania.—marem . . . feminam. Cicero uses these words similarly: “Nam primum aliæ (bestiæ) mares, aliæ feminae sunt” (Nat. De. ii. 51).—pondo. The Roman pound weight was equivalent to about 11½ oz. avoirdupois. (See Smith’s Dict. of Ant. article Libra.)—quin et. So Virg. Æn. vii. 750: “Quin et Marrubia venit de gente sacerdos.”—et ipsæ, “as well as the matrons.”—inde, supply et ut from the preceding et ut. Most editors have unde, which is simpler and better.—Feroniæ, close to Capena, in the south-eastern corner of Etruria. Here a goddess of the same name was worshipped, “quæ fuit dea Latii indiges, et libertinorum libertinarumque; a quibus etiam pileus, libertatis insigne, petebatur” (Rupertii).—Ardeur, a town of Latium, still called by the same name, about 24 miles south of Rome. It seems strange that sacrifices should have been offered there, as no prodigies had occurred there. But “sic (xlii. 20) traditur, cum in Capitolio columna rostrata fulmine discussa esset, decemviros, præter alia, non Romæ modo in Capitolio, sed etiam in Campania, ad Minervæ promontorium, victimis majoribus sacrificandum esse renuntiassent” (Alsch.).—et, “and indeed.”—Saturnalia . . . clamata. The cry was “Io Saturnalia!” Perhaps the word Io once stood in the manuscripts.—populusque . . . jussus. As the feast of the Saturnalia had been founded many years before, Saturn being the old national deity of Latium (see also Livy, ii. 21), we must suppose that it was now reinstituted with fresh rites and increased solemnity.

ii. Hannibal’s march through the marshes of the Arno.—delectu = delectui. “Dativum sing. quartæ declin. in u sæpius apud Livium legi notum est: cf. iv. 12, “vendere quod usu menstruo superesset” (Alsch.).—Arretium prævenisse, = “prius venisse quam alterum consulam.” Polybius’s account of the movements of the consuls is very different and much more probable than Livy’s. He says (iii. 77) that Flaminius went through Etruria to Arretium (the modern Arezzo), and Servilius to Ariminum, both of course having the same object, to cover the approaches to Rome, and both acting on a mutually preconcerted plan. But patrician hatred of a consul who was plebeian by birth and sympathy, and had thwarted the patricians in their plans for money-getting, together with his own subsequent ill-success, has led to the falsification of history for the purpose of blackening his character.—commodius. Hannibal knew it was unguarded.

The two other roads were watched by the two consuls, who probably thought that the Arno was quite sufficient without their help to guard the one by which Hannibal came after all.—qua modo. "In qua modo inest et quacumque via et dummodo prærent duces."—præcælis . . . ac profundas. "Videri potest præcælis idem significare quod profundum: at in priore voce præcælitum, in altera id quod verbo fundere exprimitur. Illæ voragine igitur non modo deruptæ erant, sed etiam late patebant, ut qui in eas se immergerent, et in præcæpitum altitudinem raperentur, nec eis emergere possent, nisi diu multumque luctando" (Al.)—aut . . . aut here after neque are equivalent to neque . . . neque.—neque sustinere se prolapsi . . . poterant = "cum prolapsi essent, se sustinere non poterant."—maximeque omnium, "and most of all."—jumentorum . . . dabant. "Heaps of beasts of burden, which had fallen down everywhere along the line of march, furnished what was necessary for a bed to those who sought, for a temporary rest, only something that stood above the water."—celo, "atmosphere."

iii. Flaminius, in spite of evil omens, resolves on battle.—copias, "means."—in rem erant = utile erat. So "imperat quæ in rem sunt," xvi. 44.—Italia depends on in primis.—Fasulas, the modern Fiesole, about three miles from Florence, and therefore in the midst of one of the richest plains in all Italy.—inter is here put after its case. So Caesar Bell. Civ. iii. 6: "Cerauniorum saxa inter et alia loca periculosa." (See Madvig, § 469, Obs. 1.)—ferox. Supply erat.—non modo here = non modo non; as is frequently the case when there is one predicate common to the two clauses and that predicate occurs in the latter clause. Thus in this case the common predicate satis metuens is placed at the end of the clause introduced by ne . . . quidem.—civilibus alludes to his agrarian law, and the law checking commercial speculation among the senators; bellicis, to his triumph over the Gauls.—nec quidem is somewhat stronger than ne quidem.—sua, "to which he was peculiarly open."—leva. Hannibal had already passed Fæsulæ, and was between it and Arretium. Besides, he could not have had the Romans on his left, if he had been going to Fæsulæ. We must therefore conclude that there is some error in the text. Voss proposes to read a Fæsulis petens medios Etruriæ agros. Hannibal's course must have been, as Niebuhr states, from Fiesole toward Siena.—ferri refers to goods, agi to live stock.—in consilio, "in the council of war."—signum itineris pugnaeque. The signal for marching was given by trumpet-call; that for battle by the hoisting of a purple flag from the prætorium.—in vulgus = vulgo, "in general."

iv. The battle of Lake Trasumennus.—Cortonam, about nine miles north of the Lake Trasumennus, and still retaining its old name.—Trasumennum, now the Lake of Perugia.—via . . . perangusta, &c. For a plan of the battle-field see Liddell's History of Rome, p. 306. Hannibal lay between Flaminius and Rome, somewhere near the modern village of Passignano, about the north-east corner of the lake. Flaminius started early in the morning from somewhere near the north-west corner of the lake, and moved toward Passignano. The nature of the ground is sufficiently described by Livy as shut in on three sides by hills, and on the fourth by the lake.—Romanus . . . sensit. "The Romans, in consequence of the clamour that arose on all sides, discovered that they were surrounded before they plainly saw that they were."

v. The battle continued.—ut in retrepida, "as far as was possible under such perilous circumstances."—quoque is the pronoun, not the conjunction.—signa refers to the maniples; ordinem to the century to which each belonged; and locum, the special position of each in that century.—vulnerum, "caused by the pain of the wounds."—strepentium, "of those who shouted."—capti, "undertaken" as the result of circumstances, and therefore somewhat different from facti.—principes hastatosque. The pastati fought first and the principes next. But Livy here joins them together in one notion by the particle que. Then in the next clause he introduces the triarii by the comparatively separative conjunction ac, to show that these formed the subsignarii, a body perfectly distinct from the other two who formed the ansignarii.—ardor armorum, "the ardour of the fray."—motum terre. See Cic. de Div. i. 35, 78: "Magnum illud etiam, quod addidit Caelius, eo tempore ipso, cum hoc calamitosum fieret prelium, tantos terræ motus in Liguribus, Gallia, compluribusque insulis, totaque in Italia factos esse, ut multa oppida corruerint, multis locis labes factæ sint, terræque desederint, fluminaque in contrarias partes fluxerint, atque in annes mare influxerit."

vi. Flaminius is killed, and the Romans are defeated.—cum et, &c. Eum stands before et, because et hostes, &c. was intended to follow immediately. The introduction of the sentence et ipse . . . open was an afterthought, and is in some measure destructive of the symmetry of the sentence.—Insuber. It was over the Insubres that Flaminius had gained his triumph in his first consulate.—Ducario is in the dative by attraction to et understood.—armigero, "his shield-bearer."—triarii, "some triarii" who happened to be there. (See c. v.)—Punica religione . . . ab Hannibale. πῶτον μὲν διασάφηνεν, ὅτι Μάρκῳ οὐκ εἴη κύριος ἀντὶ τῆς αὐτοῦ γνώμης διδοὺς τὴν ἀσφάλειαν τοῖς ὑποσπόνδοις. Polyb. iii. 85.—atque, "and so."—conjecti instead of confecti sunt. Livy likes to make a sudden change from one voice to another for the purpose of effect.

vii. The number of the slain, and the terror at Rome.—nobilis, "well-known."—memorata hoc loco Livius de industria scripsit, non memoranda, nec memorabilia, ne id, quod Populo Romano dedecori fuisset, dicere voluisse videretur, nisi rei ipsius necessitate coactus.—aversis, "out of the way."—duo millia quingenti. Polybius has εἰς χιλίους καὶ πεντακοσίους. If, as is most probable, he got his information from the same source as Livy did, he must originally have written εἰς διαχίλους καὶ πεντακοσίους.—Fabium. Quintus Fabius Pictor, the grandson of the first Roman painter, of whom we have any knowledge, wrote in the Greek language a history of Rome from the earliest times to his death, which occurred probably about the end of the Second Punic War. He was a historian of great authority, though Polybius accuses him of a not unnatural partiality for his countrymen. He was sent (see xxii. 57) to consult the oracle at Delphi after the battle of Cannæ.—qui . . . essent. Essent, being in the subjunctive, expresses, not "who actually were of the Latin name," but "whom Hannibal thought to be of the Latin name."—frequentis . . . turba, "a crowd so large that it might have been taken for a crowded assembly of the people."—comitum, that part of the forum in which the comitia were held.—M. Pomponius Matho. "Omisit præter morem Livius eorum nomina, qui præturam hoc anno gesserunt. Ea hic reddemus. M. Æmilius Regillus urbanam jurisdictionem obtinuit: M. Pomponius Matho peregrinam: T. Otacilius Crassus Siciliam: A. Cornelius Mammula Sardiniam."—inpleti agrees with the sense of number in alius ab alio.—postero, i.e., die.

viii. On the news of another loss Fabius is appointed predictator.—equitum. These were sent because it had been proved at Ticinus and Trebia how strong Hannibal was in this arm.—propretore. Centenus was not proprator, because he was not prator the year before; but it was not unusual for the officers who were sent by the consuls as their lieutenants to be called proprators, just as the consuls themselves were originally called pratores, and the general's tent pratorium.—valido. We might have expected in valido.—causa = morbus.—inciderit; the aorist is used instead of the past imperfect, to give vividness to the simile.—ad remedium, &c. "Hæc intelligenda sunt de dictatore rei gerundæ causa creato, qui nullus post Atilium Calatinum per tres et triginta annos creatus fuerat. Aliquot fuere per hoc temporis intervallum dictatores, inter quos ipse Fabius, sed comitiarum habendorum causa creati" (Crevier). dictatorem dicendum is in apposition with remedium.—consul aberat. It was usual for the senate to nominate the person who was to be dictator, and for the consul to rise at dead of night and pronounce that person dictator. There were strong religious objections to his being created in any other way; hence the people now created not a dictator, but a prodicator, and they also, not he, appointed his master of the horse. This should be borne in mind.—navros. The senate must have expected that Hannibal would march straight to Rome, and begin the siege forthwith. Hannibal, however, never dreamt of entering on so mad an enterprise. His army would have soon melted away before the strong walls and scarp'd cliffs of Rome, and the terrible attacks of the malaria, so fatal in the summer months around the city. His design was, as was shown by his releasing all the allies and keeping the Romans, that fell into his hands, in chains, to raise a general revolt against the pre-eminence of Rome, among the various nations of Italy, and so blot out the obnoxious city from the earth. But God had work for Rome to do, that Rome alone could do; and so, happily for the human race, Hannibal failed, in what, from his point of view, however, was a most noble and patriotic undertaking.—quando = quandoquidem.

ix. Hannibal devastates Italy. The Sibylline books are examined at Rome.—Spolegium, now Spoleto, in the States of the Church.—quanta moles . . . esset, "how great was the power, and, therefore, the difficulty of taking."—Picenum, the territory on the borders of the Adriatic bounded by the Esino and the Vomano.—per dies aliquot. During this period of rest, according to Polybius iii. 87, he armed his African troops with the arms he had taken from the Romans, and sent news, now that he was once more near the sea, of his successes to the senate of Carthage.—levi, "without great loss."—facili, "without great exertion."—Ubi satis . . . gaudentibus may be translated "When sufficient time had been given for rest to soldiers who delighted more in" &c., or "When sufficient time had been devoted to rest, though the soldiers delighted more in" &c. In the former case gaudentibus would be in the dative after datum; in the latter it would be in the ablative absolute.—Præutianum. The Præutianus ager was in the south-western part of the ager Picenus. The ager Hadrianus was just south of the ager Picenus, between the Vomano and the Matrinus.—Marsos, a race of Sabine origin, inhabiting the mountainous district round L. Fucinus, now L. Celano.—Marrucinos, a tribe of kindred origin with the Marsi, inhabiting the southern bank of the river Aternus, now the Pescara.—Platignos, a tribe also of Sabine descent, bordering on the Marsi, and occupying the mountain valley of the Gizio, a tributary of the Aternus.—Arpos, now Arpa, in the middle of the great Apulian plain, thirteen miles east of Luceria, now Lucera.—dictator iterum. He had been created dictator a few years before, and Flaminius his master of the horse; but both of them had been obliged to give up their offices, as has been already mentioned, because some one had heard, or pretended he had heard, the squeak of a mouse. He was, now, strictly not dictator but prodicator.—temeritate. No one, I think, can fairly absolve Flaminius from all blame with regard to the battle of Trasimennus. Well-meaning, upright, and honourable he certainly was; but cautious he was not.—Veneri Erycinæ. This goddess was evidently, from her connection with the story of Æneas (Virg. Æn. v. 759), a goddess of Pelasgian origin. Her worship was at this time transplanted from Mount Eryx to Rome.—Menti. See Ovid. Fast. vi. 241 :

Mens quoque numen habet ; Menti delubra videmus
Vota metu belli, perfide Poenæ, tui.
Poenæ, rebellaras ; et leto consulis omnes Attoniti Mauras pertimuerunt manus.
Spem Metus expulerat : cum Menti vota Senatus Suscipit, et melior protinus illa venit.

—Veri sacrum vovendum, "that sacred rites must be vowed to the Goddess of Spring." Most editors have altered this, which is the reading of the manuscripts, to ver sacrum vovendum, because vere sacro occurs in the beginning of the next chapter. But no change is necessary.—M. Annitium, because he was prætor urbanus.

x. A sacred spring, the Great Games, and several temples are vowed at Rome.—de vere sacro, "about the dedication of all animals born within the Calends of March and the Calends of May." See Livy xxxiv. 44. Ruperti quotes from Festus, "Magnis periculis adducti volebant Itali, quæcunque proximo vere nata essent apud se animalia, immolaturus. Sed quoniam crudele videretur pueros ac puellas innocentes interficere, perductos in ætatem etatem velabant, atque ita extra fines suos exigebant." The present ver sacrum however referred only to cattle.—in hæc verba, "after this form."—velitis jubeatisque = Rogo num velitis jubeatisque.—The conjunction is omitted as is usual in old Latin forms of speech, as for instance patres conscripti ; and ne is put after the latter verb of the well-known and therefore hardly divisible formula instead of after the former verb.—Populi Romani Quiritium. Populus Romanus Quirites, more rarely Populus Romanus Quiritesque, and more commonly Populus Romanus Quiritium, is the usual name for the Roman people on solemn occasions. Niebuhr maintains that the two people of Rome and Quirium were so called after they coalesced into one nation. Fabri, on the ground that the Sabine word Quirites means "political confederates," holds that the difference between the two words is that Romani is the historical and externally political name, Quirites the name which is used in relation to all matters of internal policy, and quotes Festus, p. 254: "Quirites autem dicti post fœdus a Romulo et Tatius percussam communionem et societatem populi factam indicant."—duellis, the older form for bellis.—datum donum duit. Alliteration is always a favourite source of pleasure in the infancy of a nation's literature.—duit for det, from du-in, -is, -it, &c., an old way of inflecting the present imperfect subjunctive which is still retained in velim, possim, &c. There is no need for the insertion of ut. The subjunctive is used for the imperative.—quod duellumis Alpes sunt. Some editors put the whole of this sentence before datum donum duit populus Romanus Quiritium, by which means they make a considerable improvement in style, and simplify the construction by bringing the relatives quodque into immediate connection with their antecedent duellis ; but the ruder order retained in the text, where the relative clause appears to have been added as an after-thought, is more likely to be the genuine copy of the original form.—quæque profana erunt, “and which have not been already dedicated to any god.”—feri = sacrificari. So Virgil, Ecl. iii. 77: “Quam faciam vitula pro frugibus, ipse venito.” Feri is dependent on datum donum dedit.—quando volet, i.e. after the day fixed by the senate.—facit. In place of the usual future, another was formed in the older language by adding so to the crude form, as fac-so, fuco. From this future there was formed a subjunctive by changing o into im; as fuco, fuim.—quod. Quo would be commoner, as vitula is in the ablative in the passage just quoted from Virgil.—profanum esto, “let it be considered as undedicated.”—neque = neve.—rumpet. Alsch. quotes Ulpian’s Pandects, ix. 2, 27: § 17. “Rupisse eum utique accipiemus, qui vulneraverit, vel virgis vel loris vel pugnīs ceciderit, vel telo vel quo alio, ut sciderit ei corpus vel tumorem fecerit.”—fraus = scelus.—clepsit is formed from clepo, in Greek κλέπτω, just as facit is formed from facto, except that, if clepsit be the right reading, and not, as most editors have, clepsit, it is the past-perfect subjunctive instead of the present-perfect. This would be against the rule observed in later times with regard to the sequence of tenses; but it is obvious that in so rude a form of words as this, strict adherence to such a rule is not always to be expected.—atro die = nefasto die. Alsch. quotes A. Gell. v. 17: “Verrius Flaccus . . . dies qui sunt posttridie calendas, nonas, idus, quos vulgus imperite nefastos dicit, propter hanc causam dictos habitosque atros esse scribit.”—ante id ea. These three words are generally written as one word, anteidea or antidea, and supposed to follow the analogy of antidhac, an old form for antehac, and antideo, an old form for anteo. But this does not seem necessary; for, as Alsch. suggests, id, though placed between ante and its case ea, is the object of iusserit.—ac here = quam.—facitur = factum erit, and is the passive form of the active facit.—æris, i.e. assum, as the as was made of æs. In the dictatorship of Fabius Maximus, we are informed by Pliny xxxiii. 13, 45, the Asses were made of one ounce weight each, but as in all bargains they were reckoned by weight and not by tale, so here no doubt there were 333333½ pounds of bronze offered to the Gods.—Jovi depends on feri, supplied from the context.—in aliqua sua fortuna means either “because they had something to lose, and therefore were keenly reminded how inseparable were their own and their country’s fortunes,” or else “though they were plunged into the deepest apprehension on their own account.”—Jovi ac Iunoni &c. These twelve Deities were the Di majorum gentium.

xi. Fabius’s plans for carrying on the war.—ve is not quite = que here, but rather makes quot corrective of or supplementary to quibus.—duas. Polybius (iii. 88) says, τετράρω σπατορέδων.—Tibur, as well as diem, is governed by edixit, not by conveniendum. See xxxv. 25, “Sicyonem consilium edixerunt.” So in the passive voice. xxiii. 31, “Cui ad conveniendum Cales edicta dies erat.”—via Flaminia. This road, commenced by the late Consul Flaminius, during his censorship, went northwards through Etruria to Otricoli, now Otricoli, in Umbria, and thence ultimately to Ariminum.—exercitu is archaic for exercitus.—vetustate . . . oblitus. See the note, in c. 8.—portum Cosanum vel Herulis, now Porto d’Ercole, often used by the Roman fleets, when about to depart to Corsica, Sardinia, or Spain.—Ostiam, still called Ostia, situated at the mouth of the Tiber, was the port of Rome.—ad urbem Romanam aut Ostiæ = either “in the docks near Rome or at Ostia,” or “near Rome, that is to say, at Ostia.”—quibus liberi essent, “qui tanquam obsides virtutis parentum haberentur."—urbano, "raised in the city."—alii = ceteri.

xii. Fabius declines a pitched battle, to the disgust of his master of the horse.—legato. The Consul had already gone in obedience to the orders he had received.—Tibur, now Tivoli, in the States of the Church, about 20 miles from Rome.—quo die . . . militibus = quo die, ut convenirent milites, edictum proposuerat. So xxxv. 3, "Minucius consul Arretium die, qua edixerat ad conveniendum militibus, venit." Some editors have translated quo, "whither," and without authority altered die into diem; because the usual phrase is diem edicere militibus, and they could find no instance in Livy of the supposed attraction of eo die quem into quo die. But no change is needed.—Præneste, now Palestrina, about 23 miles due east from Rome.—transversis limitibus, "by cross-roads."—viā Latinā. This road ran through Latium (whence its name) and Campania to Beneventum in Samnium, where it joined the still more celebrated via Appia.—Arpis. Polybius says that Fabius encamped at Æce, the modern Troja, which is some little way from Arpi.—victos . . . quos Martios animos Romanis. Literally = "what martial spirits of the Romans were now at length subdued!" i. e. "that martial as the spirits of the Romans had once been, they were now utterly broken."—debellatumque . . . esse involves a kind of σπερπον σπερπον, being equivalent to "cum jam propalam de virtute ac gloria Romani Penis cessissent, debellatum esse." Al.—et concessumque. "Que idem fere quod quoque dicta nec conjunctione etiam hoc loco mutari potuit, quod ex hujus alterius particulæ vi Hannibal dicere videretur, se plus nactum esse quam quod sua suorumque virtuti deberetur. His duabus igitur particulis 'et—que' junctis quantam maximam vim in concessum, id quod rei ratio postulat, poni neminem fugerit." Al.—non vim, "not any sudden vehemence of attack."—si, "to see whether."—obstebat, "stood ready to engage."—per loca alta . . . ducebat. This description does not harmonise very well with Fabius's position in the level country about Arpi, but must be referred rather to his tactics when following Hannibal, in the forays that are spoken of in the next chapter.—nisi . . . cogeret, "except in so far forth as the need of what was necessary compelled him" (to let them go out of the camp).—universo periculo, "a decisive engagement."—summa rerum, "the very existence of the state."—parva . . . certaminum, "small undecisive skirmishes;" "levia certamina quæ hanc magni per se momenti erant." Crev.—qui nihil . . . habebat, "who was only prevented from ruining the state through the circumstance that in the extent of the military command he exercised, he was subordinate to the dictator."—in vulgus, "before the common soldiers."—premendoque superiorem, "and by depreciating his superior." So c. 59: "Nec premendo alium me extulisse velim."

xiii. Hannibal's march to Campania. He is led by mistake to Casilinum.—Hirpinis, a Samnite tribe inhabiting the southern portion of Samnium. Possibly they had become in some measure separate from the rest of the Samnites, since they had become subject to the Romans.—Beneventanum. Beneventum, now Benevento, to the north of Naples, became a Roman colony 486 A. D. C.—Telesiam, now Telese, a little to the north-west of Beneventum.—etiam atque etiam promissa, "what they had so repeatedly promised."—aliquibus is not a very common form for the ablative. Livy generally uses aliquis, just as he often uses quis for quibus.—Casinatē. Casinum, now San Germano, is about five miles to the north of the left bank of the Liris, now the Garigliano. A Roman colony had been long established there, because it commanded the valley of the Garigliano, and was therefore most important in a military point of view.—interclusurum. This is not true. Hannibal by occupying Casinum would have only closed the via Latina to Fabius.—Punicum. Supply nomen from nomine.—Casilinum, a town of Campania, about three miles west of Capua. It was important as a military position, because it guarded the chief bridge over the Volturnus, which is there unfordable. In consequence of its natural strength (see Smith's Dict. of Geogr.) the inhabitants of Capua, which had just been destroyed, removed thither in the ninth century, and gave it its modern name of Capua. It may be added, that this account of the guide's making a mistake between the two names, and so leading Hannibal into Campania, when he wished to go into Latium, is extremely unlikely. Polybius distinctly says that Hannibal left Samnium with the distinct intention of going into the Falernian district (iii. 90), in order either to compel the Romans to accept battle, and almost, as a matter of course, be defeated, or else to prove to their allies that they were utterly cowed, and so induce them to join him. It is true that it was a very bold step for Hannibal to take; but a great general always does bold things, because he is confident in his own resources.—Allifanum. Allife, now Alife, lay at the foot of the Matese, on the left bank of the Volturno.—Calatinum. Calatia, now Caiazzo, lay in the angle formed by the sharp bend of the Volturno to the west.—Calenum. Calce, now Calvi, was situated in the north of Campania, between the modern towns of Teano and Capua.—Campum Stellatam. The plain between Cales and Casilinum, as it would appear. But why Livy should make Hannibal march from Calatia westward to Cales, in order to get to Casilinum, which lay to the south of Calatia, he does not mention. In fact, in an age when there were no maps, geographical accuracy was a hard matter.—aquas Sinuessanas, now Monte dragone, on the G. of Gaëta, celebrated anciently for its warm baths. So Sil. Ital. viii. 529: "Sinuessæ tepens."—agrum Falernum. This district, so celebrated for its wines, extended from the neighbourhood of Sinuessæ to the right bank of the Volturnus.—quod unum . . . est depends closely on melioribus. The thought then will be that the only sure bond of fidelity is that the rulers should be superior to the ruled.

xiv. Minucius inveighs against the cautious tactics of Fabius.—Massici montis. This range of hills, now Monte Massico, almost as famous as the ager Falernus for the quality of its wine, extended eastward from Sinuessæ to the left bank of the Liris.—prope must qualify seditio: "what almost amounted to a mutiny;" though it is rare to find the adverb separated from the word it qualifies, as it is here by the interposition of de integro.—celerius. Fabius probably had been in haste in order to occupy the passes leading from Campania into Rome, thinking that Hannibal would not venture to await his approach in the rugged district of Campania.—spectatum and ad rem fruendam both depend on venimus. "Have we come to look on; to feast on the spectacle with our eyes?"—alterius is here put for alius.—colonos. They were sent, 458 A. V. C., for the purpose mentioned in the text.—pro! "alas," is seldom put, as here, without any accompanying words. But see Ovid Met. xiii. 758: "Pro, quanta potentia regni Est, Venus alma, tui,"—et Hannibalem, "even a Hannibal."—æstivos saltus, mountain pastures, which are browsed on by the cattle during the summer months, such as in Switzerland are called Alps.—Janiculum. The Mons Janiculus, on the right bank of the Tiber, was the highest hill of Rome, and the one to which Camillus would come on the road from Veii to Rome.—busta Gallica. Fabi quotes Varro, L. L. v. 32: "Locus ad busta Gallica quod Roma recuperata Gallorum ossa, qui possederunt urbem, ibi conservata ac consepita."—Gabios, now Castiglione, a city of Latium, about 12 or 13 miles east of Rome.—cum = postquam.—Samni is the gen. for Samniti. But imperii occurs in this chapter.—modo. The interval was twenty-five years; but that would seem recent when put in comparison with the deeds of Papirius Cursor, who avenged the disgrace of the Caudine Forks 445 A.U.C.—equitumque. These equites, who were mixing easily among the officers, must have been the equites who had an equis publicus, as mentioned in a previous chapter.—haud dubie ferebant, "they declared in no doubtful terms."

xv. Fabius persists in his tactics. Mancinus, fired by Minucius's speech, acts against orders, and pays the penalty of his disobedience.—pariter and haud minus quam do not mean the same thing. The former points out similarity, the latter the degree of similarity.—prius ab aliis invictum animum, "a mind which had already shown itself not to be conquered by others" (that is, by Hannibal on the one side, and by his fellow-citizens on the other).—presentis erat, &c., "could supply him with food only for the summer months, not for the coming winter."—fructibus, being dependent on constita, must mean not so much "fruit" as "plants that bore fruit." The chief reasons why Hannibal wanted to leave Campania were, no doubt, because he had not compelled Fabius to give battle, and Capua had not revolted to him as he had hoped.—Calli-culan. This mountain-range, mentioned only in this place, seems to be the one to the north of the ager Eulernus, separating it from Samnium. Fabius, by occupying the only pass available for an army on this range, and Casilinum, which commanded the bridge over the unfordable Vultur-nus, while the majority of his army was guarding Mons Massicus, and every road to Latium, hoped to catch Hannibal in a trap.—dirempta, "cut in two." One-half of Casilinum was on the left bank, and the other half on the right bank of the Vultur-nus. This seeming an unnatural mode of proceeding, dirempta is used; while a less violent division is denoted by dividit, immediately afterwards.—fugis isdem, &c., "he leads back his army along the same heights," to Mons Massicus (c. 14), in order to surround Hannibal.—fatigatione, &c. = fatigatis equis atque hominibus, the abstract being put for the concrete.—teli is often put collectively for telorum.—avertisset, i. e., in fugam.—Tarracinam. This town, now called Terracina, was a city of the Volscians, by whom it was called Anxur. It is situated on the sea-coast, near the border-line between the States of the Church and the kingdom of Naples.—super Tarracinam. See Livy, vii. 39: "Cohors una, quum haud procul Anxure esset, ad Lautulas, saltu angusto inter mare ac montes consergit."—Appie, sc. vie.—limite here stands for "the line."—viam is the pass over the mountain-range of Callicula. If Fabius and Minucius did occupy the pass with their whole armies, as Livy says they did, they must have been very bad generals; for they would then have left the road to Latium open, and Hannibal would not have needed to invent any stratagem to extricate himself from his perilous position. Polybius (iii. 92) gives the true position of Fabius, as it has been already described: "Ἐπ' αὐτῆς μὲν τῆς διεκβολῆς περὶ τετρακισχιλίου ἐπέστησε, παρακαλέσας χρῆσασθαι τῇ προθυμίᾳ σὺν καιρῷ, μετὰ τῆς τῶν τόπων εὐφρίας αὐτὸς δὲ τὸ πολὺ μέρος ἔχων τῆς διαμέως, ἐπὶ τινα λόφον ὑπερῶν πρὸ τῶν στενῶν κατεστρατοπέδευσε."

xvi. Hannibal, finding himself shut in, has recourse to stratagem.—carptim, "desultorily," is explained by the subsequent procursando recipiendoque sese.—restitit . . acies, i. e., "Romani inpetum hostium ite propulsarunt ut se loco non moverent." Al.—inter . . . silvas. Even more than the extreme limits of Hannibal's position are marked out here; for Formice (now Mola di Gaeta) on the Appian road, in Latium, was guarded by Fabius's position on Mons Massicus; and Liternum (now Torre di Patria), situated near the unhealthy marsh called Literna palus, was cut off by the deep waters of the Vulturnus.—conlectæ = conlectæ sunt, accensis cornibus. Cornibus must mean "what was fastened to their horns."

xvii. The success of Hannibal's stratagem.—aliquanto ante &c., because they had to be driven to the tops of the mountains, before the army could hope to find the pass undefended.—in adversos . . . montes, "up the mountains."—qui . . . erant. Livy had said in chapter xv. that Fabius and Minucius had both occupied the pass with their whole forces. Here he goes back to his Polybius (iii. 94), where he finds οἱ μὲν ἐπὶ τοῖς στενοῖς φυλάττοντες. The whole army could not very well have run away; so he drops his former statement as inconvenient.—presidio, "the pass they were set to guard."—minime densa, "least thick;" not "by no means thick," as it would ordinarily mean.—cum majore &c. Some editions have dum; but "conjunctione dum hoc loco Livius uti non potuit, quod non de duabus rebus, quæ essent eodem tempore factæ, referendum erat." Al.—neutros pugnam incipientes is short for "utrosque pugnam non incipientes."

xviii. Fabius being obliged to go to Rome, entreats Minucius to follow his instructions.—ab suis, i.e. from the Carthaginians.—pervenisset, "had appeared at the right time."—ac leviorque. See the note on et concessumque, c. xii. But?—super Alifus must be translated with concedit, not with transgressus. Fabius's object being to keep between Hannibal and Latium, he moved in a direction parallel to Hannibal's line of march. Allifus, now Alife, a city of Samnium on the Vulturnus.—Gerconium, a small town in the north-west corner of Apulia, and a few miles south of Larinum, now Larino Vecchio.—prope precibus agens. Papirius Cursor acted in a very different manner towards his disobedient master of the horse. See viii. 32.—censeret. The tense changes here from the present-imperfect to the past-imperfect, because the oratio obliqua commences here. The preceding verbs confidat and imitetur are governed by ut.—ab . . . claudibus, "after," &c.

xix. Cn. Scipio in Spain destroys a Carthaginian fleet.—Principio ætatis; i.e. about the time of the battle of Trasimennus.—quadraginta. See xxi. 22.—navibus prope terram, exercitum in litore ducebat. This is an instance of the grammatical figure called zeugma. Ducebat, which applies very well to the latter words of the sentence, does not apply very well to the former words, navibus prope terram. We must therefore suppose some such verb as vehabatur to be implied in ducebat, and translate, "he sailed in his fleet near the land, and led his army along the shore."—quacumque. As there were only two kinds of force, utra would have been more usual.—speculatoria, i.e. naves.—universo simul effuso terrore, "by pouring out upon them the whole terror of his means of attack at once."—oris, "stern-cables." "Duplici vinculo tenebantur naves, anchoralibus, ad ancoras alligata prora, puppi vero oris, i.e. rudentibus ad retinacula, quæ erant in portu seu litore. Statuebant enim plerumque ita naves, ut puppi in litus versa, prora altum spectaret. Resolutis igitur oris, necdum levatis ancoris, naves in ancoras evehi necesse erat." Stroth.—cum . . . eveherentur. Gronovius proposes evehuntur in consequence of the following incidunt. This conjecture makes the whole passage easy enough. If, however, evehentur is to be retained, vixdum omnes conscenderant must be supposed to be closely joined with Et jam

Romanus non adpropinquabat modo &c., and all the intermediate words looked upon as in a parenthesis, detached in construction from what precedes and what follows: "(Whilst some were fouling against their anchors, because they had loosened the stern-cables, before they had weighed anchor, others were busy cutting &c. . . . and the soldiers were prevented by the bustle of the sailors from getting and fitting on their arms.)" So Alschevski.—prohibentur agrees with the collective noun miles, a construction to which Livy is partial.—atque, "and so."—suppressæ, "sunk."

xx. The results of this naval victory.—Onusam. This place is not mentioned elsewhere; but probably is the same as Joyosa, on the sea-coast of Valencia.—injuncta muro must mean "touching the wall."—Longunticam. This place is not elsewhere mentioned; but it must have been near Carthagena, from its proximity to the plains lying very near Carthagena, where alone the spartum grows. See Pliny, N. H. xix. 2: "Complectatur animo, qui volet miraculum æstimare, quanto sit in usu (spartum) omnibus terris navium ornamentis, machinis ædificationum aliisque desideris vite. Ad hos omnes usus quæ sufficient minus triginta millia passuum in longitudinem a litore Carthaginis novæ minusque centum in longitudinem reperieffur."—sparti. This plant (see Liddell and Scott in v. σπάρος) is either Lygeum spartum or Stipa tenacissima, Linn. They both grow in Spain and are still called esparto. Ebusum now Iviza. It had a city of the same name.—majoræ præda. This was probably not the case. The island was by no means fertile.—facti sint. Qui has here the signification of tales ut, and is therefore followed by the subjunctive.—saltum Castulonensem, the chain of mountains on the north side of the Guadalquivir, so called from Castulo, now Cazona, the chief city of the Oretani.—Lusitaniam. It is not likely that Hasdrubal retreated so far, and gave up all Spain to the Romans without a battle.

xxi. The Hergetes attack the Romans, and the Celtiberi the Carthaginians.—per, "as far as concerned."—Mandonius was the brother of Indibilis. See xxvii. 49.—fuerat, "had been;" probably before the Romans turned him out.—ut . . . manum, "as being but a tumultuary band."—Lergavonensium is in some manuscripts written Ilercaonensium. So in Cæsar, Bell. Civ. I. 60., the manuscripts vary between Lurgavonenses and Illurgavonenses. The tribe dwelt along the sea-coast just south of the Ebro.—Novam classem, "New Fleet," probably a little north of Tarraco, the modern Tarragona.—legatos obsidesque dederant. This is a rather harsh instance of zeugma. Ambassadors cannot well be said to be given, though hostages may. Hence we must supply a word from dederant which will apply to legatos.—"They had sent ambassadors, and given hostages."—pugnant . . . occiderunt . . . capiunt. This rapid change of tenses is, as we have seen, very common in Livy.

xxii. P. Scipio arrives in Spain. Abelux betrays the Spanish hostages in ward at Saguntum to the Romans.—prorogato . . imperio. That is, he became Proconsul.—triginta. Polybius (iii. 97.) says "twenty."—nee ullo = et nullo.—traditos ab Hannibale, i.e. "Hasdrubali eisque duobus quos Hispaniæ præfecisset." Al.—ad hostes if taken with venientem will be "coming to the enemy;" if taken with esse will be "was in the eyes of the enemy."—unum &c. "only one single worthless and dishonourable creature more."—quæ fortuna potestatis ejus facere poterat. We should have expected potestatis suæ facere posset, i.e. every thing that Abelux himself thought fortune had put in his power." Livy however speaks objectively, "every thing that fortune had really put in his power."—obsidium, for the commoner form obsidum, is taken from a crude form obsidi. This is not uncommon in the Codex Puteanus.—ex ea parte i.e. "from the sea;" because the Romans had at this time an overwhelming fleet.—absenti. The use of the subjunctive shows that Abelux insinuates that he has this reason given him by some of his countrymen.—nomen, "influence."—ad cetera Punica ingenia "in proportion to the usual cunning of the Carthaginians."—Scipionem i.e. Publius Scipio, the late consul.—expro-mittit, "says shortly." The common reading expro-mittit gives rather the notion of an unhurried statement.—per eundem, "by Abelux."—ordine quo, "in the same way in which they would have been done."—i.e. after quo we must supply acta forent.—futura . . . fuerat. In such a periphrasis with the future participle and the tenses of the verb sum, to express what was to have been done in a certain case which after all never occurred, the indicative is always employed. See Livy xxxviii. 47. Quos ego, si tribui me triumphare prohiberent, testes citaturus fui rerum a me gestarum.—graves, superbos is more forcible than graves superbosque.—incognitus ante, "unknown before;" that is, by all except the tribes dwelling on the sea-coast to the north of the Ebro.—videbatur, "seemed to the Spaniards."—quoque, "as well as the Spaniards."

xxiii. Hannibal's stratagem to increase Fabius's unpopularity at Rome. Fabius's noble conduct.—quoque, is rather awkward. It would seem to refer back to the general meaning of the opening sentence of c. xix. "In Spain, also, as well as in Italy, there was war." militia magistrum. So magister equitum; magister morum.—prospero, "having any real influence on the issue of the war."—postquam . . . fuerat. The pluperfect, in most writers, rarely follows postquam, unless it is intended to denote that the event referred to has happened after the lapse of some time. Livy, however, is an exception to this rule.—dubito, "capable of a twofold interpretation." in eo, i. e. facto.—argenti, &c., two pounds and a-half of silver a-piece, "qui sunt mille sestertii, sive unum sestertium."—rogaretur, "was being brought forward," the reading of the manuscripts is changed by some editors into erogaretur, "was being paid." But Plutarch, Fab. Max. c. 7., expressly says, that the money was absolutely refused by the senate; a statement which the reading rogaretur will coincide with.—fidemque publicam, "Quod reipublice nomine debebatur hostibus, privata sua pecunia exsolvit. Crev.—duas partes, "two thirds."

xxiv. Minucius gains some slight successes during the absence of Fabius.—ad urbem, "towards the city."—in monte alto. Polybius (iii. 101) calls it Καλήνη.—quod minime quis crederet. The next words give the reason why Hannibal's conduct seems scarcely credible. Now that they were so near that a battle seemed imminent, it was extremely daring to let even one third go out to collect supplies.—propior, "yet nearer than the one just mentioned."—fecissent is stronger than the common dejecissent, according to Alsch., who sticks to his manuscript through thick and thin. So, in German, the simple verb zerstören, means "to defeat."—Exiguum spatii. So xxvii. 27, "Exiguum campi ante castra erat." . . . per aversa castra, "Per aversa castra significare per decumanam castrorum portam, quæ aversissima ab hostium castris erat neminem fecellerit."—Alsch. The gate nearest to the enemy was porta praetoria.—tanta paucitate, because so many soldiers were away seeking supplies for winter consumption.—artibus Fabius, "with all a Fabius's prudence."—pars . . . jam ferme, "a part of the army was now mostly absent."—cunctando allades, perhaps, to the name Cunctator given to Fabius.—quidam auctores sunt: Among these would not be Fabius Pictor, but those to whom the Fabian house was unpopular. Polybius also does not make mention of a "pitched battle."—Numeri Decimi, i. e. "of Numerius Decimius."—parti utriusque, "to a part of each army." What Alsch. says, that the division of Numerius Decimius could not be seen by the whole of either army, is true, in fact. But it does not follow that therefore parti utriusque is better than parti utrique, "to both sides." A priori, it is more likely that Livy wrote the latter.

xxv. The speech of the tribune Metellus, against Fabius, stirs up Terentius Varro against him.—in contione, in the assembly of the people.—enim. Here, as in all similar instances, there is a kind of ellipse, which has to be supplied from the context. "I felt inclined to speak against Fabius," we may suppose the tribune to be saying "even before. But now that he is trying to bring discredit on the master of the horse, I can be silent no longer. For this is, indeed, intolerable . . . &c."—in duendo bello ac seculo, "in lengthening out the war, and that too of set purpose."—quo diutius, &c.; as if he had been selected dictator only to hold the comitia for the election of another consul.—quorum depends on neutra provincia, as may be best seen by resolving quorum into its equivalent, quum eorum; "Since neither of the provinces belonging to them (i. e. the two prætors), at this time stands in need of a prætor."—in custodiam, for the commoner in custodia. The former expression may have been used, as Alsch. suggests, because the latter would have been too strong an expression for the circumstances of the case; but, after esse and habere, in sometimes does take the accusative, without any perceptible difference of meaning, e. g. "in potestatem populi Romani esse;" "habere in potestatem." Madvig attributes this (§ 230) to an inaccuracy of pronunciation, where the distinction between the accusative and the ablative rested on the single letter m; adding, as a proof, that we never find such expressions as in imperium esse, or in vincula habere. And, indeed, we have a proof that a final m was very lightly sounded in the facility with which it was elided in verse,—sed is not followed by et or etiam, to show that greater stress is laid on the devastation of the rich plains of Campania, &c., than on that of the comparatively sterile mountains of Samnium—sedenti. This form for the ablative is very rare indeed in the ablative absolute. As stante follows it, it is probable that the termination of the next word, Casilini, caused the substitution of i for e by the copyist.—ut, "as soon as."—ut, "as if."—abrogando. It must be remembered that Fabius was only a pro-dictator, not a regularly appointed dictator. Hence, there were fewer scruples felt about meddling with his appointment. The fact that his magister equitum was chosen for him, instead of the choice having been left, in accordance with precedent, in his hands, shows that the difference was felt from the very first, before any invidious feelings could have risen up against him personally.—nec tamen ne ita quidem. These two negatives do not destroy each other. Nec belongs to the whole proposition; while ne ita quidem, "not even in that case," gives a prominence to a particular part of it; in actione, &c. "not having the gift of popularly addressing the people."—sit and sciant are in the present imperfect, because they depend on effecturum.—bono imperatore, "when the general is good."—momenti, "of importance,"—"in tempore," "at a critical period."—ad suadendum, "to recommend the bill."—auctoritas, "the support of men of weight."—Terentius Varro. The way the poor man is introduced is a sufficient indication of Livy's political and social bias.—instiorem, "a huckster." Retail butchers were, of course, not so dignified as carcase-butchers. See Cicero Off. I. 42: "Sordidi etiam putandi qui mercantur

a mercatoribus quod statim vendant; nihil enim proficiunt, nisi admodum mentiantur.—hoc ipso should be made to agree with ministerio, rather than with filio.

xxvi. Terentius Varro's past career.—animos fecit, "had given him the spirit to aspire."—liberioris, "more worthy of a free man."—toga. The toga (from tegere, to cover) though, originally, the distinctive dress of the Romans, gradually was left off, more or less, by the poorer classes on account of its expense, and so became distinctive of the upper classes and of those who figured in the courts of law, &c. The common people, on the other hand, often wore the tunic alone, and hence were in contempt called tunicati. See Hor. Ep. i. vii. 65. "Vilia vendentem tunicato scruta popello."—proclamando, "by bawling." "Consulto utitur verbo minus decore per contemptum glamosum notaturo et vociferatorem, non oratorem." Bauer.—ad honores, "to posts of minor dignity," such as, that of quinquevir, tribunus plebis, &c.—quoque, refers to the minor offices just mentioned. questura. The questorship was the office which the young patricians used to begin public life with. Varro, as a plebeian, could not have aimed so high, till he had become known. The other offices are mentioned in an ascending order according to their relative dignity and importance.—haud parum callide, "with uncommon shrewdness."—scitique plebis = plebiscitique.—scientem by hypallage for scientis.—litteris, &c. "the letter containing the decree of the senate concerning;" &c. The plebiscitum would have been sufficient to settle the matter without any senatusconsultum; but, says Gronovius, "Quum post leges Horatiam et Hortensiam plebiscita populum tenerent, Patres, ut eluderent plebis auctoritatem, plebiscita senatusconsultis confirmare soliti erant."

xxvii. Fabius and Minucius divide the army between them, in consequence of the decision of the senate and people.—tantum = tantopere.—ergo securumque can only mean "therefore he would also follow," &c. But the que probably means that some such word as non defuturum has been dropped.—cunctationi = cunctatione.—deorum, "of the Gods," because they had enabled him to defeat Hannibal; and hominum, "of men," because the people had put him on a level with the dictator.—partitis temporibus, "in equally divided periods of a longer duration." enim is put in an unusual position to give greater prominence to fortunam.—cum alio, a contemptuous way of saying "with him."—se nunquam . . . cessurum = "se numquam sponte cessurum parte rerum consilio gerendarum, qua posset res consilio gerere."—mos est. The indicative shows that this clause is spoken by Livy in his own person. If he had intended to put it in Fabius's mouth, he would have written esset.

xxviii. Battle between Hannibal and Minucius.—liberam, "free from the restrictions Fabius would have imposed on it."—suo modo, "in whatever way he might choose."—non modo = non modo non. See notes on c. iii.—egressi = si quis egressus esset. Hence the use of alicujus in spite of the preceding negative necubi. The negative does not apply to alicujus—vanis animis, "with empty presumption."—dimittit, "he sends off." There is no reason for altering this into emittit, or expunging it.—ut crescente certamine, "as was natural in a contest which was growing fiercer every moment."—prima . . . intulit, "was the first to strike, &c."—si justa ac si recta. Iusta pugna, "a regular pitched battle," is opposed to tumultuaria; recta pugna, "a battle where foe meets foe front to front," is opposed to insidiae, &c.—prospere qualifies gesta, but precedes it for the sake of emphasis.

xxix. Minucius is rescued by Fabius, and acknowledges his own inferiority.

—Ita est; "So it is," i. e., "Just what I expected has happened."—magna ex parte qualifies both cæsis aliis and aliis circumspectantibus.—volventes orbem, "forming a circle." Orbem colligere (or volvere) dicuntur milites, qui ab hostibus undique cincti frontem in omnes faciunt partes, et hostibus quaquaversum obvertunt, ut ab omnibus partibus et in omnes pugnent. Rupertii.—Pænus. . . Hannibale. Livy uses Pænus for Hannibal, as representing his whole army. Hence, the introduction of Hannibal, as the individual, afterwards with an ablative absolute, as if a fresh subject had been introduced.—cum primum, &c. This is an allusion to the well-known lines of Hesiod ἐργ. καὶ ἥμ. 293, sq.

οὗτος μὲν πανάριστος ὃς αὐτῷ πάντα νόησεν, φρασσάμενος τὰ κ' ἔπειτα καὶ ἐς τέλος ᾗσιν ἀμείνω ἐσθλὸς δ' αὖ κακείνος ὃς ἐβ' εἰπόντι πίθηται ὃς δέ κε μήτ' αὐτὸς νοήῃ μήτ' ἄλλου ἀκούων ἐν θυμῷ βάλληται, ὃ δ' αὖτ' ἀχρήσιος ἀνὴρ.

—contulerimus, &c., "let us collect our standards before his prætorium, as a sign that henceforth his power is to be supreme over all alike." Livy is, as we have seen, fond of varying the tenses of verbs which are connected together. So we have here the present imperfect and present perfect subjunctive connected together without any corresponding difference of meaning.

xxx. Minucius and his soldiers return to Fabius's camp.—inde may be taken either with conclamantur or colligantur. In the first case the sense would be "At a given signal, then came the call, &c.;" in the second case, "there came the call to pack up the luggage and march thence."—Profecti. . . castra, "after they had set out, and as they were entering in marching order the camp of the dictator."—militum is the partitive gen. after circumfusus.—ejus, i. e., Fabii depends on militum.—totum agmen, "Minucius's whole army"—modo, "just now."—possum, i. e., æquare.—antiquo is literally, "I bring back a thing to the state in which it was before (ante);" i. e., "I reject."—abrogo, "I repeal," is added to correct antiquo, because antiquo cannot properly be said of a law that has already passed.—magisterio, "mastership."—teneri=retineri.—sensire, i. e., "Hannibal and his army began to perceive."—biennio ante, "during the two previous years," though the two years were not yet over.—terribilem eam famam, "so terrible a report." Eam is admissible in consequence of its being in the oratio obliqua. In the oratio recta it would be hanc or illam.

xxxi. The Consul Servilius is unsuccessful on the coast of Africa. Fabius was pro-dictator, not dictator. centum viginti is restored out of Polybius III. 96.—utrimque is used in a strange sense; "from both places" i. e., "from both Sardinia and Corsica."—Menige. The island Meninx, as it is usually spelt, now Jerbah, lies near the southern extremity of the Syrtis Minor, now the Gulf of Gabes. It was celebrated for being the abode of the "dreamy lotus-eaters;" and it still bears the "lotus Zizyphus," a tree-fruit, like beans. Smith's Dict. of Geog.—Cercinam, now Karkenah or Ramlah, lies to the western extremity of the Gulf of Gabes.—juxta. . . ac, "just as if."—insulis is governed by in understood.—amisso applies to ad mille as well as to questore, but is attracted into the singular number from its proximity to questore.—pedibus = "terrestri itinere."—et ipse et, &c., "that is to say, both he and his colleague," &c.—exercitus, i. e., the army of Fabius, and the army of Minucius—semenstri. The period of six months was the longest for which a dictator was appointed, though sometimes his power was by special permission prolonged in grave emergencies beyond this time.—primum . . . creatum, was the first who was created.—quam moram . . . esset. The whole of this clause is independent of fugit, and therefore we find decursum est instead of decursum esse, probably in order to put prominently forward that what he here states is a fact. The next clause, on the contrary, res inde gestas . . . obtinuisse is dependent on fugit.—pro dictatore, i. e., esset.—titulum imaginis. In Roman funerals the waxen images of those ancestors who had held any curule office, were carried before the corpse, with the titles, honours, and crowns, gained by each ancestor, blazoned on the image that represented him. obtinuisse, "had been the cause."

xxxii. The Consuls imitate Fabius's mode of carrying on the war. The Neapolitans offer pecuniary aid to the Romans.—summa . . . concordia, i. e., not differing like Scipio and Sempronius, or like Fabius and Minucius, as to how they ought to act.—in casum, &c., "to the uncertain issue of a pitched battle."—inopie est=inopie est. Inopie is the genitive dependent on adeo.—nisi cum . . . fuisset, literally, "unless departing had been for him with the appearance of flight," that is, "had it not been that his departure would inevitably have borne the semblance of flight."—Galliam, i. e., Galliam Cisalpinam, Lombardy.—constitisset, "had come to a stand."—Neapolitani, the people of Neapolis, now Napoli, or Naples. They had been so liberally dealt with by the Romans (see Livy, viii. 26), that they were much attached to them.—scire re . . . exhauriri, "that they knew, by experience, that a people's treasury soon became exhausted by war," being a general proposition, applicable to any people, is more complimentary and delicate, as well as in stricter accordance with the manuscripts than the common reading, scire sese Romani populi, &c.—geratur, i. e., bellum, to be supplied from bello in the previous clause.—ad subsidium fortune, "for a resource under adverse circumstances."—credent means more than credidissent, as it includes the time during which the ambassadors were speaking.—durissent . . . judicaverint. The former of these is in the tense in which it would be in the oratio obliqua, the latter in the tense in which it would be in the oratio recta. This alteration in the tense of the verb seems to be to show that the special object of the Neapolitans is contained in the clause in which the future perfect occurs. Moreover, as Alsch. remarks, judicaverint is more modest, because more doubtful, than judicarent.

xxxiii. A spy is caught and punished. Ambassadors are sent in various directions.—in crucem. This was the regular mode of executing slaves.—avis gravis. It has already been said that the ases were not reckoned by tale but by weight. Hence though they were constantly being reduced in weight, the old and the new ases could all circulate together. Demetrium. This man, when the Romans entered upon a war with Queen Teuta, for refusing to put a stop to her piratical depredations, 525 A. U. C., joined the Romans against her, and got as his share a large portion of her territory. Soon after, relying on the assistance of Philip of Macedon, he quarrelled with the Romans, and was utterly defeated, and stripped of his territories by L. Aemilius, 535, A. U. C.—Pharium, of Pharos, now Hvar, or Lesina, an island off the coast of Illyricum, the modern Dalmatia.—Bois, a Gallic tribe, bitterly hostile to the Romans, occupying the districts of Parma, Modena, and Bologna.—Pineum. Pineus was the son of Agron, King of Illyricum, by Tritenta, his first wife. When Teuta, his second wife, and Demetrius, who had married Tritenta after Agron had divorced her, had been successively driven away by the Romans, Pineus was put on the throne, on condition that he should pay them a certain fixed tribute.—in Illyrios. See note in xxi. 49 on Messaniam in portum.—cupis dies exierat, "the term for the payment of which had expired."—diem proferre, "to put off the day of payment."—in cervicibus. We should say "on their shoulders."—linginque agrees with cura by hypoallage for linginque agreeing with rei.—per seditionem, "during a mutiny."—biennio ante. It will be seen by referring to xxi. 17, 25, that L. Manlius was praetor the year before (anno ante), not two years before. Livy must, therefore, be taking into account here the year on which he is just entering.—quam jussissent, i. e. in quam jussissent.—locatam, "put out to be built by contract."—M. = Manium.—vittio = contra auspicia.

xxxiv. C. Terentius Varro is a candidate for the consulship. The tribune Rebius speaks in his favour.—a patribus. The senate alone could appoint an interrex.—sui generis, i. e., plebei generis.—insecrationi is the abl. This form, as we have seen, occurs frequently in the manuscripts, but most editors silently change it into the form ending in e.—ab, "in consequence of."—concussio belongs to opibus as well as to imperio, but is attracted to agree with the nearer word.—So amisso in c. 31.—aliena invidia, "in consequence of the odium he had contrived to draw down on Fabius."—et contrahere ad consulatum, "even to pull out of the mud of his sordid origin to the pinnacle of the consulship." i. e., et belongs to the whole expression, and not to ad consulatum only.—universis, "joined and acting together."—hominem novum, a man who had no images of his ancestors to show, because none of them had ever held a curule office.—plebeis nobilibus, men of plebeian extraction, whose ancestors had held curule offices.—initiatos esse sacris, "had been initiated in the same sacred lore," and hence learnt to consider themselves as belonging to a higher, because a sacred, caste than the unconsecrated, and therefore unholy, commons.—ex quo i. e., tempore.—patribus "among the patricians." The dative of the agent is not used except when the action done by the agent is for his own interest, or when it exists for him as something permanent and complete.—in vitis his, i. e., consulibus.—expugnatum esse, "that it had been wrung out of them, as if by a coup de main."—vittiosus = vittio creatus.—populum is here pretty nearly equivalent to plebem.—liberum habiturum, "will keep it for themselves without any restriction as to to whom it shall, or shall not, be given."—qui . . . malit, "who would far rather gain a decisive victory than remain a long time at the head of affairs." For the pleonasm in magis . . . malit, compare Cic. in Q. Cæc. Div. 6. "Qui se ab omnibus desertos potius, quam abs te defensos esse malunt."

xxxv. The elections of the Consuls and Praetors.—jam qualifies nobilibus, "who had already attained to the rank of nobles, though of plebeian extraction."—unus. None of the patrician candidates got the requisite number of votes to have the majority in any one tribe.—rogando collega, "for electing his colleague." As the magistrate who presided over the elections had to ask (rogare), the citizens "Velitis, Jubeatis, Quirites?" in the case of the election of each officer, rogare magistratus came to mean to elect magistrates.—L. Æmilius Paulum. He had been consul with M. Livius Salinator the year before the breaking out of this war, and in that capacity had defeated Demetrius of Pharos, and driven him to seek refuge in the court of Philip, King of Macedon. Though he gained a triumph, he and his colleagues were brought to trial for misappropriation of the spoil. His colleague was condemned; and he himself only just escaped a similar sentence. This election of Æmilius twice in the space of four years was against the law which declared that no one should be twice consul within the space of ten years. But this law (see Livy xxvii. 6), had been suspended, immediately after the defeat and death of C. Flaminius at Trasymennus, for the time of Hannibal's continuance in Italy.—prope qualifies sua damnatione and has almost the force of an adjective.—ambustus craserat "had got off, but not without being severely scorched."—proximo comitali die, "on the first day on which an assembly could be held for the purpose, after Terentius Varro had entered on his office."—par magis, &c. "rather as one clothed with equal power to oppose him, than &c."—prætoria comitia. They were always held directly after the consular comitia. But Livy has forgotten to record the prætors for the two preceding years.—juri dicundo is the dative of destination to an office. Madv. § 415.—urbana = "in arbe inter cives." Weiss. Philus then became prætor urbanus, and Pomponius became prætor peregrinus.

xxxvi. Preparations for the campaign. Fresh prodigies.—quantæ . . . addite sunt, if simply dependent on variant, would have to be written quantæ . . . addite sint. The only way of explaining the indicative is to suppose with Alsch. that it is equivalent to "quot autem pedum equitumque copias additas esse dicunt," a specific statement which would not require a subjunctive. But addite sint would be much better.—alii . . . alii: the predicate to these words must be supplied either from the preceding variant, or the subsequent and somewhat distant auctores sunt.—pediti aquarent = "pediti Romano æquarent suos pedites." i. e., peditum Romanorum numero æquarent suorum peditem numerum. Alsch.—septem et octoginta milia, &c. This number is thus made up. As there were 8 Roman legions, each containing 5000 foot and 300 horse, and the allies supplied an equal number of foot and twice as many horse, $8 \times 5300 + 8 \times 5600 = 87,200$.—quidam. Some editors wish to substitute idem. But no alteration is needed, as the information given by the quidam auctores begins at Numero quoque, &c., and goes down to the end of the sentence.—Aricie, now La Riccia, a town of Latium, about 16 miles from Rome, on the via Appia.—fonte calido is the ablative absolute "although the spring was a warm one."—Fornicata, "arched."—Campum, "the Campus Martius."—Pesto, now Pesto, a little south of the Silarus, in Lucania. This, too, like Neapolis, was a Greek city; and the good-will shown by both cities would tend to prove that the Romans already felt that respect for all that was Greek, which they afterwards so signally manifested.

xxxvii. Hiero sends his ambassadors with presents to Rome.—Ostia, still retaining the same name, was the port and naval station of Rome, from which it was distant about 16 miles. It is sometimes f. of the first, sometimes n. of the second declension.—sua propria, "affecting himself personally." In the whole of the beginning of the speech Livy supposes Hiero to be himself speaking by the mouth of his ambassadors, so that sua, se, &c., refer to Hiero. Then scse the subject to adferre and advexisse means "the ambassadors," and afterwards with scire, vidisse &c., the subject again is Hiero.—Milite = pedite.—mille is here used as a singular substantive governing the genitive. See note on xxi. 61.—missile is an old form of the ablative for missili.—gratia rei, "the kind feeling evinced by the act."—ad † navium cassem. The number of ships has been omitted through the carelessness of transcribers. Titus Otacilius had at one time 120 ships under his command, but he had since that time been ordered to take them to Rome; so that it is uncertain whether he still had all these under his command, at the time spoken of, or not.—trajicerent, if right, has an indefinite subject, something like the French on, or the German man: "that they should, i. e., that T. Otacilius and his men should, cross over," &c. But Livy probably wrote trajiceret.

xxxviii. The soldiers are bound by an oath.—jurejurando. The sacramentum, or voluntary declaration, accompanied with imprecations in case of non-fulfilment, was now enlarged by the introduction of a fresh statement, and ratified by a compulsory oath, or jusjurandum, before the tribunes of the soldiers, that they would assemble at the bidding of the consuls, and not depart unbidden. The words of the sacramentum are given in the next sentence.—ad decuriatum aut centuriatum = ad decuriandum aut centuriandum, "in order to form themselves into decuries and centuries."—conjurabant = una jurabant. One soldier used to repeat the declaration and the others say, one after another, idem in me.—ergo is used only in old forms like this, or in antiquated style generally, as a preposition.—sumendi aut petendi. Sumere might be said with respect to those weapons which are near at hand, petere with respect to those which were to be sought in the enemies' ranks.—ferendi is an old expression for "of wounding."—perfecturum, i. e., bellum.—quodne, the reading of the manuscripts gives but poor sense. Valla conjectures quomodocumque.—qui dux = aliqui dux or aliquis dux.—dent by its change of tense introduces a general sentiment applicable to all times.—ante tempus immatura, "which must appear immature before the time."—ad id locorum, "up to that time." Id is explained by the clause tua . . . prepositurum, which is in apposition to it.—id perseveraret, "should persevere in it." In eo would be more usual.

xxxix. Fabius encourages Æmilius to adopt the plan which he himself had found so efficacious against Hannibal.—duo boni consules, "if you were," &c.—me indicente = me non dicente,—fide vestra is governed by the preceding e.—malè, "if bad."—claudet, "shall be lame," is the future tense from claudere.—idem juris, "the same authority."—Ominis, &c. "Moreover, I would gladly not allude to Flaminius at all, by reason of the evil omen that attaches to all mention of him."—furere . . . insunt. The former is used of a brief and violent outbreak, the latter of a settled, though not necessarily violent, perversion of the faculties. See Cic. Tusc. Quæst. III., 5, 11. "Quod cum magis esse videatur quam insania, tamen ejusmodi est, ut furor in sapientem cadere possit, non possit insania."—adversus unum, "before one man," i. e., Æmilius, or "against, at the expense of, one man," i. e. Terentius.—ut . . . excesserim, "so that I had rather go beyond the mean in, &c."—stultorum, "only of fools."—quamdiu . . . incenibus. In consequence of an apostrophe the sentence is left unfinished.—laborare, "be eclipsed." So Virg. G. II., 478. "Defectus solis varios, unaque labores,"—nec ego . . . Supply moneo or suaideo out of the previous malò.—ut nihil is evidently more suitable here than ne quid.—sint belongs to tu also, but is attracted to agree with the nearer tua omnia. The meaning is equivalent to, "Mould your circumstances, and do not let your circumstances mould you."

xl. Æmilius's desponding answer. Hannibal's difficulties.—magis is put out of its ordinary place for the sake of emphasis.—Ab hoc sermone, "Immediately after this speech."—turba, &c., "greater to the eye in consequence of the multitude of persons who escorted, though men of dignity and position were wanting."—in castra, near Gereonium, according to Livy (c. xlii); but according to Polybius (See notes on c. xliii), near Cannæ, which, as yet untaken by Hannibal, contained the Roman stores.—consulium is the partitive genitive dependent on Atilium and Servilium.—omnibus is the dative of the agent. Omni would be better if it were supported by the manuscripts.—transitio, “desertion.”—parata fuerit. This tense, as often in Livy, is used here after the past tense erat, because in an independent sentence it would run thus. Transitio parata fuit, si maturitas . . . foret.

xli. The Romans being unduly elated at having slaughtered some Carthaginian foragers, Hannibal contrives an ambuscade.—ac procursu, &c., is an explanation of tumultuario prælio.—alternis i. e. diebus to be supplied from the preceding eo die.—insidiis, &c. Polybius does not mention this ambuscade of Hannibal’s at all. Indeed it hardly falls in with his account of the state of things.—impedimenta, &c. = “impedimenta ita traducit per convallē, ut medio in loco inter pedites equitesque essent.”—in locis, “where they were.”

xlii. Hannibal’s design is discovered.—fecit is the predicate of stationes as well as of silentium, but agrees with the nearer subject.—prætoria. There were two, one for each consul, in that part of the double camp belonging to each.—nuntiantium “of men announcing.”—reliquerint is in the same tense in which it would have been in the oratio recta.—præfectum, i. e. turmat.—vel obiectum. Vel is here nearly equivalent to velut, “as it were.” So in c. 44, we have “vel usu cepisset Italiam.”—Varro signum dedit, because it was his turn to command that day.—auspicio, “with respect to auspices,” or else, “by means of the auspices they gave.” Alsch. takes it to be the dative, “for a good auspice.” Which ever way it be taken, its conjunction with addidissent is rare and awkward.—imperi potentes fecit, “enabled them to regain their authority.”—suam though grammatically referring to ambitio, must be taken as referring to alterius.—eor, i. e. militēs, which word, however, has not occurred lately, and must be extracted by a rather difficult process, out of the thought contained in imperi potentes.

xliii. Hannibal in great distress for food for his army moves to Cannæ.—annonam, “the dearthness of provisions.”—calidiora. The country round about Geronium was high ground. If he went into the neighbourhood of Cannæ, he would find himself in the middle of the great Apulian plain, where the harvest begins in May. It may be stated here, that Polybius gives a very different and much more probable account of the events preceding the battle. According to him, Hannibal, about the time of harvest, suddenly got possession of Cannæ, a town which commanded all the country round, and where the Romans had placed all their stores. The consuls of the former year sent to the senate to know what they should do, as they were running short of supplies, and if they approached nearer would be compelled to give battle. The senate hearing this, and knowing the temper of the allies, resolved to risk a battle, and hastened Æmilius and Varro out of the city to execute their decision. This takes off much of the blame from Varro, who has been depicted in such black colours chiefly because he was a double-dyed plebeian, a novus homo. He could not, however, have been the vulgar demagogue Livy makes him out to be; for the senate would never have thanked such a man publicly for not despairing of the republic; and such a man would never have been employed again, as Varro was continuously till the end of the war, in services of the most important nature.—simul quod, &c. This of course, was not the true reason, but the reason it suited Livy to give, in order to throw all the blame on Varro. Hannibal was not then in want of supplies, for he had the Roman supplies, taken at Cannæ, and his men were doubtless quite satisfied with their condition.—ultra, “beyond.”—trans, “over, on the other side of.”—Cannas, a small town, now Canne, about six miles from the Aufidus, now the Ofanto, on its right bank. Volturmo vento, the south-east wind, now called the scirocco.—nubes pulveris. The soil about Cannæ is of limestone; and, therefore, in summer, dry with "clouds of dust," ready to be raised by the scirocco.—effuso, "gathered from the plains to the south and poured out on them."

xliv. The Romans draw nearer to Hannibal, and encamp on the Aufidus.—bina castra. The two consuls, of course, (See c. xl.), presided over the larger one on the south bank of the river, and Servilius over the smaller one on the north bank.—utrisque, "the two Roman camps."—trans Aufidum, i. e. with respect to the larger camp.—vel usu cepisset, "had gained a right to it, as it were, by prescription." This phrase alludes to a law of the Twelve Tables, by which undisputed possession of immoveables for one year, and of immoveables for two years gave the right of ownership. Hannibal has now been almost undisputed master of Italy, it is here argued, for two years; and, therefore, he may claim it now as legally his.—projectis ac proditis, "thrown away, nay, betrayed to," &c.—videret, i. e. Varro. "Let Varro see to it that," &c.

xlv. Varro irritated by the Numidian skirmishers gives the signal for battle. In order to understand the details of this battle it must be remembered that the Aufidus makes a large semi-circular curve in that part of the plain where the action was fought. The Romans drew up their line, more or less, along the diameter of the semicircle formed by the river, thus nullifying their superiority in numbers, because they could not extend their line so as to outflank the Carthaginians, who were drawn up between them and the river, and were therefore protected by it on either flank. The Carthaginians would, no doubt, in case of defeat, have been in a very perilous position, placed, as they were, between the river and the Romans. But Hannibal knew that defeat was next to impossible; and besides he would in that case have been so utterly ruined, that the small aggravation of a river in his rear would have not added very materially to his difficulties.—trans flumen, because the lesser camp of the Romans was on the north side of the Aufidus, and their greater camp, and all Hannibal's forces were on the south side at the time spoken of.—stationem . . . evecti sunt. Somewhat in the same way egredi urbem is used without a preposition.—tumultuario auxilio, i. e. the Numidians, who were Hannibal's Cossacks.—fuert is put here, where fuit might have been expected, in order to show that the clause in which it stands, not only gives the facts of the case, but also the subjective view of the Romans around, who fully agreed with and shared in Varro's folly and presumption. It has already been stated that Livy's account of Varro's proceedings are not to be implicitly received, as they altogether contradict the express statements of Polybius, and the probabilities of the case.—sors has both ejus diei and imperi dependent on it.—signum, the purple flag that was the well-known signal of battle.—atque ita . . . acie = "atque ita junctis utrorumque castrorum copiis."—id . . . propius. They kept closer to the western side of the semicircle, because the lesser camp was there.—Romanos equites = 8 × 800, or 2400 in number.—pedites, i. e. Romanos = 8 × 5000 or 40000.—extremi, "at the extremity of the wing."—equites sociorum = 8 × 600, or 4800.—pedites, i. e. sociorum = 8 × 5000 = 40,000. These, at least, were the numbers of the entire Roman army. But from them must be subtracted 10,000 left, according to Polybius, iii. 117, to guard the greater camp, and those, always a large proportion in an army, who were sick and in hospital. Livy alludes in a general way, in c. lix., to the fact stated by Polybius, while in c. xlix., he makes out that the 10,000 escaped to the greater camp after the battle was over.

xlvi. Hannibal draws up his army in battle array to the south of the Romans, and between them and the Aufidus.—transgressus flumen, i. e., from the south bank to the north bank. The ground on the south bank was unfit for a battle, as the hills that confine the valley of the Aufidus on that side, leave only half a mile of even ground between them and the river. See the article on Canus in Smith's Dict. of Geog.—Gallos Hispanosque equites, Hannibal's heavy armed cavalry, so completely outnumbering the 2400 Romans opposed to them, as to ensure them a speedy victory, and enable them to get on the first opportunity to the rear of the Romans.—disparēs, "unequal in goodness."—dissimiles, "unequal in appearance."—prætextis purpura, "bordered with purple."—Hannibal ipse, &c., because here were the manœuvres to be executed which were to decide the battle.—locis may either be ablative absolute or the dative dependent on erat.—Volturnum . . . vocant. Livy must have forgotten that he had said this before in c. xliii.

xlvii. The battle of Cannæ.—auxiliis is the dative of the agent. But probably Livy wrote ab auxiliis, and the ab was accidentally omitted by the transcriber, the next word beginning with the same vowel.—minime equestris more pugnae: οὐ γὰρ ἦν κατὰ νόμους ἐξ ἀναστροφῆς καὶ μεταβολῆς ὁ κίνδυνος· ἀλλ' εἰσάπαξ συνεσθόντες ἐμάχοντο συμπλεκόμενοι κατ' ἄνδρα, παρακαταβαίνοντες ἀπὸ τῶν ἵππων (Pol. iii. 115).—in directum, &c., "struggling right onward on both sides."—Stantibus . . . equis. "When the horses were standing still and were at last crowded together in the press."—Primo, &c. "At first the legions could hardly bear up in strength and spirit against the Gauls and Spaniards;" in strength, because the scirocco was blowing in their faces; in spirits, because they had just seen their cavalry on the right wing annihilated by the superior numbers of the enemy. This must be the meaning of the passage, from the circumstances of the case. Besides which, ordines would only be applied to Roman forces.—acie densa = "compressis ordinibus."—cuncum, proceides . . . τὸ κύρωμα (Pol. iii. 113).—subsidia Afrorum, i. e., the African troops who had been placed a little behind to the right and left of the Gauls and Spaniards, in order to execute the manœuvre of wheeling round on the flanks of the advancing Romans and so deciding the battle.—equavit frontem primum, &c., passed from a convex to a rectilinear, and so from a rectilinear to a concave front (sinum).—cornua jam fecerant, &c., had already so extended themselves that they formed a right and left wing to the retreating body of the Gauls and Spaniards, and thus were able to attack the Romans on both flanks at once.—mox cornua, "the extremities of the wings (alæ) so formed."—et and integram are not both needed; but they are both inserted to add to the force of the sentence.

xlviii. Treacherous conduct of the Numidians.—Punica ceptum fraude. This nonsensical story is borrowed by Livy from Appian. Polybius of course does not mention it.—in mala jam spe, "though there was now little hope of victory."—qui ea jam parte præerat, "who was now commanding on that wing." Hasdrubal had originally been placed in command of the heavy horse on Hannibal's left wing. There he had almost annihilated the Roman cavalry opposed to him, and now came to replace the Numidians on Hannibal's right wing, by battling with the 4800 horse of the Roman allies, while he sent the Numidians to pursue the remains of the cavalry whom he had just routed on the other wing. Till then, the battle on that side, owing to the desultory mode of fighting peculiar to the Numidians, had been indecisive (segnis); but on the arrival of Hasdrubal with his victorious squadrons, τότε προϊδόμενοι τὴν ἐφόδον αὐτῶν οἱ σὺν-μαχοι τῶν Ῥωμαίων ἱππέις, ἐκκλίναντες ἀπεχάρουν (Polyb. iii. 116). Upon this he threw himself on the rear of the mass of the Roman infantry who were still struggling with the Gauls and Spaniards in front, and the Africans on both flanks, and, according to Livy, in the rear too, and so decided the battle; which then quickly degenerated into a scene of mere carnage.

xlix. The Romans are utterly defeated. The noble death of Æmilius. The number of the slain.—Parte altera must mean “in the centre,” for the left wing of the Romans has just been spoken of, and their right wing had already been destroyed. Paulus had begun the battle among the cavalry on the right wing. When that was routed, he went to the centre to oppose Hannibal, who was there in person.—traderet, i.e. Æmilius. “How much I should prefer that he should give them up to me in chains.”—Equitum pedestre &c. = “Equitum qui ad pedes descenderant, pugna talis fuit, qualis esse poterat, quum haud dubia jam esset hostium victoria.” Crev.—Pepulerunt, &c. “They did, however, put to flight those who remained, since they were but few in number and worn out with toil and wounds.” It is difficult to understand how any got away, if Livy’s account be strictly correct; for, according to him, they were surrounded on all sides.—prætervehens is the active imperfect participle used for the passive, because it has none of its own. So pascens and versans are used in a dependent sense.—tollere here = “to raise and keep up.”—advenit is put in the present imperfect instead of the future, to show that Hannibal will certainly be there very soon.—ex, “after and in consequence of.”—hec exagentes = “hec inter se exagentes.” In this sense agentes is more common.—in vicum æsum Cannas. This is not very likely, as Cannæ had long been in Hannibal’s possession.—Venustiam, now Venosa in Naples, was on the borders of Apulia and Lucania, but in the former province.—tanta here is equivalent to tantadem, “just as great,” “tanta prope civium quanta sociorum pars.”—casi agrees with the sense of pars or of millia. The numbers are variously given by various writers. Polybius departs from the usual moderation of his statements, and says 70,000 Romans were killed.—aliquot annis ante. Minucius had been consul five years before, 553 A.U.C.

l. The survivors of the Roman army flee to Canusium.—fuit, “shared the fate of.”—in majoribus. The larger camp lay on the south bank of the Aufidus, and therefore nearer Canusium than the smaller camp, which was on the north bank of the river. Hence the message to those in the smaller camp to come over to the larger one.—Canusium, now Canosa, a town of Apulia; a short distance south of the Aufidus.—Romanus civis an Latinus socius. The Romans were put into prison till they should be ransomed; the Latins and allies were dismissed, in order that they might be urged by Hannibal’s generosity to tempt their countrymen to revolt from Rome.—tua is used here for vestra, to give force to the narrative, not with any intention of drawing an invidious line of distinction between the Romans and their allies.—alteri, i.e. hosti.—non tu, “not thou,” says Tuditanus, looking at the boldest man near him. Then he changes to the plural, si . . . cives estis, in order not to seem to attribute cowardice to them.—cives, “fellow citizens.”—in dextrum. Their left-sides would be protected by the river, in travelling along the north bank of the river westward, to get opposite to the larger camp.—ad scaccanti. Scaccanti is attracted to the nominative to be the subject of evaserunt.—quod, “whatsoever.”

li. Hannibal refuses to march upon Rome. The horrors of the battle-field.—bello, not pugna, as if the war were now virtually finished.—dic and noctis both depend on quietem: "he should take to himself a rest, consisting of that day, so much, that is, as was left of it, and of the following night."—majorque, &c., "too great for their minds to be able to take in at once." They did not understand, that is, what an immense undertaking they wished him to embark in. It has already been said that Rome was a first-class fortress; and Hannibal was too wise to attempt to attack it, especially in the most unhealthy season of the year. His army, even if untouched by the Romans, would have been destroyed by malaria; in consequence not one Italian state would have joined him, and his whole project would have been thenceforth impracticable.—temporis opus esse. The genitive after opus is found again in xxiii. 21: " quanti argenti opus fuit."—insistere ad &c. is a very rare construction.—ut quem, &c. = "ut quem cuique casus adjunxerat aut in pugna aut in fuga" (Crev.)—stricta, "drawn together," "stanchd."—convertit, i.e. in se.

lii. Both the Roman camps are given up to Hannibal.—brachio, "a line of fortification."—quadrigatis, i.e. numis, silver denarii, on which was the figure of Apollo in a quadriga or four-horsed chariot.—si quid argenti, i.e. erat, to be supplied from the next clause.—ad vescendum facto, i.e. argento = "silver plate."—senato, a very rare form of the ablative of senatus.—So senati sometimes occurs for the genitive.

liii. A conspiracy to leave Italy, on the part of some of the young nobles who have survived the battle of Cannæ, is crushed by the younger Scipio.—conploratam, "mourned for as dead."—quorum principem, i.e. esse.—consilium, "a council of war," not concilium, as some editors have, because in a council of war, the notion of counsel (consilium) prevails over that of a council, or calling together into one place (concilium).—fatale dux, "the destined leader."—ait, though it might have been supplied out of the preceding negat, is inserted to give force to the sentence.—ex mei animi, &c. "With full purpose of soul (I swear that,) as I will not desert the republic of the Roman people, so neither will I allow any other Roman citizen to desert it."—neque here may have sic or ita supplied before it.—si sciens fallo, "if I wittingly break my vow." So xxi. 45. Si falleret, Jovem ceterosque precatus deos, &c.

liv. Four thousand five hundred men take refuge in Venusia. The consternation at Rome.—togas, i.e. singulas. "Hinc et ex aliis itidem Livii locis (xxix. 3 et 36; xlv. 16), patet togas etiam a militantibus gestatas. At primo intelligendum est eos togis usos esse, non in acie, sed in hibernis aut in otio castrorum. Deinde ex eo quod hic solum equitum facti mentio, et in duobus ultimis locis supra memoratis numerus togarum quæ mittuntur ad exercitus, longe minor sit tunicarum numero, nec sufficiens profecto ad totum exercitum vestiendum, colligitur Aldus Man: . . . togas honestioribus tantum in usu fuisse, puta equitibus, centurionibus, &c." (Crev.)—populus Venusinus. Being a Roman colony, it might be termed populus.—et jam, &c., "and indeed there were already, &c."; et introducing the grounds of the previous statement.—occisione occisum, "utterly annihilated."—neque adgrediar narrare. He had already thoroughly exhausted the subject in depicting the grief at Rome after the battle of the Lake Trasymennus.—quæ . . . faciebant, "in the handling of which they (that is, the writers who treated of the subject) only fell below the truth."—Consule, &c. "After a consul and an army had been lost at Trasymennus in the former year, not merely one wound upon another similar wound was announced to have occurred, but a manifold greater disaster, the loss of two consuls and two consular armies," &c.—emisso = amisso here, the preposition ob having the same force as it has in obire.—esse. The construction is here changed as if it were preceded by nuntiabatur used impersonally.—Compares, i. e. si compares.—minore animo. See note on propius periculum, &c., in xxi. 1.

lv. The Senate having met to consult on the state of affairs, is guided by the advice of Fabius Maximus.—malis &c. is either the dative after expe-diret or the ablative absolute.—nec . . . quidem is stronger than nequidem.—nondum palam facto, "though it was not yet made known who were alive and who were dead."—et per omnes &c. This second et is added by Alsch. : "and indeed almost without exception in every family," &c.
—sive quisque, &c., "that people should each of them wait at home for some one who should bring news of their fate," that is, of the fate of those of their families who had been at the battle.—ponant must go back to patres for a subject, not to the subject of the previous verb expectent.—conticuerit recte, "has been duly appeased." If conticuerit be thus taken in the sense of sedatus erit, to which it is here equivalent, recte will retain its ordinary meaning.

lvi. The mourning is so great that a feast to Ceres has to be given up.— Cum in hanc, &c. "When they had all adopted this opinion." The Senate used to vote, as our House of Commons does now, by going to different sides of the house. Hence pedibus ire in sententiam came to mean "to agree to an opinion."—ad decem millia. Eventually there turned out to be more than 14,000 soldiers at Canusium and Venusia.—sacrum anniversarium Cereris. This was not the feast of Ceres mentioned by Ovid, Fast. iv., 619, "Alba decent Cererem : vestes Cerealibus albas—Sumite. Nunc pulli velleris usus abest." For that event took place the nineteenth of April ; and the battle of Cannæ happened, according to the miserably defective calendar of those times, on the second of August, though, as we may judge from the fact that it was just after the early harvest time in those parts, it was probably seven or eight weeks earlier.
The feast here mentioned must of course have taken place some time in August.—luctus, "mourning," i. e. the dress worn as an outward sign of the inward maeror.—limitus, "limited." vellent, i. e. "he and his men."—provinciam. All Sicily was included under the title of provincia Romana, except the few towns ruled over by Hiero of Syracuse.

lvii. Two Vestal Virgins being found guilty of breaking their vows, due steps are taken to appease the Gods. Eight thousand slaves are bought by the state, and enrolled into the army.—prætoris. Most editors have substituted proprætoris, because Otacilius was prætor the year before.— M. Claudium qui, &c. See c. xxxv.—quantum per, &c., "as far as was consistent with the welfare of the state."—quos, i. e. scribas, to be supplied from the preceding scriba. These scribæ were probably the secretaries of the pontifices, and, as the routine business which fell to them became more considerable and important, they acquired the more honourable title of pontifices minores.—Q. Fabius Pictor, the historian. See notes on c. vii.—supplicitis, "supplications."—finis is here feminine,—sub terra must be taken with in locum, not with demissi sunt, which would require sub terram.—et jam ante, i. e. ten years before, in the Gallic war, A. U. C. 528.
—ea legio tertia erat. This third legion is not to be confounded with the third legion that was under Fabius and afterwards fought at Cannæ. • It was a legion intended to be transported on board the fleet for foreign service.—Teanum, now Teano, in the midst of the Falernian and Massic vineyards. It was the capital of the Sidicini, an Oscan tribe, in the north of Campania.—dictus, "named by the consul."—prætextatus, wearing the

toga pretexta, and therefore not yet seventeen years old; because at that age the toga pretexta, worn by boys, as well as by magistrates, was exchanged for the toga virilis.—ex formula, "according to the agreement between them."—vellentne. Because they were not Roman citizens, and were therefore not bound to fight for Rome. Romans were never asked whether they were willing to fight for their country.—et strengthens empta.

lviii. Hannibal allows the Roman captives to send ten of their number to Rome to treat about their ransom.—quo pepigerat. quo is the ablative of price. So Plaut. Bac. iv. 8, 38: "Ducentis Philippis rem pepigi."—inclinarēt, i. e. Carthalo. In this case animos would be in the accusative. Or animos might be the archaic nominative for animus, and so be the subject of inclinarēt. The codex Puteanus has several of these old nominatives in os, though they have been altered in this edition as likely to confuse beginners.—dictatoris verbis "in the name of the dictator."

lix. One of the ten ambassadors of the captives in Hannibal's camp addresses the senate on their behalf. In this speech it is argued that the prisoners ought to be ransomed because (1) they had fought in the field bravely and defended their camp to the last; (2) their redemption would be according to well-known precedents in Roman history; (3) they were braver, and therefore more worthy of honour from their country than those who ran away to Venusia and Canusium; (4) they were far preferable to the slaves whom the senate had just been buying and arming; (5) they would be exposed to all the horrors of Punic cruelty, if not ransomed; (6) the tears of their relations should intercede for them; (7) refusal to ransom them would be a disgrace to them more intolerable than the most dreadful death.—alii. The reading of the older manuscripts is ali, contracted for alii, just as in the same manuscripts i appears for ii, is for iis, isdem for iisdem, &c.—patres vestros, "your fathers." The embassy in question was sent to Pyrrhus, and therefore might have been sent by the fathers, or at any rate the grandfathers, of those to whom he was speaking.—nec . . . quidem is put for et nec . . . quidem. See note on c. lv: Tarentum, now Taranto, a town of Greek origin, and at that time the commercial emporium of Southern Italy.—Aliam, a very small stream about eleven miles from Rome, flowing into the Tiber on its left bank. It is probably now the Scolo del Casale. See Smith's Dict. of Anc. Geog., p. 104.—Heracleam, a Greek town, situated on the Aciris, now the Agri, which falls into the Gulf of Taranto. Here Pyrrhus defeated the Roman general Lævinus, A. v. c. 474.—in acie . . . refugerunt, not ex acie, because it is equivalent to in acie . . . fuerunt et refugerunt.—estulisse velim. The perfect infinitive is often used after velle, instead of the imperfect infinitive. See Madv. §. 407, Obs. 2.—se nobis pretulerint, &c., "would like to exalt themselves above us, and, &c." For this use of the present perfect subjunctive to express an opinion modestly given, see Madv. §. 350, b.—fuerimus is in the subjunctive, because the speaker modestly leaves the matter in doubt.—nec majore, &c. = "nec majus est pretium quo nos redimi possumus, quam quo ii emuntur," Fabri. Redimere is used with respect to the buying back of freemen who had been free before, and emere with respect to the buying into liberty those who had been hitherto slaves.—merito, "fault."—vos, used boldly for patres vestros.—me dius fidius, i. e. me deus fidius (Jupiter) servet or juvet.—neque enim, "for certainly . . . not."

lx. Manlius's speech in answer to the request of the prisoners in Hannibal's camp—necessitas, "the ties of kindred."—in foro ac turba, &c. This difficult construction seems to involve an ellipsis, and intermixture of two constructions: "Fear and the ties of kindred had drawn even the women into the forum (in forum), and there (in foro) mixed them up with the crowd of men."—submotis arbitris, "strangers having been ordered to withdraw," as we should say now of the House of Commons.—nec—"but not."—prædibusque ac, &c., "and that security should be given to the state by means of personal bail and real property." T. Manlius Torquatus had been consul A. U. C. 519 and 530, and censor A. U. C. 523.—plerisque, "to most," i. e. of the present generation. Manlius disapproved of ransoming the prisoners, because (1) they boasted of the circumstances which constituted their shame; (2) their conduct in and after the battle showed that they were incapable of self-sacrifice for their country, and were therefore not worth the money that their ransom would cost; (3) those who had not loved their country when free, and in possession of all civil rights, would be less likely to love it, when slaves, and deprived of civil rights; (4) their faintheartedness and refusal to save themselves, when a way of doing so was pointed out to them, and their disgraceful behaviour to Sempronius Tuditanus held out no hope of their ever being good soldiers; (5) the readiness with which they gave up the camp to Hannibal at the first summons pointed to the same conclusion.—proferri, i. e. se.—et ipsi, "they, too, as well as the Romans, having, most of them, returned to their own camp."—possent is used instead of potuissent to show that the sentiment is universally true, that seven thousand men could always fight their way through a host of enemies.—pervenire, i. e. eos, to be supplied from the previous sequebantur.—diceret is put for discesset. "If P. Sempronius had said this to you, he would have held you to be, in very truth, neither men nor Romans, if none of you had risen to the height of companionship with his bravery. But he did not say this. He said something far easier for you. He showed you a road that led to safety as well as to glory, &c."—deminuti capitis, "having lost your civil rights." The maxima capitis deminutio involved the loss of libertas, civitas, and familia. A Roman taken prisoner in war always lost these; though he might regain them on his return.—retinere conati sunt, ni . . . submovissent—retinere conati sunt ac retinissent, ni . . . submovissent.—Quam tutum, &c. "How safe, think you, would have been the march of an army of nearly two legions?"—boni fidelesque, "good and true; for not even they themselves would venture to call themselves (according to the usual formula) brave and true." For the conjunction of the two epithets fortes fidelesque, see xxi. 44 and xxiii. 16.—nisi quis credere potest, &c., "unless a man can believe that they were brave, when (ut) they tried to hinder those who were sallying forth from sallying, or that they do not envy both the freedom and the glory which those men have gained by their valour, though themselves conscious that their timidity and cowardice are the cause of their own ignominious state of bondage."—Ad erumpendum, &c. Most editors have inserted At enim at the beginning of this sentence, without manuscript authority, because the sense seems almost to demand it. "But some one will say, though their heart failed them when it was proposed that they should sally forth, yet they had the courage to," &c. And Drakenborch remarks that these words may have been omitted from the manuscripts in consequence of the similarity of the letters ad erum that came next to them.—absent, used ironically by Manlius for decessent, "were absent from them," not "were absolutely wanting to them." For the difference between the two words, see Cic. Brut. 80 : "Aberat tertia illa laus qua . . . hoc unum illi, et nihil utilitatis habebat, abfuit : si opus erat, defuit."—hæc vobis, &c. "Here is a sketch of their military labours for you." vobis is the Dativus ethicus.—oportet is not so strong as necesse est. It was not so plain a duty to sally forth from the camp to preserve themselves for their country's future necessities, as it was to guard the camp that they had in charge. Hence the use of oportet in the first instance, and necesse est in the second.

lxi. The senate determines not to ransom the prisoners. The extensive defection of the allies that follows the battle does not break the spirit of the Romans, or induce them to think of peace.—erogata, "having been laid out."—armandos, because slaves had no arms of their own. Roman citizens had to provide arms for themselves.—huiusce rei, i. e. pecunie.—decem primos, "the ten chief came," not "ten came first," which would be decem primo. So Polyb. vi. 58. "δέκα τοῖς ἐμφανεστάτους," and Cicero de Off. iii. 32, "decem nobilissimi."—ne, "on the condition that . . . not."—paucis sententiis, "by a small majority."—proximis censoribus, "under the next censors."—omnibus . . . confectos, "overwhelmed with every mark and kind of infamy."—foro, "public life;" "share in political transactions."—omni deinde vita, "for all the rest of their life."—discrepare inter auctores. Livy follows Polyb. vi. 58, and Cicero de Off. iii. 32. But Cicero in the same place quotes Acilius as relating the other version of the story : "Acilius autem, qui Græcæ scripsit historiam, plures ait fuisse, qui in castra revertissent, eadem fraude, ut jurejurando liberarentur, eosque a censoribus omnibus ignominiis notatos."—Defecere, "the people : "Non simul omnes hi populi defecere, sed quidam statim, quidam post annum, quidam tertio aut quarto post anno." Crev. The peoples in question are, with the exception of the Cisalpine Gauls, mentioned in order from north to south, those on the Gulf of Taranto being taken from east to west.—Atullani, the people of Atella, the ruins of which are not far from the modern Aversa, between Naples and Capoua.—Calatini, Hirpini, see note on c. xiii.—Pentros, a tribe inhabiting the north-western part of Samnium, and having Bovianum for their capital city.—Bruttii, the inhabitants of the modern Calabria.—Lucani. They were situated north of the Bruttii, from whom they were divided by the rivers Laüs and Crathis.—Uzentini, the people of Uzentum or Uxentum, now Ugento, to the north-west of C. di Leuca.—Græcorum omnis ferme ora, i. e., Magna Græcia, a general name for the cities of Grecian origin on the shores of the Gulf of Taranto and Bruttium and Lucania.—Tarentini, see c. lix.—Metapontini, the people of Metapontum, an Achaean colony, about 24 miles west of Tarentum.—Crotonienses, the people of Croton, now Cotrone, an Achaean colony, about six miles north of Lacinium Promontorium, now C. delle Colonne. Locri, called Epizephyrii, to distinguish it from the Grecian Locri, from whom they originally came, was situated not far from C. Spartivento, near the modern town of Gerace.—Cisalpini Galli, the inhabitants of the plain of the Po.—gratiae actæ quod, &c. Few things could show a loftier and more unbending spirit than this.—nihil recusandum supplicii foret, i. e. ei. The peculiar kind of punishment which the Carthaginians so frequently dealt out to their unsuccessful generals, was the most terrible of all punishments, crucifixion.

23. BRICKS AND TILES, Rudimentary Treatise on the Manufacture of; containing an Outline of the Principles of Brickmaking. By EDW. DOBSON, M.R.I.B.A. With Additions by C. TOMLINSON, F.R.S. Illustrated, 3s.
25. MASONRY AND STONECUTTING, Rudimentary Treatise on; in which the Principles of Masonic Projection and their application to the Construction of Curved Wing-Walls, Domes, Oblique Bridges, and Roman and Gothic Vaulting, are concisely explained. By EDWARD DOBSON, M.R.I.B.A., &c. Illustrated with Plates and Diagrams. 2s. 6d.
44. FOUNDATIONS AND CONCRETE WORKS, a Rudimentary Treatise on; containing a Synopsis of the principal cases of Foundation Works, with the usual Modes of Treatment, and Practical Remarks on Footings, Planking, Sand, Concrete, Béton, Pile-driving, Caissons, and Cofferdams. By E. DOBSON, M.R.I.B.A., &c. Fourth Edition, revised by GEORGE DODD, C.E. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.

CROSBY LOCKWOOD AND CO., 7, STATIONERS' HALL COURT, E.C.

Architecture, Building, etc., continued.

42. COTTAGE BUILDING. By C. BRUCE ALLEN, Architect. Eleventh Edition, revised and enlarged. Numerous Illustrations. 1s. 6d.
45. LIMES, CEMENTS, MORTARS, CONCRETES, MASTICS, PLASTERING, &c., Rudimentary Treatise on. By G. R. BURNELL, C.E. Ninth Edition, with Appendices. 1s. 6d.
57. WARMING AND VENTILATION, a Rudimentary Treatise on; being a concise Exposition of the General Principles of the Art of Warming and Ventilating Domestic and Public Buildings, Mines, Lighthouses, Ships, &c. By CHARLES TOMLINSON, F.R.S., &c. Illustrated. 3s.
- 83*. CONSTRUCTION OF DOOR LOCKS. Compiled from the Papers of A. C. HOBBS, Esq., of New York, and Edited by CHARLES TOMLINSON, F.R.S. To which is added, a Description of Fenby's Patent Locks, and a Note upon IRON SAFES by ROBERT MALLETT, M.I.C.E. Illus. 2s. 6d.
111. ARCHES, PIERS, BUTTRESSES, &c. Experimental Essays on the Principles of Construction in; made with a view to their being useful to the Practical Builder. By WILLIAM BLAND. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
116. THE ACOUSTICS OF PUBLIC BUILDINGS; or, The Principles of the Science of Sound applied to the purposes of the Architect and Builder. By T. ROGER SMITH, M.R.I.B.A., Architect. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
124. CONSTRUCTION OF ROOFS, Treatise on the, as regards Carpentry and Joinery. Deduced from the Works of ROBISON, PRICE, and TREGGOLD. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
127. ARCHITECTURAL MODELLING IN PAPER, the Art of. By T. A. RICHARDSON, Architect. With Illustrations, designed by the Author, and engraved by O. JEVITT. 1s. 6d.
128. VITRUVIUS—THE ARCHITECTURE OF MARCUS VITRUVIUS POLLO. In Ten Books. Translated from the Latin by JOSEPH GWILT, F.S.A., F.R.A.S. With 23 Plates. 5s.
130. GRECIAN ARCHITECTURE, An Inquiry into the Principles of Beauty in; with a Historical View of the Rise and Progress of the Art in Greece. By the EARL OF ABERDEEN. 1s.
- *. The two Preceding Works in One handsome Vol., half bound, entitled "ANCIENT ARCHITECTURE." Price 6s.
132. DWELLING-HOUSES, a Rudimentary Treatise on the Erection of. By S. H. BROOKS, Architect. New Edition, with Plates. 2s. 6d.
156. QUANTITIES AND MEASUREMENTS, How to Calculate and Take them in Bricklayers', Masons', Plasterers', Plumbers', Painters', Paper-hangers', Gilders', Smiths', Carpenters', and Joiners' Work. By A. C. BEATON, Architect and Surveyor. New and Enlarged Edition. Illus. 1s. 6d.
175. LOCKWOOD & CO.'S BUILDER'S AND CONTRACTOR'S PRICE BOOK, with which is incorporated ARCHLEY's and portions of the late G. R. BURNELL's "BUILDER'S PRICE BOOKS," for 1876, containing the latest Prices of all kinds of Builders' Materials and Labour, and of all Trades connected with Building: with many useful and important Memoranda and Tables; Lists of the Members of the Metropolitan Board of Works, of Districts, District Officers, and District Surveyors, and the Metropolitan Bye-laws. The whole Revised and Edited by FRANCIS T. W. MILLER, Architect and Surveyor. 3s. 6d.

- 182*. CARPENTRY AND JOINERY. ATLAS of 35 Plates to accompany the foregoing book. With Descriptive Letterpress. 4to. 6s.
187. HINTS TO YOUNG ARCHITECTS. By GEORGE WIGHTWICK. Author of "The Palace of Architecture," &c. &c. New, Revised, and enlarged Edition. By G. HUSKISSON GUILLAUME, Architect. With numerous Woodcuts. 3s. 6d. [Just published.]

188. HOUSE PAINTING, GRAINING, MARBLING, AND SIGN WRITING: A Practical Manual of, containing full information on the Processes of House Painting in Oil and Distemper, the Formation of Letters and; Practice of Sign Writing, the Principles of Decorative Art, a Course of Elementary Drawing for House Painters, Writers, &c., and a Collection of Useful Receipts. With 9 Coloured Plates of Woods and Marbles, and nearly 150 Wood Engravings. By ELLIS A. DAVIDSON, Author of "Building Construction," "Drawing for Carpenters," &c. 7s. [Just published.]
189. THE RUDIMENTS OF PRACTICAL BRICKLAYING. In Six Sections: General Principles of Bricklaying; Arch Drawing; Cutting, and Setting; different kinds of Pointing; Paving, Tiling, Materials; Slating and Plastering; Practical Geometry, Mensuration, &c. By ADAM HAMMOND. Illustrated with 68 Woodcuts. 1s. 6d. [Just published.]
191. PLUMBING. A Text-Book to the Practice of the Art or Craft of the Plumber. With Supplementary Chapters upon House Drainage, embodying the latest Improvements. Containing about 300 Illustrations. By WILLIAM PATON BUCHAN, Practical and Consulting Sanitary Plumber; Mem. of Coun. San. and Soc. Econ. Sec. of the Philosophical Society of Glasgow. [Nearly ready.]
192. THE TIMBER IMPORTER'S, TIMBER MERCHANT'S, and BUILDER'S STANDARD GUIDE; comprising copious and valuable Memoranda for the Retailer and Builder. By RICHARD E. GRANDY. Second Edition, Revised. 3s.

CIVIL ENGINEERING, ETC.

13. CIVIL ENGINEERING, the Rudiments of; for the Use of Beginners, for Practical Engineers, and for the Army and Navy. By HENRY LAW, C.E. Including a Section on Hydraulic Engineering, by GEORGE R. BURNELL, C.E. 5th Edition, with Notes and Illustrations by ROBERT MALLETT, A.M., F.R.S. Illustrated with Plates and Diagrams. 5s.
29. THE DRAINAGE OF DISTRICTS AND LANDS. By G. DRYSDALE DEMPSEY, C.E. New Edition, revised and enlarged. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
30. THE DRAINAGE OF TOWNS AND BUILDINGS. By G. DRYSDALE DEMPSEY, C.E. New Edition. Illustrated. 2s. 6d. With "Drainage of Districts and Lands," in One Vol., 3s. 6d.
31. WELL-DIGGING, BORING, AND PUMP-WORK. By JOHN GEORGE SWINDELL, Assoc. R.I.B.A. New Edition, revised by G.R. BURNELL, C.E. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
35. THE BLASTING AND QUARRYING OF STONE, for Building and other Purposes. With Remarks on the Blowing up of Bridges. By Gen. Sir JOHN BURGOYNE, Bart., K.C.B. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
43. TUBULAR AND OTHER IRON GIRDER BRIDGES. Particularly describing the BRITANNIA and CONWAY TUBULAR BRIDGES. With a Sketch of Iron Bridges, and Illustrations of the Application of Malleable Iron to the Art of Bridge Building. By G. D. DEMPSEY, C.E., New Edition, with Illustrations. 1s. 6d.
62. RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION, Elementary and Practical Instruction on the Science of. By Sir MACDONALD STEPHENSON, C.E. New Edition, revised and enlarged by EDWARD NUGENT, C.E. Plates and numerous Woodcuts. 3s.
- 80*. EMBANKING LANDS FROM THE SEA, the Practice of. Treated as a Means of Profitable Employment for Capital. With Examples and Particulars of actual Embankments, and also Practical Remarks on the Repair of old Sea Walls. By JOHN WIGGINS, F.G.S. New Edition, with Notes by ROBERT MALLETT, F.R.S. 2s.
81. WATER WORKS, for the Supply of Cities and Towns. With a Description of the Principal Geological Formations of England as influencing Supplies of Water; and Details of Engines and Pumping Machinery for raising Water. By SAMUEL HUGHES, F.G.S., C.E. New Edition, revised and enlarged, with numerous Illustrations. 4s.
- 82. GAS WORKS, and the Practice of Manufacturing and Distributing Coal Gas. By SAMUEL HUGHES, C.E. New Edition, revised by W. RICHARDS, C.E. Illustrated. 3s. 6d.

Civil Engineering, etc., continued.

117. SUBTERRANEAN SURVEYING; an Elementary and Practical Treatise on. By THOMAS FENWICK. Also the Method of Conducting Subterranean Surveys without the Use of the Magnetic Needle, and other modern Improvements. By THOMAS BAKER, C.E. Illustrated. 2s. 6d.
118. CIVIL ENGINEERING IN NORTH AMERICA, a Sketch of. By DAVID STEVENSON, F.R.S.E., &c. Plates and Diagrams. 3s.
121. RIVERS AND TORRENTS. With the Method of Regulating their Courses and Channels. By Professor PAUL FRISI, F.R.S., of Milan. To which is added, AN ESSAY ON NAVIGABLE CANALS. Translated by Major-General JOHN GARSTIN, of the Bengal Engineers. Plates. 2s. 6d.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING, ETC.

33. CRANES, the Construction of, and other Machinery for Raising Heavy Bodies for the Erection of Buildings, and for Hoisting Goods. By JOSEPH GLYNN, F.R.S., &c. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
34. THE STEAM ENGINE, a Rudimentary Treatise on. By Dr. LARDNER. Illustrated. 7s. 6d.
59. STEAM BOILERS: their Construction and Management. By R. ARMSTRONG, C.E. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
63. AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERING: Farm Buildings, Motive Power, Field Machines, Machinery, and Implements. By G. H. ANDREWS, C.E. Illustrated. 3s.
67. CLOCKS, WATCHES, AND BELLS, a Rudimentary Treatise on. By Sir EDMUND BECKETT (late EDMUND BECKETT DENISON, LL.D., Q.C.) A new, Revised, and considerably Enlarged Edition (the 6th), with very numerous Illustrations. 4s. 6d. [Just published.]
77. THE ECONOMY OF FUEL, particularly with Reference to Reverberatory Furnaces for the Manufacture of Iron, and to Steam Boilers. By T. SYMES PRIDEAUX. 1s. 6d.
82. THE POWER OF WATER, as applied to drive Flour Mills, and to give motion to Turbines and other Hydrostatic Engines. By JOSEPH GLYNN, F.R.S., &c. New Edition, Illustrated. 2s.
98. PRACTICAL MECHANISM, the Elements of; and Machine Tools. By T. BAKER, C.E. With Remarks on Tools and Machinery, by J. NASMYTH, C.E. Plates. 2s. 6d.
114. MACHINERY, Elementary Principles of, in its Construction and Working. Illustrated by numerous Examples of Modern Machinery for different Branches of Manufacture. By C. D. ABEL, C.E. 1s. 6d.
115. ATLAS OF PLATES. Illustrating the above Treatise. By C. D. ABEL, C.E. 7s. 6d.
125. THE COMBUSTION OF COAL AND THE PREVENTION OF SMOKE, Chemically and Practically Considered. With an Appendix. By C. WYB WILLIAMS, A.C.E. Plates. 3s.
139. THE STEAM ENGINE, a Treatise on the Mathematical Theory of, with Rules at length, and Examples for the Use of Practical Men. By T. BAKER, C.E. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
162. THE BRASS FOUNDER'S MANUAL; Instructions for Modelling, Pattern-Making, Moulding, Turning, Filing, Burnishing, Bronzing, &c. With copious Receipts, numerous Tables, and Notes on Prime Costs and Estimates. By WALTER GRAHAM. Illustrated. 2s. 6d.
164. MODERN WORKSHOP PRACTICE, as applied to Marine, Land, and Locomotive Engines, Floating Docks, Dredging Machines, Bridges, Cranes, Ship-building, &c., &c. By J. G. WINTON. Illustrated. 3s.
165. IRON AND HEAT, exhibiting the Principles concerned in the Construction of Iron Beams, Pillars, and Bridge Girders, and the Action of Heat in the Smelting Furnace. By J. ARMOUR, C.E. 2s. 6d.

Mechanical Engineering, etc., continued.

166. POWER IN MOTION. Horse-Power, Motion, Toothed-Wheel Gearing, Long and Short Driving Bands, Angular Forces. By JAMES ARMOUR, C.E. With 73 Diagrams. 2s. 6d.
167. THE APPLICATION OF IRON TO THE CONSTRUCTION OF BRIDGES, GIRDERS, ROOFS, AND OTHER WORKS. Showing the Principles upon which such Structures are designed, and their Practical Application. By FRANCIS CAMPIN, C.E. Numerous Woodcuts. 2s.
171. THE WORKMAN'S MANUAL OF ENGINEERING DRAWING. By JOHN MAXTON, Engineer, Instructor in Engineering Drawing, Royal Naval College, Greenwich, formerly of R.S.N.A., South Kensington. Third Edition. Illustrated with 7 Plates and nearly 350 Woodcuts. 3s. 6d.
190. STEAM AND THE STEAM ENGINE, Stationary and Portable. An elementary treatise on. Being an extension of Mr. John Sewell's "Treatise on Steam." By D. KINNEAR CLARK, C.E., M.I.C.E. Author of "Railway Machinery," "Railway Locomotives," &c., &c. With numerous Illustrations. 3s. 6d. [Just ready.]

SHIPBUILDING, NAVIGATION, MARINE ENGINEERING, ETC.

51. NAVAL ARCHITECTURE, the Rudiments of; or, an Exposition of the Elementary Principles of the Science, and their Practical Application to Naval Construction. Compiled for the Use of Beginners. By JAMES PEAKE, School of Naval Architecture, H.M. Dockyard, Portsmouth. Fourth Edition, corrected, with Plates and Diagrams. 3s. 6d.
- 53*. SHIPS FOR OCEAN AND RIVER SERVICE, Elementary and Practical Principles of the Construction of. By HAKON A. SOMMERFELDT, Surveyor of the Royal Norwegian Navy. With an Appendix. 1s.
- 53. AN ATLAS OF ENGRAVINGS to Illustrate the above. Twelve large folding plates. Royal 4to, cloth. 7s. 6d.
54. MASTING, MAST-MAKING, AND RIGGING OF SHIPS, Rudimentary Treatise on. Also Tables of Spars, Rigging, Blocks; Chain, Wire, and Hemp Ropes, &c., relative to every class of vessels. Together with an Appendix of Dimensions of Masts and Yards of the Royal Navy of Great Britain and Ireland. By ROBERT KIPPING, N.A. Thirteenth Edition. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
- 54*. IRON SHIP-BUILDING. With Practical Examples and Details for the Use of Ship Owners and Ship Builders. By JOHN GRANTHAM, Consulting Engineer and Naval Architect. Fifth Edition, with important Additions. 4s.
- 54. AN ATLAS OF FORTY PLATES to Illustrate the above. Fifth Edition. Including the latest Examples, such as H.M. Steam Frigates "Warrior," "Hercules," "Bellerophon;" H.M. Troop Ship "Serapis," Iron Floating Dock, &c., &c. 4to, boards. 38s.
55. THE SAILOR'S SEA BOOK: a Rudimentary Treatise on Navigation. I. How to Keep the Log and Work it off. II. On Finding the Latitude and Longitude. By JAMES GREENWOOD, B.A., of Jesus College, Cambridge. To which are added, Directions for Great Circle Sailing; an Essay on the Law of Storms and Variable Winds; and Explanations of Terms used in Ship-building. Ninth Edition, with several Engravings and Coloured Illustrations of the Flags of Maritime Nations. 2s.
80. MARINE ENGINES, AND STEAM VESSELS, a Treatise on. Together with Practical Remarks on the Screw and Propelling Power, as used in the Royal and Merchant Navy. By ROBERT MURRAY, C.E., Engineer-Surveyor to the Board of Trade. With a Glossary of Technical Terms, and their Equivalents in French, German, and Spanish. Fifth Edition, revised and enlarged. Illustrated. 3s.

Shipbuilding, Navigation, etc., continued.

- 83*bis*. THE FORMS OF SHIPS AND BOATS: Hints, Experimentally Derived, on some of the Principles regulating Ship-building. By W. BLAND. Sixth Edition, revised, with numerous Illustrations and Models. 1s. 6d.
99. NAVIGATION AND NAUTICAL ASTRONOMY, in Theory and Practice. With Attempts to facilitate the Finding of the Time and the Longitude at Sea. By J. K. YOUNG, formerly Professor of Mathematics in Belfast College. Illustrated. 2s. 6d.
- 100*. TABLES intended to facilitate the Operations of Navigation and Nautical Astronomy, as an Accompaniment to the above Book. By J. R. YOUNG. 1s. 6d.
106. SHIPS' ANCHORS, a Treatise on. By GEORGE COTSELL, N.A. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
149. SAILS AND SAIL-MAKING, an Elementary Treatise on. With Draughting, and the Centre of Effort of the Sails. Also, Weights and Sizes of Ropes; Masting, Rigging, and Sails of Steam Vessels, &c., &c. Tenth Edition, enlarged, with an Appendix. By ROBERT KIPPING, N.A., Sailmaker, Quayside, Newcastle. Illustrated. 2s. 6d.
155. THE ENGINEER'S GUIDE TO THE ROYAL AND MERCANTILE NAVIES. By a PRACTICAL ENGINEER. Revised by D. F. MCCARTHY, late of the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton. 3s.

PHYSICAL SCIENCE, NATURAL PHILOSOPHY, ETC.

1. CHEMISTRY, for the Use of Beginners. By Professor GEORGE FOWNES, F.R.S. With an Appendix, on the Application of Chemistry to Agriculture. 1s.
2. NATURAL PHILOSOPHY, Introduction to the Study of; for the Use of Beginners. By C. TOMLINSON, Lecturer on Natural Science in King's College School, London. Woodcuts. 1s. 6d.
4. MINERALOGY, Rudiments of; a concise View of the Properties of Minerals. By A. RAMSAY, Jun. Woodcuts and Steel Plates. 3s.
6. MECHANICS, Rudimentary Treatise on; being a concise Exposition of the General Principles of Mechanical Science, and their Applications. By CHARLES TOMLINSON, Lecturer on Natural Science in King's College School, London. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
7. ELECTRICITY; showing the General Principles of Electrical Science, and the purposes to which it has been applied. By Sir W. SNOW HARRIS, F.R.S., &c. With considerable Additions by R. SABINE, C.E., F.S.A. Woodcuts. 1s. 6d.
- 7*. GALVANISM, Rudimentary Treatise on, and the General Principles of Animal and Voltaic Electricity. By Sir W. SNOW HARRIS. New Edition, revised, with considerable Additions, by ROBERT SABINE, C.E., F.S.A. Woodcuts. 1s. 6d.
8. MAGNETISM; being a concise Exposition of the General Principles of Magnetical Science, and the Purposes to which it has been applied. By Sir W. SNOW HARRIS. New Edition, revised and enlarged by H. M. NOAD, Ph.D., Vice-President of the Chemical Society, Author of "A Manual of Electricity," &c., &c. With 165 Woodcuts. 3s. 6d.
11. THE ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH; its History and Progress; with Descriptions of some of the Apparatus. By R. SABINE, C.E., F.S.A., &c. Woodcuts. 3s.
12. PNEUMATICS, for the Use of Beginners. By CHARLES TOMLINSON. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
72. MANUAL OF THE MOLLUSCA; a Treatise on Recent and Fossil Shells. By Dr. S. P. WOODWARD, A.L.S. With Appendix by RALPH TATE, A.L.S., F.G.S. With numerous Plates and 300 Woodcuts, 6s. 6d. Cloth boards, 7s. 6d.

Physical Science, Natural Philosophy, etc., continued.

- 79. PHOTOGRAPHY, Popular Treatise on; with a Description of the Stereoscope, &c. Translated from the French of D. VAN MONCKHOVEN, by W. H. THORNTONHAITE, Ph.D. Woodcuts. 1s. 6d.
96. ASTRONOMY. By the Rev. R. MAIN, M.A., F.R.S., &c. New and enlarged Edition, with an Appendix on "Spectrum Analysis." Woodcuts. 1s. 6d.
97. STATICS AND DYNAMICS, the Principles and Practice of; embracing also a clear development of Hydrostatics, Hydrodynamics, and Central Forces. By T. BAKER, C.E. 1s. 6d.
138. TELEGRAPH, Handbook of the; a Manual of Telegraphy, Telegraph Clerks' Remembrancer, and Guide to Candidates for Employment in the Telegraph Service. By R. BOND. Fourth Edition, revised and enlarged: to which is appended, QUESTIONS on MAGNETISM, ELECTRICITY, and PRACTICAL TELEGRAPHY, for the Use of Students, by W. MCGREGOR, First Assistant Superintendent, Indian Gov. Telegraphs. Woodcuts. 3s.
143. EXPERIMENTAL ESSAYS. By CHARLES TOMLINSON. I. On the Motions of Camphor on Water. II. On the Motion of Camphor towards the Light. III. History of the Modern Theory of Dew. Woodcuts. 1s.
173. PHYSICAL GEOLOGY, partly based on Major-General PORTLOCK's "Rudiments of Geology." By RALPH TATE, A.L.S., &c. Numerous Woodcuts. 2s.
174. HISTORICAL GEOLOGY, partly based on Major-General PORTLOCK's "Rudiments." By RALPH TATE, A.L.S., &c. Woodcuts. 2s. 6d.
- 173 & 174. RUDIMENTARY TREATISE ON GEOLOGY, Physical and Historical. Partly based on Major-General PORTLOCK's "Rudiments of Geology." By RALPH TATE, A.L.S., F.G.S., &c., &c. Numerous Illustrations. In One Volume. 4s. 6d.
183. ANIMAL PHYSICS, Handbook of. By DIONYSIUS LARDNER, D.C.L. formerly Professor of Natural Philosophy and Astronomy in University College, London. With 520 Illustrations. In One Volume, cloth boards. 7s. 6d.
183. ANIMAL PHYSICS. By Dr. LARDNER. Part I., Chapter I—VII. 4s.
184. ANIMAL PHYSICS. By Dr. LARDNER. Part II. Chapter VIII—XVIII. 3s.

 Sold also in Two Parts, as follows:—

MINING, METALLURGY, ETC.

117. SUBTERRANEAN SURVEYING, Elementary and Practical Treatise on, with and without the Magnetic Needle. By THOMAS FENWICK, Surveyor of Mines, and THOMAS BAKER, C.E. Illustrated. 2s. 6d.
133. METALLURGY OF COPPER; an Introduction to the Methods of Seeking, Mining, and Assaying Copper, and Manufacturing its Alloys. By ROBERT H. LAMBORN, Ph.D. Woodcuts. 2s. 6d.
134. METALLURGY OF SILVER AND LEAD. A Description of the Ores; their Assay and Treatment, and valuable Constituents. By Dr. R. H. LAMBORN. Woodcuts. 2s.
135. ELECTRO-METALLURGY; Practically Treated. By ALEXANDER WATT, F.R.S.S.A. New Edition. Woodcuts. 2s.
172. MINING TOOLS, Manual of. For the Use of Mine Managers, Agents, Students, &c. Comprising Observations on the Materials from, and Processes by which they are manufactured; their Special Uses, Applications, Qualities, and Efficiency. By WILLIAM MORGAN, Lecturer on Mining at the Bristol School of Mines. 2s. 6d.
- 172*. MINING TOOLS, ATLAS of Engravings to Illustrate the above, containing 235 Illustrations of Mining Tools, drawn to Scale. 4to. 4s. 6d.

Mining, Metallurgy, etc., continued.

176. METALLURGY OF IRON, a Treatise on the. Containing Outlines of the History of Iron Manufacture, Methods of Assay, and Analyses of Iron Ores, Processes of Manufacture of Iron and Steel, &c. By H. BAURMAN, F.G.S., Associate of the Royal School of Mines. Fourth Edition, revised and enlarged, with numerous Illustrations. 4s. 6d.
180. COAL AND COAL MINING: A Rudimentary Treatise on. By WARINGTON W. SMYTH, M.A., F.R.S., &c., Chief Inspector of the Mines of the Crown and of the Duchy of Cornwall. New Edition, revised and corrected. With numerous Illustrations. 3s. 6d.

EMIGRATION.

154. GENERAL HINTS TO EMIGRANTS. Containing Notices of the various Fields for Emigration. With Hints on Preparation for Emigrating, Outfits, &c., &c. With Directions and Recipes useful to the Emigrant. With a Map of the World. 2s.

159. THE EMIGRANT'S GUIDE TO AUSTRALIA, New South Wales, Western Australia, South Australia, Victoria, and Queensland. By the Rev. JAMES BAIRD, B.A. Map. 2s. 6d.
160. THE EMIGRANT'S GUIDE TO TASMANIA AND NEW ZEALAND. By the Rev. JAMES BAIRD, B.A. With a Map. 2s.
- 159 & 160. THE EMIGRANT'S GUIDE TO AUSTRALASIA. By the Rev. J. BAIRD, B.A. Comprising the above two volumes, 12mo, cloth boards. With Maps of Australia and New Zealand. 5s.

AGRICULTURE.

29. THE DRAINAGE OF DISTRICTS AND LANDS. By G. DRYSDALE DEMPSEY, C.E. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
* * With "Drainage of Towns and Buildings," in One Vol., 3s. 6d.
63. AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERING: Farm Buildings, Motive Powers and Machinery of the Steading, Field Machines, and Implements. By G. H. ANDREWS, C.E. Illustrated. 3s.
66. CLAY LANDS AND LOAMY SOILS. By Professor DONALDSON. 1s.
131. MILLER'S, MERCHANT'S, AND FARMER'S READY RECKONER, for ascertaining at sight the value of any quantity of Corn, from One Bushel to One Hundred Quarters, at any given price, from £1 to £5 per quarter. Together with the approximate values of Millstones and Millwork, &c. 1s.
140. SOILS, MANURES, AND CROPS. (Vol. 1. OUTLINES OF MODERN FARMING.) By R. SCOTT BURN. Woodcuts. 2s.
141. FARMING AND FARMING ECONOMY, Notes, Historical and Practical, on. (Vol. 2. OUTLINES OF MODERN FARMING.) By R. SCOTT BURN. Woodcuts. 3s.
142. STOCK; CATTLE, SHEEP, AND HORSES. (Vol. 3. OUTLINES OF MODERN FARMING.) By R. SCOTT BURN. Woodcuts. 2s. 6d.
145. DAIRY, PIGS, AND POULTRY, Management of the. By R. SCOTT BURN. With Notes on the Diseases of Stock. (Vol. 4. OUTLINES OF MODERN FARMING.) Woodcuts. 2s.
146. UTILIZATION OF SEWAGE, IRRIGATION, AND RECLAMATION OF WASTE LAND. (Vol. 5. OUTLINES OF MODERN FARMING.) By R. SCOTT BURN. Woodcuts. 2s. 6d.
- * * Nos. 140-1-2-5-6, in One Vol., handsomely half-bound, entitled "OUTLINES OF MODERN FARMING." By ROBERT SCOTT BURN. Price 12s.
177. FRUIT TREES, The Scientific and Profitable Culture of. From the French of DU BREUIL, Revised by GEO. GLENNY. 187 Woodcuts. 3s. 6d.

FINE ARTS.

20. PERSPECTIVE FOR BEGINNERS. Adapted to Young Students and Amateurs in Architecture, Painting, &c. By GEORGE PYNNE, Artist. Woodcuts. 2s.
40. GLASS STAINING; or, Painting on Glass, The Art of.. Comprising Directions for Preparing the Pigments and Fluxes, laying them upon the Glass, and Firing or Burning in the Colours. From the German of Dr. GESSERT. To which is added, an Appendix on THE ART OF ENAMELLING, &c. 1s.
41. PAINTING ON GLASS, the Art of. From the German of EMANUEL OTTO FROMBERG. 1s.
69. MUSIC, A Rudimentary and Practical Treatise on. With numerous Examples. By CHARLES CHILD SPENCER. 2s. 6d.
71. PIANOFORTE, The Art of Playing the. With numerous Exercises and Lessons. Written and Selected from the Best Masters, by CHARLES CHILD SPENCER. 1s. 6d.
181. PAINTING POPULARLY EXPLAINED, including Fresco, Oil, Mosaic, Water Colour, Water-Glass, Tempera, Encaustic, Miniature, Painting on Ivory, Vellum, Pottery, Enamel, Glass, &c. With Historical Sketches of the Progress of the Art by THOMAS JOHN GULLICK, assisted by JOHN TIMBS, F.S.A. Third Edition, revised and enlarged, with Frontispiece and Vignette. 5s.
186. A GRAMMAR OF COLOURING, applied to Decorative Painting and the Arts. By GEORGE FIELD. New Edition, enlarged and adapted to the Use of the Ornamental Painter and Designer. By ELLIS A. DAVIDSON, Author of "Drawing for Carpenters," &c. With two new Coloured Diagrams and numerous Engravings on Wood. 2s. 6d.

ARITHMETIC, GEOMETRY, MATHEMATICS, ETC.

32. MATHEMATICAL INSTRUMENTS, a Treatise on; in which their Construction and the Methods of Testing, Adjusting, and Using them are concisely Explained. By J. F. HEATHER, M.A. of the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich. Original Edition, in 1 vol., Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
- * * * In ordering the above, be careful to say, "Original Edition," or give the number in the Series (32) to distinguish it from the Enlarged Edition in 3 vols. (Nos. 168-9-70.)
60. LAND AND ENGINEERING SURVEYING, a Treatise on; with all the Modern Improvements. Arranged for the Use of Schools and Private Students; also for Practical Land Surveyors and Engineers. By T. BAKER, C.E. New Edition, revised by EDWARD NUGENT, C.E. Illustrated with Plates and Diagrams. 2s.
- 61*. READY RECKONER FOR THE ADMEASUREMENT OF LAND. By ABRAHAM ARMAN, Schoolmaster, Thurlough, Beds. To which is added a Table, showing the Price of Work, from 2s. 6d. to £1 per acre, and Tables for the Valuation of Lands, from 1s. to £1,000 per acre, and from one pole to two thousand acres in extent, &c., &c. 1s. 6d.
76. DESCRIPTIVE GEOMETRY, an Elementary Treatise on; with a Theory of Shadows and of Perspective, extracted from the French of G. MONCE. To which is added, a description of the Principles and Practice of Isometrical Projection; the whole being intended as an introduction to the Application of Descriptive Geometry to various branches of the Arts. By J. F. HEATHER, M.A. Illustrated with 14 Plates. 2s.
178. PRACTICAL PLANE GEOMETRY: giving the Simplest Modes of Constructing Figures contained in one Plane and Geometrical Construction of the Ground. By J. F. HEATHER, M.A. With 215 Woodcuts. 2s.
179. PROJECTION: Orthographic, Topographic, and Perspective: giving the various Modes of Delineating Solid Forms by Constructions on a Single Plane Surface. By J. F. HEATHER, M.A. [In preparation.]
- * * * The above three volumes will form a COMPLETE ELEMENTARY COURSE OF MATHEMATICAL DRAWING.

Arithmetic, Geometry, Mathematics, etc., continued.

83. COMMERCIAL BOOK-KEEPING. With Commercial Phrases and Forms in English, French, Italian, and German. By JAMES HADDON, M.A., Arithmetical Master of King's College School, London. 1s.
84. ARITHMETIC, a Rudimentary Treatise on: with full Explanations of its Theoretical Principles, and numerous Examples for Practice. For the Use of Schools and for Self-Instruction. By J. R. YOUNG, late Professor of Mathematics in Belfast College. New Edition, with Index. 1s. 6d.
- 84* A KEY to the above, containing Solutions in full to the Exercises, together with Comments, Explanations, and Improved Processes, for the Use of Teachers and Unassisted Learners. By J. R. YOUNG. 1s. 6d.
85. EQUATIONAL ARITHMETIC, applied to Questions of Interest,
- 85*. Annuities, Life Assurance, and General Commerce; with various Tables by which all Calculations may be greatly facilitated. By W. HIPSLEY. 2s.
86. ALGEBRA, the Elements of. By JAMES HADDON, M.A., Second Mathematical Master of King's College School. With Appendix, containing miscellaneous Investigations, and a Collection of Problems in various parts of Algebra. 2s.
- 86* A KEY AND COMPANION to the above Book, forming an extensive repository of Solved Examples and Problems in Illustration of the various Expedients necessary in Algebraical Operations. Especially adapted for Self-Instruction. By J. R. YOUNG. 1s. 6d.
88. EUCLID, THE ELEMENTS OF: with many additional Propositions
89. and Explanatory Notes: to which is prefixed, an Introductory Essay on Logic. By HENRY LAW, C.E. 2s. 6d.
-  Sold also separately, viz. :-
88. EUCLID, The First Three Books. By HENRY LAW, C.E. 1s.
89. EUCLID, Books 4, 5, 6, 11, 12. By HENRY LAW, C.E. 1s. 6d.
90. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY AND CONIC SECTIONS, a Rudimentary Treatise on. By JAMES HANN, late Mathematical Master of King's College School, London. A New Edition, re-written and enlarged by J. R. YOUNG, formerly Professor of Mathematics at Belfast College. 2s.
91. PLANE TRIGONOMETRY, the Elements of. By JAMES HANN, formerly Mathematical Master of King's College, London. 1s.
92. SPHERICAL TRIGONOMETRY, the Elements of. By JAMES HANN. Revised by CHARLES H. DOWLING, C.E. 1s.
-  Or with "The Elements of Plane Trigonometry," in One Volume, 2s.
93. MENSURATION AND MEASURING, for Students and Practical Use. With the Mensuration and Levelling of Land for the Purposes of Modern Engineering. By T. BAKER, C.E. New Edition, with Corrections and Additions by E. NUGENT, C.E. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
94. LOGARITHMS, a Treatise on; with Mathematical Tables for facilitating Astronomical, Nautical, Trigonometrical, and Logarithmic Calculations; Tables of Natural Sines and Tangents and Natural Cosines. By HENRY LAW, C.E. Illustrated. 2s. 6d.
- 101*. MEASURES, WEIGHTS, AND MONEYS OF ALL NATIONS, and an Analysis of the Christian, Hebrew, and Mahometan Calendars. By W. S. B. WOOLHOUSE, F.R.A.S., &c. 1s. 6d.
102. INTEGRAL CALCULUS, Rudimentary Treatise on the. By HOMERSHAM COX, B.A. Illustrated. 1s.
103. INTEGRAL CALCULUS, Examples on the. By JAMES HANN, late of King's College, London. Illustrated. 1s.
101. DIFFERENTIAL CALCULUS, Examples of the. By W. S. B. WOOLHOUSE, F.R.A.S., &c. 1s. 6d.
104. DIFFERENTIAL CALCULUS, Examples and Solutions of the. By JAMES HADDON, M.A. 1s.

Arithmetic, Geometry, Mathematics, etc., continued.

105. MNEMONICAL LESSONS.—GEOMETRY, ALGEBRA, AND TRIGONOMETRY, in Easy Mnemonical Lessons. By the Rev. THOMAS PENYNGTON KIRKMAN, M.A. 1s. 6d.
136. ARITHMETIC, Rudimentary, for the Use of Schools and Self-Instruction. By JAMES HADDON, M.A. Revised by ABRAHAM ARMAN. 1s. 6d.
137. A KEY TO HADDON'S RUDIMENTARY ARITHMETIC. By A. ARMAN. 1s. 6d.
147. ARITHMETIC, STEPPING-STONE TO; being a Complete Course of Exercises in the First Four Rules (Simple and Compound), on an entirely new principle. For the Use of Elementary Schools of every Grade. Intended as an Introduction to the more extended works on Arithmetic. By ABRAHAM ARMAN. 1s.
148. A KEY TO STEPPING-STONE TO ARITHMETIC. By A. ARMAN. 1s.
158. THE SLIDE RULE, AND HOW TO USE IT; containing full, easy, and simple Instructions to perform all Business Calculations with unexampled rapidity and accuracy. By CHARLES HOARE, C.E. With a Slide Rule in tuck of cover. 3s.
168. DRAWING AND MEASURING INSTRUMENTS. Including—I. Instruments employed in Geometrical and Mechanical Drawing, and in the Construction, Copying, and Measurement of Maps and Plans. II. Instruments used for the purposes of Accurate Measurement, and for Arithmetical Computations. By J. F. HEATHER, M.A., late of the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, Author of "Descriptive Geometry," &c., &c. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
169. OPTICAL INSTRUMENTS. Including (more especially) Telescopes, Microscopes, and Apparatus for producing copies of Maps and Plans by Photography. By J. F. HEATHER, M.A. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
170. SURVEYING, AND ASTRONOMICAL INSTRUMENTS. Including—I. Instruments Used for Determining the Geometrical Features of a portion of Ground. II. Instruments Employed in Astronomical Observations. By J. F. HEATHER, M.A. Illustrated. 1s. 6d.
- * The above three volumes form an enlargement of the Author's original work, "Mathematical Instruments: their Construction, Adjustment, Testing, and Use," the Eleventh Edition of which is on sale, price 1s. 6d. (See No. 32 in the Series.)
168. MATHEMATICAL INSTRUMENTS. By J. F. HEATHER, M.A. Enlarged Edition, for the most part entirely re-written. The 3 Parts as above, in One thick Volume. With numerous Illustrations. Cloth boards. 5s.
185. THE COMPLETE MEASURER; setting forth the Measurement of Boards, Glass, &c., &c.; Unequal-sided, Square-sided, Octagonal-sided, Round Timber and Stone, and Standing Timber. With just Allowances for the Bark in the respective species of Trees, and proper deductions for the waste in hewing the trees, &c.; also a Table showing the solidity of hewn or eight-sided timber, or of any octagonal-sided column. Compiled for the accommodation of Timber-growers, Merchants, and Surveyors, Stonemasons, Architects, and others. By RICHARD HORTON. Third Edition, with considerable and valuable additions. 4s. [Just published].

LEGAL TREATISES.

50. THE LAW OF CONTRACTS FOR WORKS AND SERVICES. By DAVID GIBBONS. Third Edition, revised and considerably enlarged. 3s. [Just published].
151. A HANDY BOOK ON THE LAW OF FRIENDLY, INDUSTRIAL & PROVIDENT BUILDING & LOAN SOCIETIES. With copious Notes. By NATHANIEL WHITE, of H.M. Civil Service. 1s.
163. THE LAW OF PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS; and on the Protection of Designs and Trade Marks. By F. W. CAMPIN, Barrister-at-Law. 2s.

MISCELLANEOUS VOLUMES.

36. A DICTIONARY OF TERMS used in ARCHITECTURE, BUILDING, ENGINEERING, MINING, METALLURGY, ARCHÆOLOGY, the FINE ARTS, &c. With Explanatory Observations on various Subjects connected with Applied Science and Art. By JOHN WEALE. Fourth Edition, with numerous Additions. Edited by ROBERT HUNT, F.R.S., Keeper of Mining Records, Editor of Ure's "Dictionary of Arts, Manufactures, and Mines." Numerous Illustrations. 5s.
112. MANUAL OF DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By R. GOODING, B.A., M.B. Intended as a Family Guide in all Cases of Accident and Emergency. 2s.
- 112*. MANAGEMENT OF HEALTH. A Manual of Home and Personal Hygiene. By the Rev. JAMES BAIRD, B.A. 1s.
113. FIELD ARTILLERY ON SERVICE, on the Use of. With especial Reference to that of an Army Corps. For Officers of all Arms. By TAUBERT, Captain, Prussian Artillery. Translated from the German by Lieut.-Col. HENRY HAMILTON MAXWELL, Bengal Artillery. 1s. 6d.
- 113*. SWORDS, AND OTHER ARMS used for Cutting and Thrusting, Memoir on. By Colonel MAREY. Translated from the French by Colonel H. H. MAXWELL. With Notes and Plates. 1s.
156. LOGIC, Pure and Applied. By S. H. EMMENS. Third Edition. 1s. 6d.
152. PRACTICAL HINTS FOR INVESTING MONEY. With an Explanation of the Mode of Transacting Business on the Stock Exchange. By FRANCIS PLAYFORD, Sworn Broker. 1s. 6d.
153. SELECTIONS FROM LOCKE'S ESSAYS ON THE HUMAN UNDERSTANDING. With Notes by S. H. EMMENS. 2s.
193. HANDBOOK OF FIELD FORTIFICATION, intended for the Guidance of Officers Preparing for Promotion, and especially adapted to the requirements of Beginners. By Major W. W. KNOLLYS, F.R.G.S., 93rd Sutherland Highlanders, &c. With 163 Woodcuts. 3s.

EDUCATIONAL AND CLASSICAL SERIES.

HISTORY.

1. England, Outlines of the History of; more especially with reference to the Origin and Progress of the English Constitution. A Text Book for Schools and Colleges. By WILLIAM DOUGLAS HAMILTON, F.S.A., of Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Fourth Edition, revised and brought down to 1872. Maps and Woodcuts. 5s.; cloth boards, 6s.
5. Greece, Outlines of the History of; in connection with the Rise of the Arts and Civilization in Europe. By W. DOUGLAS HAMILTON, of University College, London, and EDWARD LEVIEN, M.A., of Balliol College, Oxford. 2s. 6d.; cloth boards, 3s. 6d.
7. Rome, Outlines of the History of; from the Earliest Period to the Christian Era and the Commencement of the Decline of the Empire. By EDWARD LEVIEN, of Balliol College, Oxford. Map, 2s. 6d.; cl. bds. 3s. 6d.
